The Minde of the Frontispice.

This Naked Pourtraiture before thine Eye,
Is Wretched, helplesse Man, Man borne to dye;
On either side, an Angell doth protect him
As well from Evill, as to Good direct him:
Thone points to Beath, the tother to a Crowne,
Who This attains, must tread the Other down:
All which denotes the Briefe of Mans Estate,
That HEE's to go from HENCE, by This, to
(THAT)

The Minde of the Frontispice.

This Naked Pourtraiture before thine Eye,
Is Wretched, helplesse Man, Man borne to dye;
On either side, an Angell doth protect him
As well from Evill, as to Good direct him:
Thone points to Beath, the tother to a Crowne,
Who This attains, must tread the Other down:
All which denotes the Briefe of Mans Estate,
That HEE's to go from HENCE, by This, to
(THAT)

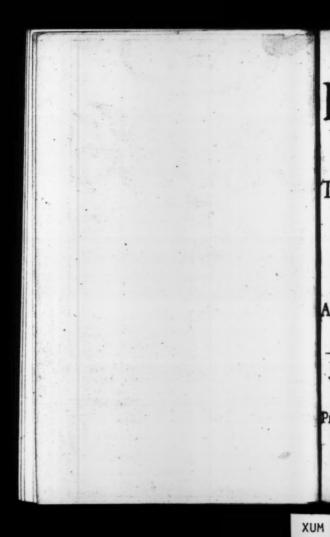

DIVINE POEMES

Reuifed, and Corrected with Additions
By the Author (Fra: Quarles.

Printed for Iohn Marriott in St Dunftons Church yard fleet freet. 1630. Thenth foul

ne,

T.

POEMS:

Containing [IONAH.
The History of Ester.
IOB.

Sions Sonets. ELEGIES.

An Elegie on Dr. AILMER, not formerly printed.

Writtenby FRA. QVARLES.

LONDON,
Printed for IOHN MARRIOTT, and are to be fold at his Shop in Saint Dunftans Churchy ard in Florificet.

I 6 3 0.

1. (1 11) Log room; ined for long than niorris Denflars Chard ynd in Flenfingt. 1 6 3

XUM

he fer ve ha fer ha I i cr fo

TO

THE SACRED MAIESTIE OF

King CHARLES.

SIR,

dyes and leaves none of his blood to inherite, the Lawes of this your Kingdome makes the King heyre: In this volume are contained feverall Poems lately dedicated to divers of the Nobility, whom they have out-lived; So that the Muses (who seldome or never give honour for lifes) have found them all for the King, which I have here gathered together, and prostrated before the seet of your facred Majesty. Indeed one of them I formerly dedicated and presented to your selse. So that now they are become doubly yours, both by Escheate A3 and

The Epiftle Dedicatory.

and as Surviyour. And if you pleafe to owne me as your servant, your Majesty hath another Title good, by which I most desire they should bee knowne yours: I will not fin against the common good fo much, as to expect your Majesties serious eye upon them: If when your Crowne shall bee most favourable to your Princely browes, you please to afford a gracious hearing, they will, with the helpe of some benevolous Reader, and your Royall acceptance (I hope) rellish in your facred eares, and receive honour from your accustomed goodnes, farre above their merits, or the expectation of

Your true-hearted and loyall Liegeman

FRA. QVARLES.

To the READER.

Lift not to tyre thy patient eares with unnecesfarie Language, (the abuse of complement.) My mouth's no Dictionary : it onely ferves as the needfull interpreter of my Heart.

I have here sent thee the first fruits of an abortive Birth. It is a daintie subject, not Fabulous, but Truth it felfe.

Wonder not at the Title (A FEAST FOR WORMES:) for it is a Song of Mercy: What greater FEAST than Mercy? And what are Men but WORMES?

> 14 More-

LES.

olease

r Mawhich owne

comyour

: If

oft fa-

, you ring, beneccepacred your their dand

To the Reader.

Moreover, I have gleaned some few Meditations, obvious to the History: Let me advise thee to keepe the Taste of the History, whileft they readest the Meditations, and that will make thee Rellish both the better.

Vnderstanding Reader, favour me: Gently expound, what it is too late to correct.

Helevad le Golpe, Dios sea con ella.

Farewell:

THE PROPOSITION of this first Worke.

I'Is not the Record of great Hectors glory, Whose metchiesse Valour makes the World a Story; Nor yet the fwelling of that Romans name, That onely Came, and Look'd, and Overcame Nor One, wer All, of those brave Worthics wine, (Whose Might was great, and Alls almost divine, That liv'd like Gods, but dy'd like Men, and gone) Shall give my Pen a Taske to treat upon : I fing the praises of the KING of Kings. Out of whose mouth a two-edg'd Smiter springs, Whose Words are Mystery, whose Works are Wonder, Whose Eyes are Lightning, and whose Voice is Thun-Who like a Curtaine freads the Heavens out, Spangled with Starres, in Glory round about : 'Ti He that cleft the furious waves in twaine, Making a High-way passage through the Maine, 'Tis He that turn'd the waters into Blood, And smote the Rocky stone, and caus'd a Flood; 'Ti He, that's juftly armed in his Ire, Bebinde with Plagues, before with flaming Fire, More bright than mid-day Phoebus, are bu Eyes, And whofeever fees his Vifage, dyes. I fing the Praises of Great Indahs Lyon, The fragrant Flowre of Ieffe, the Lambe of Sion, Whose Head is whiter than the driven Snow, Whose Vifage doth like flames of Fire glow :

His Loynes begirt with Golden Belt, his Eyne Like Titan, riding in his Southerne Shine, His Feet like burning Brasse, and as the noise Of furgie Neptunes roaring, is his Voice,

This

fer

ory;

dest rake

me:

te to

[ca

This is that Paschall Lambe, whose dearest Blood Is foveraigne Drinke, whose Flesh is saving Food: His precious Blood, the Worthies of the Earth Did drinke, which (though but borne of mortall birth) Return'd them Deities : For who drinkes This, Shall be receiv'd into Eternall Bliffe. Himselfe's the Gift, which He bimselfe did give, His Stripes heale us, and by His Death we live; He atting God and Man, in double Nature, Did reconcile Mankinde, and Mans Creator. I, bere's a Taske indeed ; If Mortalls could Not make a Verfe, yet Rockes and Mountaines would The Hills fall dance, the Sunne foall flop ble Courfe, Hearing the subject of this high Discourse : The Horfe, and Gryphin, foull together fleepe, The Wolfe fall famme upon the filly Sheepe, The crafty Serpent, and the fearfull Hart, Shall joyne in Confort, and each beare a part, And leape for Ioy, when my Vrania fings, She fings the praifes of the King of Kings.

THE

The Introduction.

THAT Ancient Kingdome, that old Affur swaid,
Shew'd two great cities: Ah! but both decaid,
Both mighty Great, but of unequall growth;
Both great in People, and in Building, both;
But ah! What hold is there of earthly good? (stood.
Now Graffe growes there, where these brave Cities

The name of one, great Babylon was hight, Through which the rich Emphrates takes her flight From high Armenia to the ruddy Seas, And stores the Land with rich Commodities. The other Ninus, Niniveb the Great, So huge a Fabricke, and well-chosen Scat Don Phabus fiery Steeds (with Maines becurl'd, That circundates in twice twelve houres the world) Ne're faw the like: By great King Ninus hand, 'Twas rais'd and builded, in th' All yrians Land. On one hand, Lycus wash'd her fruitfull sides, On t'other, Tygris with her hafty Tides. Begirt she was with Walls of wondrous might, Creeping twice fifty foot in measur'd height. Vpon their bredth (if ought we may rely On the report of Sage Antiquity,) Three Chariots fairly might themselves display, And ranke together in a Battell ray : The Circuit that her mighty Bulke imbraces Containes the mere of fixty thou fand paces: Within her well-fenc'd Walls you might discouer Five hundred stately Towers, thrice told over; Whereof the highest draweth up the eye, As well the low it, an hundred Cubits hie;

All

od:

urfe,

The Introduction.

All rich in those things, which to state belong, For beauty brave, and for munition firmg: Duly, and daily this great Worke was tended With ten thousand Workmen; begun and ended In eight yeares space: How beautifull! how faire Thy Euildings! And how foule thy Fices are!

Thou Land of Affin, double then thy pride, And let thy Wells of lorbe never dry'd, Thou haft a Palace, that's renown'd so much, The like was never, is, nor will be such.

Thou Land of Affur, treble then thy wee, And let thy Terres (doe as thy Cups) o'reflow; For this thy Palsee of so great renowne, Shall be destroy'd, and sackt, and batter'd downe.

But cheere up, Nmivel, thine inbred might Hath meanes enough to quell thy Formans spice : Thy Bulwarkes are like Mountaines, and thy Wall Difdaines to floope to thundring Ordnance call: Thy watchfull Towers mounted round about, Keepe thee in fafety, and thy Foe-men, out: I, But thy Bulwarkes aid cannot withstand The direfull stroake of the Almighties hand; Thy Wafer-walls at dread Jehovahi blaft Shall quake, and quiver, and thall downe be cast: Thy watchfull Towers shall afleepe be found, And nod their drowfie beads downe to the ground : Thy Bulwarks are not Vengeance-proofe; thy Wall, When luftice brandisheth her Sword, must fall : Thy lofty fowers shall be dumbe, and yeeld To high Revenge; Revenge must win the field; Vengeauce cryes loud from heaven, the cannot flay Her Fury, but (impatient of delay) Hath brimm'd her Visks full of deadly Bone: Thy Palace shall be burnt, thy People flaine;

Thy

The Introduction.

Thy Heart is hard as Flint, and (wolne with pride, Thy murch'rous Hands with guiltleffe bl ed are dy'd; Thy filly Babes doc farve for want of Food, Whole tender Mothers thou hait drencht in Blood: Women with childe, lye in the fireets about, Whole Braines thy favage hands have dashed out: Distressed Widowes weepe, (but weepe in vaine) For their deare & whamis, whom thy bands have flain: By one mans Force, another man's devour'd, Thy wives are ravisht, and thy Maids deflowr'd; Where Inflice Mould, there Tort & Bribes are plac'ts Thy Altars defil'd, and boly things defac't: Thy Lips have tasted of proud Babels Cup. What theu haft left, thy Children have drunke up: Thy bloody finnes, thine Abels guiltleffe blood, Cryes up to heaven for Vengeance, cryes aloud; Thy finnes are feire, and ready for the fire, Here rouze, (my Muse) and for a space, respire.

THE

Thy

Ray

ne.

:

all

A :

und: Vall,

XUM

TO THE MOST HIGH HIS HYMBLE SERVANT IMPLORES HIS FAVOVrable Affiftance.

OAll-Sufficient God, great Lord of Light, Vithout whose gracious and, and constant Sprite, No labours profper, (bowfee're bigun) But fy like Mifts before the morning Sun : O raise my thoughts, and cleare my Apprehension, Infuse thy Spirit into my weake Invention : Reflect thy Beames upon my feeble Eyes, Show me the Mirrour of thy Mysteries; My Art-leffe Hand, my humble Heart infire, Inflame my frezen Tongue with boly Fire: Ravifb my Rapid Senfes with thy Glory ; . Sweeten my Lips with facred Oratory: And (then OFIRST and LAST) afift my Quill, That first and last, I may performe thy will : My fole intent's to blazon forth thy Praise; My ruder Pen expells no Crowne of Bayes. Suffice it then, Thine Altar I bane hift : Crowne me with Glory; Take the Bayes that lift.

A

FEAST; FOR VVORMES

By Fra. Quarles.

A

GH

T

te,

Printed for I OHN MARRIOT.

Printelfor Ionn Marrior.

I

FEAST FOR WORMES.

THE ARGV MENT;
The Word of God to Ionah came,
Commanded Ionah to proclame
The vengeance of his Malefie,
Against the sinnes of Ninivie.

Sect. I.

Th'Eternall Word of God, whose high Decree Admits no change, and cannot frustrate be,
Came downe to lonah, from the heavens above,
Came downe to * Jonah, heavens anointed Dove;
lonah, the flowre of old Amittai's youth,
the Prophet, Sonne, and Heire to Truth,
The blessed Type of him, that ransom'd us,
That Word came to him, and bespake him thus:
"A arise, trusse up thy loynes, make all things meet, and put thy Sandalls on thy hafty feet,

" Gird up thy reynes, and take thy flaffe in hand,

"Make no delay, but goe, where I command;
"Me pleases not to send thee (Ionah) downe,

"To fweet Gath Hepber, thy deare native Towne,

" Whose tender paps, with plenty over flow,

" Nar yet unto thy bretbren fbalt thou goe,

" Amongst the Mebrewes, where thy fredden fame

" Fore-runnes the welcome of thine bosor'd name.

C No.

as No, I'le not fend thee thinher : Vp, arife, oc And goe to Niniuch, where no Allies, or Nor confanguinity preserves thy blood ; et To Niniteb, where firan ets are withflood :

et To Nimiveb, a City farre remov'd

ec From thine acquaintance, where th'art not belov'd :-

oc I fend thee to Mount Singy, not Mount Sion, at Not to a gentle Lambe, but to a Lion :

et Nor get to Lydia, but to bloody Paffur,

or Not to the Land of Canaan, but of Aihur,

or Whose language will be riddles to thine cares, or And thine againe will be as ftrange to theirs or I fay, to Niniveh, the worlds great Hall, or The Monare bs fest, high Court Imperial.

oc But terrible Mount Sinay will offright thee, et And Pathurs beavie band is bent to fnite thie:

or The Lions rore, the people's firmg and flout,

« The Buhwarkes fland afront to keepe thee out.

or Great Afhur minaces with whip in hand, es To entertaine thee (welcome) to bis land. or What then? Arife, be gone ; flay not to thinke :

at Bad is the cloth, that will in wetting fhrinke.

oc What then, if cruell Pashur beape on Broakes?

or Or Sinay blaft thee with ber fulph'rous fmekes?

at Or Afhur whip thee ? Or the Lions rent thee ?

e P'fhonwith courage ; I, the Lord have fent thee :

at Away, away, lay by thy foolifb pitie, or And goe to Ninroeb, that mighty Citie !

ex Cry loud againft it, let thy dreadfull voice or Make all the City eccbo with the noife:

a Not like a Dove, but like a Dragon goe, or Pronounce my judgement, and denounce my Woe:

or Make not thy bead a fountaine full of teares, at To weepe in fecret for her fames : Thine eares es Shall

at Shall beare fuch things, will make thine eyes run over, a Thine eyes Shall fmart with what they foull discover : a Spend not in private, those thy realous drops, at But bew, and hacke; foare nesster trunke nor lops ? a Make beaven, and earth rebound, when thou discharges, e Plead not (like Paul) but roure (like Boanarges:) Nor let the beauty of the buildings bleare thee, Let not the terrors of the Rampiers feare thee; Let no man bribe thy fift, (J will advife thee) a Nor foule meanes force thee, nor let faire entice thee: Ramme up thine cares : Thy beart of flone floal be; a: Be deafe to them, as they are deafe to mee : or Goe, cry againflit. If they ache thee, why? o: Say, heavens great Lord commanded thee to cry : a My Altars cease to smooke; their boly fires at Are quenchs, and where prayers should, their fin afires; m The faineffe of their fornication fiyes or On coales of raging luft, and upward flyes, at And makes me fick : I beare the mournefull grones and beaut fighes of fuch, whose aking bones " Tb'oppresser grindes : Alau,their griefes implore me, "Their pray'rs, prefer'd with teares, plead lowd before me : & Bebold my formes, they have oppreft, and kill'd, or And bath'd their bands within the blood they fpill'd : ic The Reame of guiltleffe blood makes fuit unto me, es The voice of many bloads is mounted to me; a The vile prophaner of my facted Names, at He teares my titles, and mine honour maimes, a Makes Rhet rick of an oath, fiveares and for weares, a Rechs not my Mercy, nor my ludgement feares: "They cate stey drinke, they fleepe, they tire the night u In wanton dalliance, and uncleave delight, " Heavens winged Herald Ionas, up and goe To mighty Ninimely, Denounce my wee. a Ad.

" Hold out thy Trumpet, and with louder breath,

" Proclame my fudden comming, and their death.

The Authors Apologie.

Twas my morning Muse: A Muse whose spirit Transcends (I feare) the fortunes ofher merit; Too bold a Muse, whose sethers (yet in blood) She never bath'd in the Tyreneau Flood; A Muse unbreath'd, unlikely to attaine An easie honour, by so stout a Traine; Expect no losty Hazard, that shall stye A lessing pitch, to the deceived eye; If in her Downy Soreage, she but ruste So strong a Dove, may it be thought enough;

Beare with her, Time and Fortune may requite Your patient sufferance, with a fairer flight.

The generall Application.

To thee (Malfido) now I turne my Quill;
That God is still that God, and will be still.
The painfull Pastors take up lonab's roome:
And thou the Ninivite, to whom they come.

Medita. 1.

Ow great's the love of God unto his creature?
Or is his Wifedome, or his Mercy greater?
I know not whether: O th'exceeding love
Of highest God! that from his Throne above
Williend the brightnesse of his Grace to those That grope in darknesse, and his Grace oppose:
He helpes, provides, inspires, and freely gives,
As pleas'd to see us ravell our our lives;

He gives us from the heape, He measures not, Nor deales (like Manna) each his stinted lot, But daily fends the Doctors of his Spoufe, (With fuch like oyle as from the Widowes cruse Did iffue forth) in fulneffe, without wasting, Where plenty still was had, yet plenty lasting. I, there is care in heaven, and heavenly sprights, That guides the world, and guards poore mortall There is; else were the miserable state Of Man, more wretched and unfortunate Than falvage beafts: But Oth' abounding love Of highest God! whose Angells from above Dismount the Towre of Bliste, flye to and fro, Affifting wretched Man, their deadly foe. What thing is Man, that Gods regard is such? Or why should heave love retchless Man so much? Why?what are men?but quickned lumps of earth? A Feaft for Wormes; a bubble full of mirth; A Looking-glaffe for griefe; A flash; A minute; A painted Toombe, with putrifaction in it, A mappe of Death; A burthen of a fong; A winters Dust; A worme of five foot long: Begot in finne; In darknesse nourisht; Borne In forrow : Naked , Shiftlesse, and forlorne : His first voice (heard) is crying for reliefe; Alas! He comes into a world of griefe: His Age is finfull; and his Youth is vaine; His Life's a punishment; His Death's a paine; His life's a houre of loy; a world of Sorrow; His death's a winters night, that findes no morrow: Mans life's an Hower-glasse, which being run, Concludes that houre of joy, and so is done. lonab must goe; nor is this charge confinde To lend, but to all the world enjoyn'd; You irit rit;

equite

ill.

eature?

ofe:

H

You Magistrates, arise, and take delight
In dealing Iustice, and maintaining Right;
There lyes your Niniveh: Merchants arise,
And mingle conscience with your Merchandise:
Lawyers arise, make not your righteous Lawes,
A tricke for gaine; Let Iustice rule the cause:
Tradesnen arise, and plye your thriving shops,
With truer hands, and eate your meate with drops;
Paulto thy Tents, and Peter to thy Net,
And all must goe that course, which God hath set.

Great God awake us, in these drowsie times, Lest vengeance finde us, sleeping in our Crymes, Encrease succession in thy Prophets liew, For loc, thy Harvest's great, and workmen sew.

THE ARGUMENT.

But Ionah toward Tharfis went, A Tempest deth his course prevent: The Mariners are sore opprest, While Ionah steepes, and takes his rest.

Sell. 2.

But lonab thus bethought: The City's great,

Their

Their bearts are hardned, that they cannot heare:
Will greene wood burne, when so unapt's the seire?
Strange withe charge: Shall I goe to a place
Unknowne and sorraigne? Are me! bard's the case,
That righteous Ist'el must be thus neglected,
When Miscreants and Gentiles are respected:
How might I hope my words shall there succeed, which thrive not with the stockes I daily feed?
I how my God is genle, and swelinde,
To tender mercy, apt to change his minds
V pour the least repentance: Then shall I
Be deem'd as false, and shame my Prophesie.

O heavy burthen of a doubtfull mind!
Where shall I goe, or which way shall I wind?
My heart life I arms, looketh to and fro;
My Credit bids me, Stay; my God bids, Goe:
If Goe; my labour's lost, my shame's at hand:
If say, Lord! I transgresse my Lords command:
If goe; from had estate, to worse, I fall:
If say, I slide from had, to worse of all.
My God bids goe, my credit bids me slay:
My guilty scare bids sly another way.

So Jonah straight arose, himselse bedight With sit acoutrements, for hasty slight: In stead of staffe, he tooke a Shipmans weed, In stead of going, loe, he slyes with speed.

Like as a Hawke (that overmacht with might)
Doing fad penance for th'vnequall fight,
(Answ'ring the Faulkners second shout) does flee
From fist; turnes tayle to fowle, and takes a tree:
So lonab baulks the place where he was sent (To Nineveh) and downe to Iasta went:

B 4

He

Their

dife:

wcs,

ops, drops;

th fet.

ymes,

times,

He fought, enquired, and at last, he found A welcome Ship, that was to Tharfis bound, Where he may flye the presence of the Lord: He makes no stay, but straightway goes aboord, His hasty purse for bargaine findes no leisure, (Where fin delights, there's no account of treasure) Nor did he know, nor aske, how much his Fare: He gave : They tooke : all parties pleased are : (How thriftlesse of our cost, and paines, are we, Great God of heaven and earth, to fly from thee!) Now have the Sailors drunke their parting cup, They goe aboord; The Sailes are hoisting up; The Anchor's wayd . the keele begins t'obey Her gentle Rudder ; leaves her quiet Key, Divides the streames, and without winde or oare, She easly glides along the moving shore: Her swelling Canvace gives her nimbler motion, Sh'outstrips the Tide, and hies her to the Ocean: Forth to the deepe she launches, and outbraves The prouder billowes, rides upon the waves; She plies that courfe, her Compas hath enjoind her, And soone hath left the leffned land behind her; By this, the breath of heaven began to cease Calme were the Seas, the waves were all at peace, The flagging mainfaile flapt against her yeard, The uselesse Compasse, and the idle Card Were both neglected: Vpon every fide The gamesome Porpisce rumbled on the Tide. Like as a Mastiffe, when restrain'd a while, Is made more furious, and more apt for spoile, Or when the breath of man, being bard the course, At length breakes forth, with a farre greater force, Even so the milder breath of heaven, at last, Lets flye more fierce, and blowes a stronger blast: All on a fudden darkned was the Sky With gloomy clouds; heavens more refulgent eye Was all obscur'd : The aire grew damp and cold. And ftrong mouth'd Borens could no longer hold; Eolis lets loofe his uncontrouled breath, Whose language threatens nothing under death : The Rudder failes , The thip's at random driven The eye no object ownes, but Sea and Heaven: The Welkin stormes, and rages more and more, The raine powres down; the heavens begin to rore as they would split the massie Globe in funder, from those that live above, to those live under The Pilot's frighted; knowes not what to doe, His Art's amaz'd, in fuch a maze of woe; faces grow fad : Prayers and complaints are rife; each one's become an Orator for life: the windes above, the waters underneath, oyne in rebellion, and conspire death.

The Seamens courage now begins to quaile; ome ply the plump, whilft others firike the faile. Their hands are bufie, while their heares despaire; heir seares and dangers move their lips to praier: hey praid; but winds did snatch their words away, and lets their pray'rs not goe to whom they pray; but still they pray, but still the wind and weather to turn both ship & prai'rs they know not whether; heir gods were dease, their danger waxed greater; hey cast their wares out, and yet ne're the better; ut all this while was lowah drown'd in sleepe, and in the lower decke was buried deepe.

Medita, 2.

fure)

re:

e," ıp,

are,

on,

201

cean:

dher,

peace;

er;

de.

le, course, force,

blaft:

sec!)

.

Medita. 2.

Vt flay: this was a strange and uncouth word: Did lonah flye the presence of the Lord? What mister word is that? He that repleats The mighty Vniverse, whose lofty seat's Th'imperiall Heaven, whose footstoole is the face Of maffie Earth ? Can he from any place Be bair'd ? or yet by any meanes, excluded, That is in all things ? (and yet not included) Could lonah finde a refting any where So void, or secret, that God was not there? I stand amaz'd, and frighted at this word : Did Ionah flye the presence of the Lord? Mount up to Heaven, and there thou shalt discover The exc'lent glory of his kingly power: Bestride the earth beneath (with weary pace) And there he beares the Olive branch of Grace: Dive downe into th'extreme Abysse of Hell, And there in Justice doth th' Almighty dwell. What secret Cloister could there then afford A screene 'twixt faithlesse lonah, and his Lord ? I land was charg'd, to take a charge in hand; But Ionah turn'd his backe on Gods command; Shooke off his yoke, and wilfully neglected, And what was strictly charg'd, hee quite rejected; And so he fled the power of his Word; And so he fled the presence of his Lord. Good God! how poore a thing is wretched man So fraile, that let him strive the best he can, With every little blaft hee's overdon: If mighty Cedars of great Lebanon, Cannot the danger of the Axe withfland, Lord! how shall we, that are but bushes, stand : He

How fond, corrupt, how senselesse is mankinde? How faining deafe is he? How wilfull blinde? He ftops his eares, and finnes ; he shuts his cyes, And (blindfold) in the lap of danger flyes: He finnes, despaires, and then to ftint his gricfe, He chuses death, to baulke the God of life. Poore wretched finner, travell where thou wilt, Thy travell shall be burthen'd with thy guilt: Climb tops of hils, that profpects may delight thee, There wilthy fins (like wolves & bears) afright thee Fly to the vallies, that those frights may shun thee, And there, like Mountains, they will fal upon thee: Or to the raging Seas, (with lonab) goe; There will thy finnes like formy Neptune flow. discover Poore shiftlesse Man! what shall become of thee? Wher' ere thou fly'ft, thy griping finne will flee. But all this while, the thip where louab fleepes, Is tost and torne, and batter'd on the Deeps, And well-nigh split upon the threatning Rocke, With many a boiftrous brush, and churly knocke: Godhelpe all desp'rate voyagers, and keepe All fuch as feele thy wonders on the deepe.

> THE ARGUMENT. The Pilot thumps on Ionah's breft, And rowzesb lonah from his reft : They all cast Lotts, (being fore afrighted) The facred Lett on Ionah lighted.

Seat 3. He amazed Pilot finding no fuccesse, (But that the storme grew rather more tha less, For word:

e face

(e)

II.

rd ? ıd : nd;

ejected

ed man and: He a

ace:

For all their toilsonie paines, and needless prayer Despairing both of life, and goods) repaires
To toness drowsie Cabbin, mainly calls;
Calls lonab, lonab; and yet lowder yawles;
Yet lonabsleepes; and gives a strug, or two,
And snores, (as greedy sleepers use to doe.)
The wofull Pylot jogs him, (but in vaine.)
(Perchance he dreames an idle word, or twaine;
At length he tugs and pulls his heavy coarse,
And thunders on his brest, with all his force:
But (after many yawnes) he did awake him,
And (being both affrighted) thus bespake him:

« Arise, O Sleeper, O, arise, and see, or There's not a twiny thred 'twixt death, and there or This darkefour place (thou measur's) is thy grave, or And sudden Death rides proud on yonder wave, es Arife, O fleeper, O arife, and pray;

or Perhaps thy God will beare, and not fay, Nay: or Repaire the loffe of thefe our ill-fpent bourss,

e Perchance thy God's more powerfull than ours es Heavens hand may ceafe, and bave compassion on us, es And turne away this mischiefe it bash done us.

The sturdy Saylors (weary of their paine)
Finding their bootlesse labour lost, and vaine, Forbare their toilesome task, & wrought no more Expecting Death, for which they lookt before,
They call a parley, and consult together,
They count their sinne, (accusing one another)
That for his sinne, on his, this ill was wrought:
In sine, they all proove guilty of the fault:
But yet the question was not ended so:
One sayes, Twas thine offence; but be sayes, No,
But toma for thy sake, that accuses me;
Rusht forth a third (the worser of the three)

W

N

Bu

Hi

Ai

prayers and swore it was anothers, which (be bearing) Deny'd it flat, and faid, Twas thine for fivearing n came a fift, actufing all , (replying sut little elfe) they all chid bim for lying; One faid it was, another faid 'tmas not ; so all agreed, to frint the ftrife by Lottal and a Then all was whift, and all to prayer went; (For fuch a bus'nesse a fit complement) The Lott was cast; t'pleas'd God by Lots to sell, The Lott was caft, the Lott on Imah fell,

Medica, 3.

Sacred Subject of a Meditation! Thy Workes (O Lord) are full of Admiration, Thy judgements all are just, severe, and sure, They quite cut off, or elfe, by lancing, cure The festring fore of a rebellious heart, Left foule infection taint th'immortall part, How deepe a Lethargy doth this disease Bring to the flumbring foule; through careleffe cafe! Which once beingwak't, (as from a golden dreame) Lookes up, and fees her griefes the more extreme. How feeming fweet's the quiet fleepe of fin? Which when a wretched man's once nuzzl'd in. How foundly fleepes he, without feare, or wit? No fooner doe his armes infolded knit A drowzie knot upon his carelesse brest, But there he fnorts, and fnores in endleffe reft; His eyes are closed faft, and deafe his fares, And (like Endymion) fleeps himfelfe in yeares; His fenfe-bound heart relents not at the voice Of gentle warning, neither does the noife Of wainc

ſc, ce: n, him :

ie)

ine,

no mor fore;

other) ight:

10,

Of strong reproofe awake his sleeping eare, Nor louder threatnings thunder makes him heare So deafe's the finners eare, fo numb'd his fenfe, That finne's no corrofive, breeds no offence; For custome brings delight, deludes the heart, Beguiles the fense, and takes away the smart. But flay; Did one of Gods elected number, (Whose cies should never sleep, nor cie-lids fluber So much forget himselfe ? Did lonah fleepe, That should be warchfull, and the Tower keepe? Did lonab (the selected mouth of God) In flead of roaring judgements, does he nod? Did lonab fleepe fo found? Could he fleepe then, When (with the sudden sight of Death) the men (So many men) with yelling thrickes, and cryes, Made very heaven report? Were lonah's eyes Still clos'd, and he, not of his life bereaven ? Hard must be wink that thuts his eies fro heaven

O righteous Ist'el, where, O, where art thou? Where is thy Lampe? thy zealous Shepheard now Alas! the ray nous Wolves will worr thy Sheepe Thy Shepherd's carelesse, and is falne asseepe; Thy wandring flockes are frighted from their fold. Their Shepherd's gone, and Foxes are too bold: They, they whose smooth-fac'd words become the Their works diffent, & first begin to faulter; (altar And they that should be watchlights in the Temple Are snuffes, and want the oyle of good example; The chosen Watch-men that the tow'r should keep Are waxen heavy-ey'd, and falne asseepe.

Lord, if thy watchmen wink too much, awake the Although they stumber, do not quite for sake them

The flesh is weake, say not (if dulnesse seize Their heavie eies) sleep henceforth; take your ease nd we poore weaklings, when we sleepe in fin, nocke at our drowzie hearts; and never lin, ill thou awake our fin-congealed eyes; eft (drown'd in fleepe) we finke, and never rife.

> THE ARGVMENT. They question Ionah whence be came, His Country, and bis peoples Name. He makes reply : They mone their woe, And aske bis counfell what to doe.

> > Sect. 4.

A S when a Thiefe's appr'hended on suspect, And charg'd for some supposed malefact, rude concourse of people, straight accrewes, Vhose itching eares even smart to know the newess heguilty pris'ner (to himselfe betraid) lostands dejected, trembling and afraid: o Imah stood the Sailers all among, relofed round amid the ruder throng. s in a Summers evening you shall heare n Hives of Bees (if you lay close your eare) onfused buzzing, and seditious noise, uch was the murmure of the Saylers voice. a What was thy finfull act, that caufes this, Temple (Sayes one) wherein baft thou fo done amisse ? Tell us, What is thine Art (another fayes) uld keer That thou professell? Speake man, Whence awayes, rake the From what Confines cam'ft thou ? (A third replyes) What is thy Country ? and of what allies ? ce them What, art thou barne a Leng? or Gentile? subother? (Ere be could lend an anfiver sinte either) our eale or A fourth

An

nheare fenfe,

e: art, rt.

er,

d ? then.

s fluber eepe ?

e men crycs,

heaven

rd now

Sheepe

cir fold

bold:

ome th

; (altar mple .

e epe ;

es

u ?

or A fourth demands, Where bath thy breeding beene?
All what they askt, they all askt o're agen:
In fine, their eares (impatient of delay)
Becalm'd their tongueseto hear what he could for

So lonas (humbly rearing up his eyes)
Breaking his long-kept silence, thus replyes:

or f am an Hebrew, fonne of Abraham,

a From whom my Land did first derive ber name,

within the Land of Tury was I berne,

My name is Ionah, retchleffe, and forlorn:

" I am a Prophet : ab ! but woe is me, For from before the face of God I fice;

ex From whence (through a fobedience) I am driven :

at I feare Ichovah, the great God of Heaven :

ox I feare the Lord of Hofts, whose glorious hand ox Did make this flormy Sea, and massic Land.

So faid, their eares with double ravishment, Still hung upon his melting lips, attent, Whose dreadful words their harts so neer impiere That from themselves, themselves were quite di As in a fowltry-Summers cueningride, (When luftfull Phabus re-falutes his Bride, And Philomela gins her caroling) A Herd of Deere are browzing in a Spring, With eger appetite, misdeeming nought, Nor in fo deepe a filence fearing ought: A fudden cracke, or fonie unthought-of found, Or bounce of Fowlers Peece, or yelpe of Hound Difturbs their quiet peace wen ftrange smaze (gi Where (fenflefs halfe) through feare, they fran So stand the Sea-men, (as with Ghosts affrighte Entraunc'd with what this man of God recited! Their tyred limbes doe now waxe faint, and lit Their harts did year, their knees did fmite togeth Con

Ca

Congealed blood usurpt their trembling hearts, And left a faintnesse in their feeble parts : Who (trembling out diffracting language,) thus: ac Why baft thon brought this mischiefe upon us? at What bumour led thee to a place unknowne, at To feeke a ferraigne Land, and leave thine mone? oc " bat faith hadft thou, by leaving thine abode; or To thinke to flye the prefence of thy God? ex Wby baft then not obey'd (but thus transgreft) at The voice of God, whom thou acknowledgest? ei Art thou a Prophet, and doft thou amife? e What is the cause? and why hast thou done this? or what faill we doe? The tempoft lends no eare or To fruitleffe chat, nor doe the billowes beare, a Or marke our language : waves are not attent, ac Our goods they float, our needleffe paines are fpent : a Our Barke's not weather proofe : no Fort's fo flout, or To keepe continual flege and battry out, " The Lot accuses thee, thy words condemne thee, a The waves (thy deaths men) firive to overwhelme thee : " What shall we doe? Thou Prophet, speake, we way thee; "Thou fear'ft the Lord; Alie ! we may not flay thee :

a Or fhall we fave thee ? No, for then del five at The face of God, and fo defero ft to dye: a Thou Prophet, fpeake, what shall be done to thee, * That angry Seas may calme, and quiet be?

Medita, 4.

Twe leave a little to adjourn your text, (plext, JAnd ease my soule, my soule with doubts perand litt Can he be faid to feare the Lord, that flyes him? ce togeth Can word confession, when as deed denyes him? My

XUM

ould fa

es:

en:

ent,

mpiere quite di

e, ıg, ound, Houn maze (g

ey ftani

frighte ecited!

Con

(vers

A Feaft for Wormes.

My facred Muse harh rounded in mine earc, And read the myft'ry of a twofold feare: The first, a servile feare, for judgements fake ; And thus hells Fire-brands doc feare and quake. Thus Adam fear'd, and fled behinde a tree: And thus did bloody cain feare and fice.

Vnlike to this, there is a fecond kinde Of feare, extracted from a zealous minde, Full fraught with love, and with a conscience clear From base respects : It is a filiall seare ; A feare whose ground would just remaine, & level, Were neither Heaven, nor Hel, nor God, nor devil. Such was the feare that Princely David had; And thus our wretched loud fear'd, and fled : He fled asham'd, because his sinnes were such; He fled afnam'd, because his feare was much. He fear'd Jehoueb, other fear'd he none: Him he acknowledg'd; him he fear'd alone: Vnlike to those who (being blinde with errour) Frame many gods, and multiply their terrour. Th' Beyotians, god Apis did implore, God Affarthe Chaldrans did adore : Babel to the Despuring Dragen feekes; Th' Arabians, Aftarab ; tuna, the Greekes ; The name of Balus, the Affrians hallow, The Troians, Valla; Corinth, wife Apollo; Th' Arginians facrifice unto the Sanne; To light-foot Mercury bowes Macedon; Togod Folume, Lovers bend their knee: To Paver, those that faint, and fearfull be : Who pray for health, and strength, to Murcia those And to Cufferin, they that feare to lofe : To Miss, they that feare a womans tongue: To great Lucias, women great wish younge :

H

T

B

A

VI

Br

M

TH

Vp

AI

Th

AM

AN

(TI

Itn

AN

AN

Ext

The

How

How

Ò

To Esculapius, they that live opprest: And such to Quies, that delite rest.

O blinded ignorance of antique times,
How blent with errour, and how fluft with crimes
Your Temples were! And how adulterate!
How clogg'd with needleffe gods! How obstinate!
How void of reason, order, how consuse!
How full of dangerous and soulc abuse!
How fandy were thy grounds, and how unstable!
How many Deities! yet how unable!

Implore these gods, that lift to howle and barke, They bow to Dagon, Dagon to the Arke: But he to whom the feale of mercy's given, Adores lebovab, the great God of Heaven: Vyon the mention of whose facred Name, Meeke Lambs grow fierce, & the fierce Lions tame: Bright Sol shall stop, & heaven shall turn his course: Mountains shall dance, and Nepture flake his force & The Seas shall part, the fire want his flame, Vpon the mention of leboveb's Name : A Name, that makes the roofe of heaven to shake, The frame of Earth to quiver, Hell to quake : A Name, to which all Angells blow their Trumps ; A Name, puts frolicke man into his dumps, (Though ne're to blythe) A Name of high renown, It mounts the mecke, and beats the lofty downe; A Name, divides the marrow in the bone; A Name, which out of hard, and flinty stone, Extracteth hearts of fleth, and makes relent

Those hearts that never know what mercy meet.
O Lord! how great's thy Name in all the Land?
How mighty, are the wonders of they hand?
How is thy glory plac't above the heaven?
To tender mouthes of Sucklings thou heaf given Coerholes ear el, vil.

Coerdve pow'r, and boldnesse to reproove, When elder men doe what them not behoove. O Lord! how great's the power of thy hand? O God! how great's thy Name in all the Land?

THE ARGYMENT.
The Prophet doth his fault discover,
Perswades the men to cast him over:
They row, and toile, but doe no good,
They pray to be excus' d from blood.

Sect. s. CO lonab fram'd this speech to their demand; Ooc Not that I feeke to traverfe the command oc Of my deare Lord, and out of minde perverse, ec T'avoid the Ninivites, doe I amerce oc My felfe ; Nor that I ever beard you threat, a (Unleffe I went to Niniveh (the great) and doe the message sent ber from the Lord) That you would kill, or caft me over-board, me Doe I doe this ; 'Tis my deferved fine : or You all are guiltleffe, and the fault is mine: "Til, 'tis I alone, 'tis f am be t or The tempest comes from heaven, the sause from me; at You Shall not lofe a baire for this my fin, or Nor perish for the fault that mine hath bin ; at Lo, f the man am bere : Lo, I am be, e The root of all ; End your revenge on me; al fled the Sternall God; O, let me then a (Because I fled my God) so flye from men : a Redeeme your lives with mine ; Ab, wby foodld I's a Not quittleffe live; and you, not quilty, dye ?

e lan

or A

e 0

ox Se

Sof

New

Lov

Love

But

Thu

Betu

Some

Veng

Othe

Too

Save

His d

No, (

And i

And w

Loth

Toha

Jam the man, for whom thefe billowes dance, My death fall purchase your deliverance; Feare not to ceafe your feares ; but throw me in; alas! my foule is burthered with my fin, as And God is juft, and bent to bis Decree, Which certaine is, and cannot alter'd be; al am proclam'd a Traiter to the King of beaven, and earth : The windes with feedy wing Acquaint the Seas : The Seas mount up on bie, of And cannot reft, untill the Traytor dye; or Ob, caft me in, and let my life be ended; or Let Death make lustice mends, which Life offended; e. Ob, let the freeling waters me embalme; or So shall the Waves be flill, and Sea be calme, So faid, th'amazed Mariners grew fad, New Love abstracted, what old Feare did adde; Love called Pity : Feare call'd Vengeance in ; Love view'd the Sinner; Feare beheld the Sin; Love cry'd out, Hold; for better fav'd, than fpil'd; But Feare cry'd, Kill; O better kill, than kill'd: Thus plung'd with Passions, they distracted were Betwixt the hopes, and doubts, of Love and Feare; Some cry'd out, Save : if this foule decd we doe, Vengeance that haunted him, will haunt us too: Others cry'd, No; May rather death befall To one (that hath defery'd to dye) then all: Save him (fayes one,) Oh fave the man, that thus His dearest blood hath profer'd, to save us; No, (fayes another) vengeance must have blood, And vengeance strikes most hard, when most with-In fine (fay all:) Then let the Prophet die, (ftood. and we shall live; For Prophets cannot lye. Loth to be guilty of their owne, yet loth To hafte poore lonals death, with hope, thatboth Th'apTh'approaching evils might be at once prevented, With prayers and paines reutter'd, reattented, They try'd new wayes, despairing of the old, Love quickens courage, makes the spirits bold; They strove, in vaine, by toile to win the shore, And wrought more hard than er'e they did before; But now, both hands and hearts begin to quaile, (For bodies wanting reft, must faint and faile;) The Seas are angry, and the waves arise, Appeas'd with nothing, but a Sacrifice; Gods vengeance stormeth like the raging Seas, Which nought but lonah (dying) can appeale: Fond is that labour, which attempts to free, What Heaven hath bound by a divine decree: Ionab must dye, Heaven hath decreed it so, Jonab must die, or else they all die roo; Ionah must die, that from his Lord did flye; The Lott determines, lond then must dye; His guilty word confirmes the facred Lott, Ionas must dye then, if they perish not. at If Inflice then appoint, (fince be maft die, & Said they) we Actors of bis Tragedy, es (We ber met (Lord) a warrans to offend) oc O, parden blood-fied, that we maft insend; ac Though hot our bands, yet finall our bearts be cleure a or Then let not flamleffe confeientes beare or The point rous burden of a Mutders quitt, or Or pay the price of blood, that must be fall; ac For los, (deare Lord) it is thine have decres, or And we fad ministers of tustice be.

Medita.

1

T

T

T

D

T

T

W

Se

Th

Ca

W

Mo

Of

Th

And

Ifh

Exp

From Si

And

Medita. 5.

DVt stay a while; this thing would first be known: DCan lonab give himfelfe, and not his owne? That part to God, and to his Country, this Pertaines, fo that a slender third is his; Why then should Ionah doe a double wrong, To deale himselfe away, that did belong The least unto himselfe? or how could he Teach this, (Thou fhall not kill) if I man be His lifes owne Butcher > What, was this a deed That with the Calling he profest, agreed ? The purblinde age (whose workes (almost divine) Did mecrely with the oyle of Nature shine, That knew no written Law, nor Grace, nor God, To whip their conscience with a steely rod,) How much did they abhorre fo foule a fact ? When (led by Natures glimpse) they made an act, Selfe-murtherers should be deny'd to have The charitable honour of a grave: Can fuch doe fo, when long does amitle? What, longs, ifr'elt Teacher ! and doe this ? The Law of Charity doth all forbid, In this thing to doe that which lonah did; Morco're, in charity, 'tis thy beheft, Of dying men to thinke, and speake the best : The mighty Samfan did as much as this; And who dare fay, that Samfon did amiffe, If heavens high Spirit whilper'd in his eare Exprelle command to doe't? No wavering feare Drew backe the righteous Abram's armed hand From Haachs death, secur'd by heavens command. Sure is the knotthat true Religion tyes, And Love that's rightly grounded, never dyes;

ed.

re:

It seemes a paradoxe, beyond beliefe, That men in trouble should prolong reliefe; That Pagans (to withstand a Strangers Fate) Should be neglective of their owne estate.

Where is this love become in later age? Alas!'tis gone in endlesse pilgrimage From hence, and never to returne (I doubt) Till revolution wheele those times about : Chill brefts have stary'd her here, and she is driven Away ; and with Aftres fled to heaven. Poore Charity, that naked Babe is gone, Her honey's ipent, and all her store is done; Her winglesse Bees can finde out ne're a bloome, And crooked Ate dorb usurpe her roome : Nepenthe's dry, and Love can get no drinke, And curs'd Ardenne flowes above the brinke. Brave Mariners, the world your names shall hallow Admiring that in you, that none dare follow; Your friendship's rare, & your conversion strange, From Paganisme to zeale? A sudden change! Those men doe now the God of heaven implore, That bow'd to Puppers, but an houre before; Their zeale is fervent, (though but new begun) Before their egge-shels were done off, they run: As when bright Phabus, in a Summer tide, (New risen from the bosome of his Bride) Enveloped with mifty fogges, at length (ftrength; Treat Breakes forth, displayes the mist, with Southerne Dang Even fo these Mariners (of peerlesse mirrour) Their faith b'ing veil'd within the mist of errour, At length their zeale chac'd ignorance away, They left their Puppets, and began to pray. Lord how unlimited are thy confines, That still pursu'st man in his good designes !

hey Thy

Thy

Or I

From

Sod Thy

Tor

CIr

Thre

The Cuts

Tolo

Even Their

Forb

Torc

Their l'aba

They nd b

They

Thy mercy's like the dew of Hermon hill, Or like the Oyntment, dropping downward still From Aarons head, to beard; from beard to foot: So doe thy mercies drench us round about: Thy love is boundleffe; Thou art apt, and free, Toturne to Man, when Man returnes to thee.

THE ARGUMENT.

They cast the Prophet over board: The florme alay'd: They feare the Lord; A mighty Fift him quick devoures, Where he remained many boures.

Set. 6.

How L Ven as a member, whose corrupted fore Infests, and rankl's, eating more and more, nge, Threatning the bodies loffe (if not prevented) The wife chirurgion (all faire meanes attented) Cuts off, and with advised skill doth choose, Tolofe a part, then all the body lofe; Even so the feeble Sailors (that addresse Their idle armes, where heaven denyes fuccesse) Forbeare their thrivelesse labours, and devise To roote that Evil, from whence their harms arife : ngth; Treason is in their thoughts, and in their eares erne Pangerrevives the old, and addes new feares; Their hearts grow fierce, and every foule applyes l'abandon mercy from his tender eyes: They cease t'attempt what heaven so long withand bent to kill, their thoughts are all on blood; they whisper oft, each word is Deaths Alarme; hey hoyft him up ; Each lends a bufie arme, And

iven

e,

)

1: ur,

Thy

And with united powers they entombe His out-cast body in Thetu angry wombe : Whereat grim Neptune wip't his fomy mouth, Held his tridented Mace upon the South; The winds were whift, the billows danc't no more The storme allay'd, the heavens left off to rore, The waves (obedient to their pilgrimage) Gave ready passage, and surceast their rage, The skie grew cleare, and now the welcome light Begins to put the gloomy clouds to flight: Thus all on fudden was the Sea tranquill, The heav'ns were quiet, and the Waves were still As when a friendly Creditor (to get A long forborne, and much-concerning debt) Still plyes his willing debter with entreats, Importunes dayly, dayly thumps, and beates The batter'd Portalls of his tyred cares, Bedeating him with what he knowes, and heares The weary debter, to avoyd the fight He loathes, shifts here, and there, and ev'ry night Seckes out Protection of another bed. Yet ne'retheleffe (pursii'd and followed) His eares are still layd at with lowder volley Ofharder Dialect; He melancholy, Sits downe, and fighs, and after long foreflowing, (T'avoid his presence) payes him what is owing; The thankfull Creditor is now appeas'd, Takes leave, and goes away content, and pleas'd. Even so these angry waves, with restlesse rage, Accosted longs in his pilgrimage, And thundred Iudgement in his fearfull eare, Presenting Hubbubs to his guilty feare: The Waves rose discontent, the Surges beat, And every moments death, the billowes threat,

XUM

The

Awa

But

Intò

The

Her

'Tw

'Tw

And

Offi

And

But

Trei

Who

And

Thi

And

Prep

Who

For

Ope

Who

Eve

His

And

Till

Thr

And

Tol

losta!

Emb

W

The weather-beaten Ship did every minuit Await destruction, while he was in it : But when his (long expected) corps they threw Into the deepe, (a debt, through trefpaffe, due) The Sea grew kind, and all her frownes abated, Her face was fanooth to all that navigated. 'Twas finfull tonab made her forme and rage, 'Twas finfull Jonah did her storme affwage. With that the Mariners aftonisht were, And fear'd Jebouab with a mighty feare. Offring up Sacrifice with one accord, And vowing folemne vowes unto the Lord.

But he whose word can make the earth's foundatio Tremble, and with his Word can make reflation, Whose wrath doth mout the waves, & toss the Seas And make the calme & fmooth, whe e're he pleafe: This God, (whose mercy runs on endlesse wheele, eares And pulls (like Intob) Iustice by the heele) Prepar'da Fish, prepar'd a mighty Whale, ight Whose belly was both prison-house, and baile, For retchlesse lunab. As the two-leaf'd dore Opens, to welcome home the fruitfull store, Wherewith the harvest quits the Plowmans hope. Even fo the great Lewisthan fet ope

His beame-like lawes, (prepar'd for fuch a boone) And at a morfell, Iwallow'd Isnab downe.

Till dewy-cheek't Aurora's purple dye Thrice dappell'd had the ruddy morning skye, And thirde had spred the Curtaines of the morne, To let in Titan, when the Day was borne, letab was Tenant to this living Grave.

Embowel'd deepe in this Aupendions Cave.

Meditatio

ing,

ing

s'd.

,

nore re,

light

Meditatio 6.

O, Death is now, as alwayes it hath bin, The just procured stipend of our finne: Sinne is a golden Causie, and a Road Garnisht with joyes, whose pathes are eve & broad But leads at length to death, and endleste griefe, To torments, and to pains, without reliefe. Iustice feares none, but maketh all afraid, And then falls hardest, when 'tis most delaid, But thou reply'ft, Thy finnes are daily great, Yet thou fitt'ff uncontrold upon thy feat; Thy wheat doth flourish, and thy barnes do thrive dso Thy sheepe encrease, thy sonnes are all alive, and thou art buxom, and hast nothing scant, Finding no want of any thing, but want, Whil'ft others, whom the fquint-ey'd world count d fo Sit fadly drooping in a melancholy, (holy, Dear With brow dejected, and downe-hanging head, Or take of almes, or poorely begge their bread: But young man, know there is a Day of doome, The Feast is good, untill the reck'ning come. The time runnes fastest, where is least regard; The stone that's long in falling, falleth hard; There is a dying day, (thou prosp'rous foole) When all thy laughter shall be turn'd to Doole, Thy roabes to tort'ring plagues, & fell tormenting das Thy whoops of loy, to howles of fad lamenting: Thy tongue shall yell, and yawle, and never stop, And wish a world, to give for one poore drop, To flatter thine intolerable paine; The wealth of Plute could not then obtaine nose rho n re

meti

mtin laft deat

s out meti

ikes

meti

d for ere v leng ncer

r day efher

e tel

eaf ri

Deat

at kr orldli

inutes freedome from that hellish rout, ofe fire burnes, and never goeth out: rhouse, nor land, nor measur'd heaps of wealth, n render to a dying man, his health: rlife on earth is like a thred of flax, at all may touch, and being toucht, it cracks. As when an Archer snooteth for his sport, metimes his fhaft is gone, sometimes'tis short, oroa mtimes o'th'left hand wide; fomtimes o'th right; efe, last (through often tryall) hits the White; death sometimes with her uncertaine Rover, sour Superiours (and so shootes over) metimes for change, the strikes the meaner fort, ikes our inferiours (and then comes short) metimes upon the left hand wide the goes, arive do (ftill wounding fome) the ftrikes our foes; d sometimes wide upon the right hand bends, ere with imparrial shafts, she strikes our friends; length, (through often tryall) hits the White, ount d fo strikes us into Eternall night. holy, Death is a Kalender compos'd by Fate, ncerning all men, never out of Date : r dayes Deminicall are writ in blood; eshewes more bad daies, then she sheweth good; e tels when dayes, & monthes, & termes expire, rairing the lives of mortalls by her squire. Death is a Purfivant, with Eagles wings, at knocks at poor mens doors, & gates of Kings. orldling, beware betime; death sculks behind thee nting das the leaves thee, fo will Iudgement find thee.

ad: ac, le,

ıg:

THE ARGUMENT.

within the bowels of the Fish. Ionah laments in great anguifo; God heard bu pray'r, at whose command, The Fift differe'd him on the Land.

Sell. 7.

Hen lovab turn'd his face to heav'n, and pre Within the bowels of the Whale, and faid, at I ery'd out of my balefull misery

a Pato my Gad, and he hatb beard my cry;

at From out the paunch of bell I made a worfe, or And thou haft answer'd me, and beard my twyce:

at Into the Deepes and bottome thou baft throwns me, of Thy Surges, and thy Waves bave past upon me. or Then Lord (faid 1) from thy refulgent fight et I am expell'd, I am forfahen quite; et Nay'thleffemhile thefe my wretched eyes remaint, at Vato thy Templewill I looke agains. or The boyfirom Waters compaffe me about, at My body shreats, to let ber pris'mer out, The boundleffe depebencies'd me, (almost dead) at The weeds are wrapt about my fainting bead,

as I liv'd on earth rejeffed at thing hand, as And a perpetuall pris ner in the Land; at Yet thou wilt caufe my tife t'afcend at langel, er From out this pit, O Lord, my God, my Strength;

or When as my foule was over-whelm'd, and faint, or I had recourfe to thee, did thee acquaint or With the condition of my wofull cafe, as My cry came to thee, in thine boly Place.

XUM

rith

Ple 1

rith

But hofe hofe

ter is ou his v hen ifclo orec

here

Wel

K Ho he fu

ut w or P nd fi

ford of he

Vpc

lade hrou hat t mai

s me

hofo to Vanities themselves betake, tono muce thy mercies, and thy love for fake: ro thee I'le facrifice in endleffe dayes, rith voice of thankes, and ever-founding praise: The pay my vowes; for all the world records with one confent, Salvation is the Lords. But he (whose word's a deed, whose breath's a law; hose just command implies a dreadfull awe, hose Word prepar'd a Whale upon the Deepe, tend, and wait for lenab's fall, and keepe d pre is out-cast body safe, and soule secure) his very God (whose mercy must endure, hen heaven, & earth, when fea, & all things faile) isclos'd his purpose, and bespake the Whale, oredeliver I mab to his hand; hereat the Whale difgorg'd him on the land.

Medita, 7.

Well record, a holy Father fayes, "He teaches to deny, that faintly prayes: he fuit furceases, when defire failes, ut whoso prayes with fervency, prevailes; or Prayt's the key that opes th'eternall gate, nd findes admittance, whether earl' or late; forces audience, it unlockes the care * (heare. Theavens great God (though deafe) it makes him Vpon a time Babel (the worlds faire Queene lade drunk with choller, and enrag'd with fpleen) brough fell disdaine, derraigned war 'gainst them hat tender homage to levulatem: maiden-fight it was, yet they were ftrong s men of Warre; The Battaile lasted long,

t:

Much blood was shed, and spilt on either fide, That all the ground with purple gore was dyde; In fine, a Souldier of lerufalem : (barilla hight, (the Almner of the Realme) Chill'd with an ague, and unapt to fight, Into Jufitia's Cattle tooke her flight, Whereat great Babels Queene commanded all, To lay their siege against the Castle wall; But poore Tymilla (not with warre acquainted) Fearing Chariffa's death, fell downe, and fainted; Dauntlesse Pradenia rear'd her from the ground, Where she lay (pale, and senselesse) in a swound She rub'd her temples, and at length awaking, She gave her water, of Fidifa's making, And faid, Cheare up, (deare fifter) though our fe Hath tane us Captives, thus befieg'd with woe, We have a King puillant, and of might, Will fee us take no wrong, and doe us right, If we poffesse him with our sad complaint, Cheare up, wee'I fend to him, and him acquaint Tymifa (new awak'd from fwound) replyes, Our Castle is begirt with enemies, And troops of arnied men beliege our walls, Then fuer Death, or worfe then death befalls To her, (who ere she be) that stirres a foot, Or rashly dares attempt to venture out, Alas! what hope have we to find reliefe; And want the means that may divulge our grief Within that place a jolly Matron dwell'd, Whose lookes were fixt and sad; her left hand he A payre of equal ballances; her right, A two-edg'd fword, her eyes were quicke & brigh Not apt to fquint, but nimble to difcerne; Her visage lovely was, yet bold and sterne;

Her

The

Ini

But

But

Ch

Wh

Wh

And

Oral

You

Pro

And

Wit

And

In f

Atti

But

For

But

Top

But

The

Tog

The

But

Wit

The

Till

In f

Oral

Orași

So h

Her name Iufinia; to her they make Their moane; who, well advis d, them thus before

Faire Maidens, more beloved then the light, Inic the fuffrance of your wofull plight, But pitty's fond alone, recures no griefe, But fruitlesse falls, unlesse it yeeld reliefe. Cheare up, I have a Messenger in store, Whole speed is much, but faithfull truft is more. Whose nimble wings shall cleave the flitting skies, And fcorne the terrour of your enemles, Oracio hight, well knowne unto your King, Your mellage the shall doe, and tydings bring, Provided that Fidifa travaile with her, And fo (on Christs name) let them goe together. With that, Fidiffa having ta'ne her errant, And good Gratio with Infinia's Warrant, In flence of the midnight tooke her flight, Arriving at the Court that very night; But they were both as flames of fite hot, For they did fly as fwift, as Cannon fhot, Butthey (left fudden cold fhould do them harme) Together clung, and kept each other warme : But now, the kingly gares were fpar'd, and lockt, They call'd, but none made answer, the they knocks Together joyning both their force in one, They knocks againe, Yet answer there was mone; But they that never learn'd to take deniall. With importunity made further tryall ; The Kingheard well, although he lift not freake, Till they with ftrokes the gate did wel-nie breake s In fine, the brazen gates flew open wide ; Oratio moov'd her fine, The King replide, Oratio was a faire, and welcome guelt;

So heard her suints guilled her request.

Fraile

d) ed:

und.

ur fe

e, ls rick d he rigi

,

A Feaft for Wormes.

34

Fraile Man, observe; In thee the practice lies, Let facred Meditation moralize: Let Pray'r be fervent, and thy Faith intire, And heaven, at last, will grant thee thy defire.

> THE ARGUMENT. The ferend time was Ionah fent To Niniyeh: now Ionah went: Against ber crying simmes be cry'd, And ber destruction prophecy'd.

> > Sea. 8.

ONce more the voice of heav'ns-high-Comader (Like horrid claps of heav'ns-dividing-thun-Or like the fall of waters breach (the noise B'ing heard farre distant off) such was the voice) Came downe from heav'n to longh new-borne-Tore-baptized lonab, and thus began; (Many Fully Am la God? Or art then ought but Duft? More then a man? Or are my Lawes unjust? Am J a God, and fall I not command? Art thou a man and darft my Lawes withft and? Shall I (the motion of whole breath shall make Both Earth and Seas and Hell, and Heaven quake) By thee (fond man) that I be thus neglected; And thy presumption (cape uncorrected ? The faith bath fav'd thee (Ionah:) Sin no more, Left werfe things happen after, then before; drife; let all th'affembled pow'rs ogres To doe the Embaffage I impose on thee; Trifle no more; and, to awayd my fight, Thinks not to bankle me with a formed flight,

When Theg That Awa Den

(Sce

Whe Wit His ' Hish His And So Io Was (der, Ofhe And T'eff TO N

Each And : So(be No Whic A Cit Like r A Cit

Bette Cit Who Bring Alth But

When

Arife, and goe to Ninivch (the great) Where broods of Gentiles have ta'ne up their feat, The great Queene rigent mother of the Land, That multiplies in people like the fand; Away, with wings of time, (fle not efforne thee) Denounce thefe fiery ludgements, I enjoyme thee. Like as a yongling that to schoole is sent, (Scarce weaned from his mothers blandishment Where he was cockerd with a ftroking hand) With stubborne heart, denyes the lust command His Tutor wills: But being once corrected, His home-bred ftomack's curb'd, or quite ejected: His crooked nature's chang'd, and mollified, And humbly scekes, what stoutly he deny'd; So Ionah's ftout, perverse, and stubborne hart, Was hardned once, but when it felt the Imart der, Ofheav ns avenging wrath, it straight dissolv'd, And what it once avoided, now refolv'd T'effect with speed, and with a carefull hand Fully replenish'd with his Lords Command, To Niniveb he flyeth like a Roe, Each ften the other strives to overgoe; And as an Arrow to the marke does flye, So(bent to flight)flyes he to Winteb. Now Niniveba mighty City was, Which all the Cities of the world did paffe. A City which o're all the rest aspires, Like midnight-Phabe mongst the leffer fires, A City, which (although to men was given) Better beseem'd the Majestie of Heaven: City Great to God, whose ample wall, Who undertakes to mete with paces, shall fring Phebu thrice to bed, ere it be dun, Although with dawning Mefferm begun.)

But

hun-

(e) rne-

When loss had approacht the City gate, He made no stay to rest, nor yet to bait, No supple oyle, his fainting head anoints, Stayes not to bathe his weather-beaten joynts, Nor smooth'd his countenance, nor slick t his skin, Nor craved he the Hostage of an Inne, To ease his aking bones (with travell fore) But went as speedy, as he sled before; The Citios greatnesse made him not resule, To be the trump of that unwelcome newes His tongue was great with; But (like thuders noise) His mouth stow ope, and out there rutht a voyce.

Whendemy check t Autora fault difflay
Her golden tocky, and fummon up the Day
Twice trainey times, and reft her drowny head
Twice twenty nights, in aged Tithous hed,
Then Nineveh this place of high renamne,
Shall be destroy'd, and stoke, and batterd downe.

He fate not downe to take deliberation,
What manner people were they, or what Nation,
Or Gent', or Salvage; nor did he enquier
What place were most convenient for a Cryer,
Nor like a sweet-lipe Orator did steare,
Or tune his language to the peoples care,
But bold, and rough, yet full of Majestic,
Lift up his trumper, and began to cry,
When forly times Dow Phabus stall fulfill

Wien forty times Don Phannaghan futful His loguisth courfe upons biolympian Hill, Then Niniwch (the Worlds gross monder) field Startle the Worlds foundation muchine full,

The difinall Propher Annex not to admire The Cities pompe, or peoples qualic attire, Nor yet (with fond affection) does place The approaching downfall of to brave a City,

316

TI

Sk

C

W

Vp

Re

Ho

Th

Vp

He

His

And

Yet

A c

In C

Arc

He

The

But

Den Eur

The

But

South

But dauntlesse he his dreadfull voice extends, Respectibelie, whom this bolder cry offends, won forsy days so ill be expired, and cun, And ibst poore inch of time drawne out and done, Then Ninivela (the worlds Imperial throne) Shall not be left a stone, upon a stone.

Meditat. 8.

D Vt stay; Is God like one of us ? Can he, OWhen he hath faid it, alter his Decree? Can he that is the God of Truth, difpence With what he vow'd ? or offer violence Vpon his facred luftice ? Can his minde Revolt at all? or vary like the winde? How comes this alteration then, that He Thus limiting th'effect of his Decree Vpon the expiring date of fortie dayes, He then performes it not ? But ftill delayes His plagues denounc't, & Iudgment stil forbeares, And itead of forty Dayes gives many yeares? Yet forty Dayes, and Niniveb shall perish? Yet forty yeares, and Ninveb doth flourish: A change in man's infirme; in God 'tis ftrange; In God, to change his Will, and will & Change, Are divers things : When He repeats from ill, He wills a change; he changes not his Will; The subject's chang'd, which secret was to us, But not the mind, that did dispose it thus; Denounced Indgement God doth of prevent, Eur neither changes counsell, nor intent: The voyce of heaven doth feldome threat perditis But with expresse, or an imply'd condition, So that if Number returne from ill. God turnes his hand, he doth not twee his Will.

in,

(c)

The stint of Niniveb was forty dayes, To change the Byas of her crooked wayes: To some the time is large; To others, small; To some 'tis many yeares; And not at all To others; Some an hower have, and some Have scarce a minute of their time to come: Thy span of life (Matfido) is thy space, To call for mercy, and to cry for grace. Lord! what is man, but like a worme that crawles Open to danger, every foot that falls > Death creeps (unheard) and steals abroad (unscen) Her darts are sudden, and her arrowes keene, Vncertaine when, but certaine she will strike, Respecting King and Begger both alike; The stroke is deadly, come it soone, or late, Which once being strucke, repenting's out of date; Death is a minute, full of fudden forrow : et Then live to day, as thou maist dye to morrow.

THE ARGYMENT.
The Ninivites believe the word,
Their hearts returne unto their Lord;
In him they put their enely trust:
They mourne in Sackeloth, and in dust.

Sell. 9.

So said; the Ninivites believ'd the Word,
Believed Ionas, and believ'd the Lord;
They made no pause, nor jested at the newes
Nor slighted it, because it was a Iew's
Denouncement: No, Nor did their gazing eyes
(As taken captives with such novelties)

Admire

No

Th

To

No

Or !

But

And

Bef

And

Wit

The

And

Wr:

Los

And The Lea

The

No

The

Had

Nor By

(Co

Of

For

Diff

In d

(Hi

Admire the strangers garb, so quaint to theirs, No idle chat possess their itching cares, The whil'it he spake: nor were their tongues on her To raile upon, or interrupt the Cryer, Nor did they question whether true the message, Or falle the prophet were, that broght th'embaffage But they gave faith to what he faid; relented, And (changing their mif-wandred waics) repented; Before the fearching Ayre could coole his word, Their hearts returned, and beleev'd the Lord; And they, whose dainty lips were cloy'd while ere, With cates, and vyands, and with wanton cheare, Doe now enjoyne their palats not to taft The offall bread, (for they proclam'd a Fast) And they, whose looser bodies once did lye Wrapt up in Robes, and Silks of Princely Dye, Lo now, in stead of Robes, in rags they mourne, And all their Silkes doe into Sack-cloath turne, They read themselves sad Lectures on the ground, Learning to want, as well as to abound; The Prince was not exempted, nor the Peere, Nor yet the richest, nor the poorest there; The old man was not freed, (whose hoary age Had ev'n almost outworne his Pilgrimage;) Nor yet the yong, whose Glasse (but new begun) By course of Nature had an age to run :

For when that fatall Word came to the King, (Convay'd with speed upon the nimble wing Of slitting Fame) He straight dismouss his Throne Forsakes his Chaire of State he sate upon, Distrob'd his body, and his head discrown'd, In dust and ashes grou'ling on the ground, And when he rear'd his trembling corps againe,

(His haire all filthy with the dust he lay in)

He

lmire en)

late;

W.

XUM

He clad in pensive Sackeloth, did depose Himselse from State Imperiall, and chose To live a Vaffall, or a bafer thing, Then to usurpe the Scepter of a King: (Respecticite of his pompe) he quite forgate He was a Monarch mindleffe of his State. He neither fought to rule, or be obay'd, Nor with the Sword, nor with the Scepter Iway'd.

Meditet, o.

Such IS fasting then the thing that God requires? Such ICan fasting expiate, or flake those fires Thei That finne hath blowne to fuch a mighty flame ? Thei Can fackcloth cloth a fault? or hide a shame? But t Can ashes clenfe thy blot > or purge thy offence? When Or doe thy hands make heaven a recompence, By frowing dust upon thy bryny face? Ofpa Are there trickes to purchase heavenly grace? The No, though thou pine thy selfe with willing want; No c Or face looke thinne, or Carkas ne're fo gaunt, Can Although thou worfer weeds then fackcloth wearer The Or naked goe, or fleepe in faires of haire, Ofle Or though thou chuse an ash-tub for thy bed, The Or make a daily dunghill on thy head, For n Thy labour is not poyl'd with equaligaines, It fad For thou hast mought but labour for thy paines: t yes Such holy madnesse God rejects, and loathes, That finkes no deeper, than the sking, or cloathes Mour Tis not thine eyes which (taught to weepe by art); thi Looke red with teares, (not guilty of thy hart) With Tis not the holding of thy hands fo bye, Nor yet the puter fquinting of thise aye;

XIIM

Neve

; thi

: thi

our

Nor

Who

Tis

Nor Nor Nor No,

Tis not your mimmick mouthes, your antick faces, Your Scripture phrases, or affected Graces, Nor prodigall up-banding of thine eyes, Whole gashfull balls doe seeme to pelt the skyes; Tis not the firit reforming of your haire So close, that all the neighbour skull is bare; Tis not the drooping of thy head fo low, Nor yet the lowring of thy fullen brow, Nor wolvish howling that disturbs the aire, Nor repetitions of your tedious prayer; No, no, 'tis none of this, that God regards; Such fort of fooles their owne applause rewards, Such pupper-plaies, to heave are strange, & quaint, Their fervice is unsweet, and foully taint, Their words fall fruitleffe from their idle braine; But true repentance runnes in other ftraine; Where fad contrition barbours, there the heart (Sa Is truly acquainted with the fecret fmart Ofpast offences, hates that bosome fin The most, which most the soule tooke pleasure in ; sce? vant; No crime unfifted, no finne unpresented nt, Can lurke unscene; and seene, none unlamented; carci The troubled foule's amaz'd with dire aspects Oflesier sinnes committed : and derects The wounded Conscience; it cryes amaine For mercy, mercy, cryes, and cryes againe; It fadly grieves, and foherly laments, t yernes for grace, reformes, returnes, repents; ather Mounts up the heavenly Throne, & findeth favour;
y art); this is it, whose valour never failes,
With God it stourly weedles ; this is it, that pierces heaven above, Never returning home (like Nash's Dove)

6 3

.

283

But brings an Olive leafe, or some encrease, That workes Salvation, and eternall Peace.

> THE ARGUMENT. The Prince and people fasts, and prayes; God beard, accepted, lik'd their waies : Voontheir timely true repentance, God rever & and chang'd bis sentence.

> > Sell. To.

"Hen fuddenly, with holy zeale inflam'd, He caus'd a generall Act to be proclam'd, By fage advice, and counfell of his Pecres;

& Let neither man, nor child, of youth, or years or From greatest in the City, to the least,

Nor Herd, nor pining Flock, nor hungry beaft, ex Nor any thing that draweth ayre, or breath,

On forfeiture of life, or present death, er Presume to taste of nourishment, or food, Cr move their hungry lips, to chew the cud;

From out their eyes let Springs of water burft, With tears (or nothing) let the flake their third

Morco're, let every man (what e're he be) of Ofhigher quality, or low degree, or D'off all they weare (excepting but the same

That nature craves, & that which covers fhame

Their nakednesse with fackcloth let them hide, And mue the veft'ments of their filken pride;

And let the brave cariering Horse of Warre,

(Whose rich Caparisons, and Trappings are "The glorious Wardrobe of a Victors show) et Lethim disroabe, and put on sackcloth too;

XUM

Th

Th Th Th

Lei

Bu

Lei

An

For Ha Thi

W

Or

Tra

And

Vp

And

Th

So

Appro

Appre

ecau

He far Hefav He fay

H'app Reper

Reper

So G

He to Thee

Cance

The Oxe (ordain'd for yoke) the Affe (for load) The Hotse (as well for race, as for the roade) The burthen-bearing Camell (ftrong and great) The fruitfull Kine, and every kinde of Neate, Let all put fackcloth on, and spare no voice, But cry aloud to heaven, with mighty noise; Let all men turne the bias of their wayes, And change their fiercer hands, to force of praife: For who can tell, if God (whose angry face Hath long bin waining from us) will embrace This flender pittance of our best endeavour? Who knowes, if God will his intent persever? Or who can tell, if he (whose tender love Transcends his sharper Justice) will remove And change his high decree, & turne his sentence years «Vpon a timely, and unfain'd repentance? And who can tell, if heaven will change the lot, That we, and ours may live, and perish not? So God perceiv'd their works, & faw their waies, Approv'd the faith, that in their works did blaze, approv'd their works, approv'd their works the raecause their faith & works wet both together: (ther urft, He saw their faith, because their faith abounded; third He saw their works, because on faith they grounded He faw their faith, their works, and fo relented, H'approv'd their works, their faith, & fo repented; Repented of the plagues, they apprehended; hamt Repented of the evill, that he intended : ide, to God the vengeance of his hand withdrew, He tooke no forfeiture, although 'twere due; The evill, that once he meant, he now forgot, Cancell'd the forfeit bond, and did it not.

Meditatio

eaft,

1,

d;

me

de;

e,

re.

Meditat, 10.

TEE, into what an obbe of low estate The foule that feekes to be regenerate, Must first descend; before the ball rebound, It must be throwne with force against the groun The feed increases not in fruitfull cares, Nor can she reare the goodly stalke she beares, Vnleffe bestrow'd upon a mould of earth, And made more glorious by a second birth: So man, before his wisedome can bring forth The brave exploits of truly noble worth, Or hope the granting of his finnes remission, Wher He must be humbl'd first in sad contrition. n the The plant (through want of skill, or by negled) n blo If it be planted from the Sunnes reflect, Wh Or lacke the dew of scasonable showres, Wher Decayes, and beareth neither Fruit, nor Flowres Dur f So wretched Man, if his repentance hath Alas No quickning Sun-shine of a lively Faith, Dr fh: Or not bedew'd with showres of timely teares, in en Or workes of mercy (wherein Faith appeares) My His prayers and deeds, and all his forced grones, My C Are like the howles of dogs, and works of Drone The wife Chirurgeon, first (by letting blood) Weakens his Patient, ere he does him good; Before the Soule can a true comfort finde, The Body must be profirate, and the Minde Truly repentive, and contrite within, And loathe the tawning of a bosome fin-

But Lord ! Can Man descrive? Or can his best Doe lustice equall right, which he transgreft? When Dust and Ashes mortally offends, Can Duft and Ashes make eternall mends?

e fu

Vhat

oth

01 on th

Thou

Thou

like

Dur I

Toth

Thon

Heaven unjust ? Must not the recompence efull equivalent to the offence? What mends by mortall Man can then be given o the offended Majesty of heaven ? O Mercy ! Mercy ! on thee my foule relyes, On thee we build our Faith, we bend our eyes; thou fill'ft my empty ftrain, thou fill'ft my tongue; Thou art the subject of my Swan-like fong; like pinion'd pris ners at the dying tree, Dur lingring hopes attend and wait on thee; Arraign'd at Iustice barre) prevent our doome; to thee with joyfull hearts we cheerly come; Thon art our Clergy; Thou that dearest Booke. Wherein our fainting eyes defire to looke; nthee, we trutt to reade (what will release us) a bloody Characters, that name of I ESVS, What shall we then returne the God of heaven? Where nothing is (Lord) nothing can be given; Our foules, our bodies, ftrength, and all our pow'rs, Alas!) were all too little, were they ours : or shall we burne (untill our life expires) n endlesse Sacrifice in Holy fires > My Sacrifice shall be my HE ART intire, My Christ the Altar, and my Zeale the Fire.

THI

3, ca)

es,

nes, rone beft

$)

THE ARGUMENT.
The Prophet disconvented prayes
To God, that he would end bu dayes;
God blames his wrath so unreptes,
Reproves his unadous dreques.

Sett. 11.

Byt this displeasing was in lonal's eyes,
His heart grew hot, his blood began to rise,
His eyes did sparkle, and his teeth strucke sire,
His veines did boile, his heart was full of ire a
At last brake forth into a strange request,
These words he pray'd, and mumbl'd out the rest

Was not, O was not this my thought (O Lord) Before I fled ? Nay, was not this my word, The very word, my jealous language vented, When this mis-bap mought well have beene prevented? Was there, O was there not a juft sufpect, My preaching would procure this effect? For Lord, I how of old, thy tender love ; Tknew the pow'r, thou gav'ft my tongue, would move Their Adamantine hearts; I knew'twould than Their frezen fpirits, and breed relenting awe; I knew (great God) upon their true repentance, That thou determin'dft to reverfe thy fentence ; For well I knew, thou wert a gracious God, Of long forbearance, flow to wfe the Red I knew, the power of thy Mercies bent The fireneth of all thy other workes out went; I knew thy tender kindueffe , and bow loath Thou wert to punish, and bew flew to wrath , ofa

And a

No

For a date exu et moi at les et me t

this;

be thy cut !

y bre

Reg I

an to hill u bett

So W

furning thy Indgements, and thy plagues preventing, thy mind reverging, and of ev'il repenting: th.refere (O therefore) upon this persmafions fledto Tarthith, there to make evafien, refave thy credit (Lord) to fave mine owne: For when this blaft of reale is over-blowne, and facheloth left, and they furcease to mourne, Voca they (like dogs) shall to their vomit turne, (by) ll vilipend thy Sacred Word, and soffe it, sying, Was that a God, or this a Prophet? bey'll scorne thy judgements, and shy threats despise, And call thy Prophets, Meffengers of tyes. Now therefore (Lord) bow downe attentive care, For all my burchen's more than fleft can beare) take speed (O Lord) and banish all delayes, eximquish (now) the Tapor of my dayes: reft et not the minutes of my time extend, at let my wresched bowers finde an end ; at not my fainting foirit longer flay this fraile man fion of diffempered clay: bethred's but weake, my life depends upon, ,cut that thred, and let my life be done; y breft flands faire, firihe then, and firihe againe, mought but dying can affrage my paine : mey I rather dye,than live in Shame ; uer it is to leave, and yeeld the game, an toile for what, at length, must needs be lost; hill me, for my beart is fore imboft : u latter boone unto thy servant give; better 'tis for me, to die than live. So wretched lonab: But lebove b thus a boot's it fo to florme outragions? mes it thus my fervious beart to fivell : anger belpe thee, Ionah ? doft then well? 71

Meditat:

e,

Medita. 12.

Ow poor a thing is man! how rain's his mind How strage, how basel &way'ring like the win How uncouth are his wales ! how full of danger! How to himselfe, is he himselfe a ftranger ! His heart's corrupt, and all his thoughts are His actions finfull, and his words prophane, His will's depray'd, his fenfes are beguil'd, His reason's darke, his members all deil'd, His hafty feet are swift, and prone to ill, His guilty hands are ever bent to kill, His tongue's a spunge of venome, (or of werk) Her practice is to fweare, her skill to curfe; His eyes, are fire-balls of luftfull fire, And outward helps to inward foule defire. His body is a well-erected flation, But full of folly and corrupted paffion: Fond love; and raging luft; and foolish feares; Griefes overwhelmed with immoderate reares Excessive joy ; prodigeous defire; Vnholy anger, red and hot as fire; Thefe daily clog the foule, that's fast in prison, From whose encrease this lecklesse brood is rise Respectlesse pride, and luffull idlenesse, Bafe ribbauld talke, and lothfome drunkenneffe Faithleffe Defpaire, and vaine Curiofity Both falle, yet double-tongu'd Hypocrifie; Soft flattery, and haughty-ey'd Ambition; Heart-gnawing Hatred, and fquint-ey'd Sufpi Selfe-eating Envie, envious Detraction, Hopeleffe difruit, and too too fad Dejettlon; Revengefull Malice, hellish Blasphemy. Idolatry, and light Inconflancy;

From Separte There is le built

Dar

Dan T W

Stan Of fi

Day,

And Ho

How

Withi

Whic

Burft

Lo

Nip

Lord

Vntill

A Feaft for Wormes.

49

Daring Presumption, wry-mouth's Derision, Damned Apostasie, Fond superstition, What heedfull watch? Ah what contin'all ward? How great respect? and howerly regard, Stands man in hand to have; when fuch a brood Of furious hell-hounds fecke to fuck his blood? Day, night, and hower, they rebell, and wraftle, and never cease, till they subdue the Castle. How flight a thing is man? how fraile and brittle? How seeming great is he? How truly little? Within the bosome of his holiest works, some hidden Embers of old Adam lurkes; Which oftentimes in men of pureft wayes, Burst out in flame, and for a season blaze. (rectios Lord, teach our hearts, and give our foules di-Subduc our passions, curb our stout affections, Nip thou the bud, before the bloome begins: Lord, shield thy servants from presumptuous fins.

THE ARGUMENT,
A Booth for fhelter Ionah made;
God fent a Gourd for better shade;
But by the next approaching light,
God sent a Worme consum dit quite,

Sect. 12.

O Ionab (fore oppress, and heavie-hearted)
From out the Cities circuit straight departed, eparted to the Easterne borders of it,
shere sicke with anguish fate this sullen Prophet;
shoult a Booth, and in the Booth he sate,
Yntill some sew dayes had expir'd their date et!

Dat

es;

m.

With over-tedious pace) where he might fee, What would betide to threatned Niniveb.

A trunke that wanteth fap, is foone decay'd; The flender Booth of boughes and branches made, Soone yeelding to the Sun's confuming Ray, Crombled to dust, and early dry'd away: Whereat, the great leh wab spake the word, And over lonab's head there fprang a Gourd, Whose roots were fixt within the quickning earth, Which gave it nourishment, as well as birth; God raised up a Gourd, a Gourd should last, Let winde, or scorching Sun, or blow, or blaft:

As coales of fier rak'd in Embers lye Obscure, and undiscerned by the eye; But being stirr'd, regaine a glimm'ring light, Revive, and glow, burning a-fresh and bright; So lonah gan to cheere through this relicfe, And joyfull was, devoided all his griefc; He joy'd to fee that God had not forgot His drooping fervant, and forfooke him not; He joy'd, in hope the Gourds strange wonder will It mo Perswade the people, he's a Propher still; The fresh aspect did much refresh his sight, The herball favour gave his sense delight; Thus lonab much delighted in his Gourd, Enjoy'd the pleasures that it did affoord.

But Lord! what earthly thing can long remaine Both How momentary are they! and how vaine! How vaine is earth, that man's delighted in it! Her pleafures rife, and vanish in a minute : How fleering are the joyes, we finde below. Whose tides (uncertain) oftner ebbe than flow! For fee! this Gourd (that was fo faire, and found) Is quite confum'd, and eaten to the ground;

Which Bur f Ple It ler

No

Fro

But

The

Cor

Con

Left

Ple But (¶Ma It dot The Both

When What Wele Why, Which And w Which

No fooner Titan had up-heav'd his head, From off the pillow of his Saffron bed, But heaven prepar'd a filly, filly worme, (Perchance brought thither by an Eastern storme) The worme that must obey, and well knew how, Confum'd the Gourd, nor left it root, nor bough; Confum'dit straight, within a minutes space, Left nought, but (fleeping) longs in the place.

Medita, I2.

THe pleasures of the world, (which soon abate) Are lively Emblemes of our owne estate, Which (like a Banquet at a Fun'rall show) But sweeten griefe, and serve to flatter woe. Pleasure is fleeting still, and makes no stay, It lends a smile or twaine, and steales away : Man's life is fickle, full of winged hafte, It mockes the fense with joy, and soone does wastes Pleasure does crown thy youth, & luls thy wants, But (fullen age approaching) straight avaunts: Man's life is joy, and forrow feekes to banish, It doth lament, and mourne in age, and vanish. The time of pleasure's like the life of Man; aine Both joyfull, both contained in a span; Both highly priz'd, and both on sudden lost, When most we trust them, they deceive us mok; What fit of madnesse makes us love them thus ? We leave our lives, and pleasure leaveth us: Why, what is pleasure ? But a golden dreame, Which (waking) makes our wats the more extreme? ind) And what is Life? A bubble full of care, Which (prickt by death) Arraight empties into aires The v !

1

arth,

The flowers (clad in farre more rich aray, Than e're was Salomon) doe foone decay; What thing more fweet, or fairer than a flowre? And yet it bloomes, andfades within an houre; What greater pleasure than a rising Sun? Yet's this pleasure every evening done: But thou art heire to Crafus, and thy treasure Being great, and endlesse, endlesse is thy pleasure But thou (thou Crafus heire) confider muft, Thy wealth, and thou, came from, and goes to duft Another's noble, and his name is great, And takes his place upon a lofty feat; True 'tis, but yet his many wants are such, That better 'twere he were not knowne fo much. Another bindes his foule in Hymens knot, His Spouse is chaste, unblemisht with a spot, But yet his comfort is bedasht, and done, His grounds are stockt, and now he wants a sonne How fickle and unconstant's mans estate! Man fain would have, but then he knows not what And having rightly knowes not how to prize it, But like that foolish Dunghill-cock imployes it : But who defires to live a life content, Wherein his Cruze of joy shall ne're be spent, With fierce pursuit, let him that good defire, Whose date no change, no fortune can expire. For that's not worth the craving, to obtaine A happineffe, that must be lost againe; Nor that, which most doe cover most, is best; Best are the goods, mixt with contented rest: Gasp not for Honour, wish no blazing glory, For these will perish in an ages story; Nor yet for power; power may be carv'd To fooles, as well as thee, that haft deferr'd. Thir mang

XUM

Rich

They

leav

Whof

The o Vith

o ma Ofhe!

Who t

Asth

Ind ( ut ra lis fee

cravin kill m w beti

Sof

nd fa

ubit l

thirst not for Lands, nor Money; wish for none, or wealth is neither lafting, nor our owne : Riches are faire inticements, to deceive us; they flatter, while we live, and dying, leave us.

> THE ARGVMENT. Ionah desires to die, the Lord Rebukes bim, he maintaines bis word, His anger be doth justifie, God pleads the cause for Ninivie.

Sed. 13. Hen ruddy Phabus had, with morning light Subdu'd the East, & put the stars to flight, fonne Heav'ns hand prepar'd a fervent easterne winde, Whose drought together with the Sun combin'd, what theone, as bellowes, blowing t'others fire, Vith strong united force, did both conspire omake assault upon the fainting head Ofhelpleffe lonab, that was well nye dead, Who turning oft, and toffing to and fro, As they that are in torments wie to doe) nd (reftleffe) finding no successe of ease, ut rather, that his tortures still encrease; is fecret passion to his soule betraid, raving no sweeter boone than death, and faid, hillme (Lord) or loe, my beart will rive; w better 'tis for me to dyethan live, So faid, the Lord did interrupt his passion, nd faid, How now ? is this a feemely fashion ? ubit become my servants beart to swell? a anger beipe thee? I onah, doft thou well?

Is

re?

C; afure;

duft uch.

it, sit:

t, ė.

Is this a fit speech? or a well-plac'd word? What, art thou angry (Ionah) for a Gourd? What, if th' Arabians with their ruder traine, Had kild thine Oxen, and thy Cattel flaine? What, if consuming fire (falue from heaven) Had all thy fervants of their tives bereaven, And burnt thy Sheepe? What, if by flrong oppression The Chaldges had usurpt unjuft poffession Voon thy Camels ? Or had Boreas blowne His full-mouth'd blaft, and caft thy boufes downe, And flaine thy fonkes amid their jollities ? Or hadft thou loft thy Vineyard full of trees? Hadft thou bin ravisht of thine onely Sheepe, That in thy tender besome us'd to ficepe? How would thine hafty fpirit then bin for d, If thou art angry, Ionah, for a Gould? To which, thus lonah vents his idle breath, Lord, I doe well to vexe unto the death; I blufb not to acknowledge, and professe Deferved rage, I'm angry, I confeffe; 'I would make a fpirit that is therow frozen, To blaze like flaming Pitch, and fry like Kozen: Why doft thou aske that thing that thou canft tell? Thou know'st I'm angry, and it befeemes me well.

So faid, the Lord to lond thus respake;
Dost thou bemeane, and such compassion take Voon a Gourd, whose seed thou didst not sow,
Nor moved thy busic hands to make it grow,
Whose heauty, small; and value was but slight,
Which sprang, as also perisht in a night?
Hadst thou (O dust, and ashes) such a care,
Such in-bred pity, a tristing plant to spare?
Hadst thou, (O hard and incompassionate,
To wish the razing of so brave a State)

My h

Hada

The e

Sween

Toth

(Tha

Topa

(F)a)

And-

Whole

W bo a

3hall

Whole

Mon!

That I

Whofe

The di

Shall.

A City

Whofe

Whofe

Whofe

And b

What,

And B

XUM

Hadft thou (1 say) compassion, to bemaile The extirpation of a Gourd fo fraile? And Shall not I (that am the Lord of Lords) Whole fountaine's never dry, but fill affords Sweet freames of mercy, with a fresh supply, To those that thirft for grace : What fisall not I, (That am the God of mercy, and have fromne To pardon sinners, when soe're they turne? (flay) Shall I disclaime my wonted pity, Andbring to ruine such a goodly City, Whose hearts (so truly penitent) implore me, Who day and night powreforth their foules before me? Shall I destroy the mighty Ninivic, Whose people are like sands about the Sea? 'Mong which are fixe foore thoufand babes (at leaft) That bang upon their tender mothers breft. Whose pretty smiles could never yet descry The deare affection of their mothers eye? Shall I subvert, and bring to desolation A (ity, (nay, more aptly term'd a Nation) Whose walls boast leffe their beauty than their might? Whose hearts are forrowfull, and soules contrite? Whose Infants are in number, so amounting? And beafts, and cattell, endle fe, without counting? What, Ienah, Shall a Gourd fo move thy pitie? And Brall not I spare such a goodly City?

Meditatio ultima

Y heart is full; my vent is too too ftraight; My tongue's too trufty to my poore conceit; My minde's in labour, and findes no redreffe; My heart conceives, my lips cannot expresse; Ha

My organs suffer, through a maine defect; Alas! I want a proper Dialect To blazon forth the tythe of what I muse; The more I meditate, the more accrewes; But lo, my faultring tongue must say no more, Vnleffe she ftep where she hath trod before. What ? fhall I then be filent? No, I'le speake (Till tongue be tyred, and my lungs be weake) Of dearest mercy, in as sweet a straine, As it shall please my Muse to lend a vaine; And when my voice shall stop within her sourse, And speech shall faulter in this high discourse, My tyred tongue (unsham'd) shall thus extend, Onely to name, Deare mercy, and fo end. Oh high Imperiall King, heavens Architect! Is man a thing befitting thy respect? ¶ Lo Lord, thou art wisedome, and thy wayes are holy, Fall t But man's polluted, full of filth, and folly, Yet is he (Lord) the fabrike of thy hand, And in his foule he beares thy glorious brand, Thefe Howe're defaced with the rust of fin, Which hath abus'd thy stamp, and eaten in; Tis not the fraity of mans corrupted nature, The b Makes thee asham'd, t'acknowledge man, thy crea-(ture: Thefe But like a tender father, here on earth, (Whose childe by nature, or abortive birth, Is dai Doth want that sweet and favourable rellish, Wherewith, her creatures, Nature doth imbellish) Spare Provi Respects him ne'rthelesse; even so thy Grace Lay u (Great God) extends to man; though fin deface For le The glorious pourtraiture that man doth beare, And o Whereby he loath'd and ugly doth appeare, ltisa Yet thou (within whose tender bowells are Itisa Deepe gulfes of mercy, sweet beyond compare) Regard

XUM

legar

Nay (

ord,

When

To th

Thy o

How

That

Thou

But (

Tofa

Areth

€ Ho

How !

Fatni

The r

Tafte

Eate

Fate

Drink

And t

legardit, and lov'ft (with rev'rence be it faid) Nay feem'ft to dote on man; when he hath strayd, Lord, thou haft brought him to his fold againe; When he was loft, thou didft not then disdaine To thinke upon a vagabond, and give Thy dearest Sonne to dye, that he might live. How poore a mire art thou content withall, That man may scape his downe-approching fall? Though base we are, yet dost not thou abhorre us But (as our Story speaks) art pleading for us, To fave us harmeleffe from our foemans jawes; Artthou turn'd Orator, to plead our cause? How are thy mercies full of admiration ! How foveraigne! How fweet's their application! Fatning the foule with fweetnesse, and repayring The rotten ruines of a foule despayring. Loe here (Malfido) is the feast prepar'd, fall too with courage, and let nought be spar'd; Tafte freely of it, Here's no Mifers feaft; Eate what thou canit, and pocket up the rest: These precious vyans are Restoritie, Eate then; and if the sweetnesse make thee dric, Drinke large Carouses out of Mercies cup, The best lies in the bottome, Drinke all up : ture: These cates are sweet Ambrosia to thy soule, And that, which fills the brim of Mercies boule, Is dainty Nectar; Eate and drinke thy fills lift) Spare nor the one, nor yet the other spill; Provide in time: Thy Banquet is begun, Lay up in store, against the feast be done: For loe, the time of banquetting is short, And once being done, the world cannot reftor's It is a feast of Mercy, and of Grace; It is a feast for all, or hye, or base:

ce

c, ard's

,

ly,

A feast for him that begs upon the way, As well for him that does the Scepter fway; A feast for him that howerly bemoanes His dearest sinnes, with fighs, and teares & groanes A feast for him, whose gentle heart reformes; A feast for MEN; and so a FEAST FOR WORMES. Deare liefest Lord, that feast'st the world with grace, Extend thy bounteous hand, thy glorious face: Bid joyful welcome to thy hungry queft, That we may praise the Master of the Feast; And in thy mercy grant this boone to mee, That I may dye to finne, and live to thee.

FINIS.

S. AMBROSE. Mifericordia est plenitude omnium virtutum:

THE GENERALL VSE OF And this Historic.

Hen as the anciet world did all imbarke Within the compass of good Noals Arke, Forth to the new-washt earth a Dove was fent, Who in her mouth return'd an Olive plant, Which in a filent language this related, How that the waters were at length abated: Those swelling waters, is the wrath of God, And like the Dove, are Prophets fent abroad; The Olive leafe's a joyfull type of peace, A faithfull figne Gods vengeance doth decrease;

The

The Pro

Mer

C 2

Def

Wh

Bew

Prei

(D

Vnd

Thr

Mak Who

And

Con Whi And Eart

Whi

Beh Her

Beh Like

Bch

Like

She

Can Tha

In ft

She But The generall use of this History.

59

Not

They falve the wounded heart, & make it whole, They bring glad ty dings to the drooping foule, Proclaiming grace to them that thirst for Grace, Mercy to those that Mercy will embrace. Malfido, thou, in whose distrustfull brest Despaire hath brought in sticks to build her nest. Where she may fafely lodge her lucklesse brood, To feed upon thy heart, and fuck thy blood, Beware betimes, lest custome and permission Prescribe a title, and so clame possession. Despairing man, whose burthen makes thee stoop Vnder the terrour of thy finnes, and droop Through dull despaire, whose too too sullen griefe Makes heaven unable to apply refiefe; Whose cares are dull'd with noise of whips and And yels of damined foules, through tort'red pains, Come here, and rouze thy felfe; unfeele those eyes, Which fad Despaire cloz'd up; Arife, Arife, And goe to Niniveb, the worlds great Palace, Earths mighty wonder, and behold, the ballace. And burthen of her bulk, is nought but fin, Which (wilfull) the commits, and wallowes in; Behold her Images, her fornications, Her crying finnes, her vile abominations: Behold the guiltleffe blood that she did spill, Like Spring-tides in the streets, and reckind still : Behold her scorening lufts, and taint desier Like fulph'rous Atma blaze, and blaze up hier; She rapes, and rends, and theeves, & there is none Can justly call the thing he hath, his owne; That facred Name of God, that Name of wonder, In flead of worshipping, she teares in funder; She's not enthrall'd to this finne, or another,

But like a Leper's all infected over;

XUM

barke

Arke,

3 afe;

The

ancs

MES.

The generall use of this History.

Not onely finfull, but in finnes subjection, She's not infected, but a meere infection.

No fooner had the Prophet (Heav'ns great Spy) Begun an onset to his lowder Cry, But he repented, figh'd, and wept, and tore Her curious haire, and garments that she wore, She fate in ashes, and with sackcloth clad her, All drencht in brine, that griefe cannot be fadder; She calls a Fast, proclames a prohibition

To man, and beaft; (fad tokens of contrition) No fooner pray'd, but heard; No fooner groan'd, But pittied; No sooner griev'd, but moan'd; Timely Repentance speedy grace procur'd, The fore that's falv'd in time, is eafly cur'd: No fooner had her trickling teares or flowne Her blubberd cheekes, but heav'n was apt to mon Her pensive heart, wip'd her suffused eyes, And gently ftrok'd her cheeks, and bid her rife; No faults were seene, as if no fault had bin, Deare Mercy made a Quittance for her fin. Malfido rouze thy leaden spirit, Bestir thee; Hold up thy drowzie head, Here's comfort for thee What if thy zeale be frozen hard? What then? Thy Saviours blood will thaw that frost agen: Thy pray'rs that should be fervent, hot as her, Proceed but coldly from a dull defier; What then? Grieve inly, But do not difmay, (pray; Who heares thy pray'rs, will give thee strength to Though left a while, thou art not quite giv'n o're, Where Sinne abounds, there Grace aboundeth more: This, this is all the good that I can doe thee, To ease thy gricfe, I here commend unto thee A little booke, but a great Mystery, A great delight, A little Hiftory;

But !

A In

Ame

To P

Thei

Pe

Ther

Butr

Once

Nor i Or el

Nor i

Salve Appl

Then

Like

Her

hen

He

Offin

The Cry m

Here

ho o epen

tre n

The generall use of this Historie.

Alittle branch flipt from a faving tree, But bearing fruit as great, as great mought be; Asmall abridgement of thy Lords great love; A meffage fent from heaven by a Dove: It is a heavenly Lecture, that relates To Princes, Pastors, People, all Estates Their fev'rall duties. Peruse it well, and binde it to thy brest, der; There refts the Cause of thy defect of rest:

Butread it often, or else read it not: Once read, is not observ'd, and soone forgot, Nor is't enough to read, but understand, Or elfe thy tongue, for want of wit, 's prophan'd, Nor is't enough to purchase knowledge by it; Salve heales no fore, unleffe the party' apply it: Apply it then; which if thy flesh restraines, none Strive what thou canft, & pray for what remaines.

The particular application.

T Hen thou, that art opprest with sad Despaire. Here shalt thou see the strong effect of praire: thee then pray with faith, and (fervent) without ceasing Like lacob) wrestle, till thou get a bleffing. Here shalt thouse the type of Christ, thy Savithen let thy fuits be through his name, and favour-Here shalt thou finde repentance and true griefe oray; offinners like thy felfe, and their beliefe; Then fuit thy griefe to theirs, and let thy foule re, ry mightily, untill her wounds be whole. Here shalt thou fee the mecknesse of thy God, ho on Repentance turnes, and burnes the Rod; epents of what he purpos'd, and is forry; tre may ye heare him stoutly pleading for ye:

A

h to

3

62 The generalluse of this History.

Then thus shall be thy meed, if thou repent, In stead of plagues and direfull punishment, Thou shalt find mercy, love, and heavens applause, And God of heaven (himfelfe) will plead thy cause. Here haft thou the compil'd within this treasure, First, the Almighties high, and just displeasure Against foule sinne, or such as sinfull be, Or Prince, or poore, or high, or low degree. Here is descri'd the beaten Road to Faith: Here maist thou see the force that preaching hat Here is describ'd in (briefe but) full expression, The nature of a Convert, and his passion: His fober Diet, which is thin, and spare; His clothing, which is Sackcloth; and his Prayre Not faintly fent to heaven, nor sparingly, But piercing, fervent, and a mighty cry: Here maift thou fec, how prai'r, & true repentace Do strive with God, prevaile, and turne his senten From strokes to stroking, & from plagues infernall, To boundlesse Mercies, and to life Eternall. Till Zepher lend my Barke a second Gale, I flip mine Anchor, and I strike my saile.

FINIS.

O dulcis Salvator Mundil ultima verba que tu dixisi in Cruce, sint ultima mea verba in Luce; & quando an plins isfari non possum, exandi in cordis mei desiderium. Tob

In d

Tol

Sol

Had

Had

And

And

For

Muc

Tot

Sing

Wee Bebl

For o

Thin

Let i

Let t Thin

Let t

Then

Faith
The I Thy I
My fo Eyes, Sing I

A Hymne to God.

W Ho gives me then an Adamantine quill?
A mathle tablet? And a Davids skill? aufe, aufe. To blazon forth the praise of my deare Lord fure, In deepe grav'n Caracters, upon Record To last, for times eternall processe, suer, So long, as Sunne, and Moone, and starres enduer: Had I as many mouthes, as Sands there are, Had I a nimble tongue for enery Starre, And every word I speake, a Character, And every minutes time ten ages were, To chant forth all thy prayle it no'te availe, For tongues & words, and time, and all would faile: Much leffe can I, poore Weakling, tune my tongue, To take a taske befits an Angels fong; Sing what thou canft; when thou canft fing no more Weepe then as fast that thou can't fing no more, ntéce Beblurre thy booke with teares, and goe thy wayes. For every blurre will prove a booke of praise. Thine eye that viewes the moving Spheares above Let it give praise to him that makes them move: Thou riches haft, Thy Hands that hold, & have the Let them give praise to him, that freely gave them: Thine Armes defend thee, then for recompence, Let them praise him, that gave thee such defence: Thy tongue was give to praise thy Lord, the Giver Then let thy tongue praise highest God for ever: Faith comes by hearing, & thy faith will fave thee; The let thine ears prais him, that hearing gave thee Thy hart is begg'd by him whose hads did make it, My fonne, give me thy heart; Lord, freely take it: Eyes, hands, and armes, tongues, eares, & hearts of Sing praise, and let the people say, Amen. Tune

c hath lion, vre '

ntace mall, ifti in inn.

Tune you your Inftruments, and let them vary Praise him upon them in his Sanctuary, Praise him within the highest Firmament, Which shewes his power and his government, Praise him, for all his mighty Acts are knowne, And fuit thy praises to his high Renowne, Praise him with Trump victorious, shrill, & sharpe, With Pfaltry lowd, and many-stringed Harpe, His I With founding Tymbrell, and the warbling Flute Eter With (Musicks full Interpreter) the Lute, Fron Praise him upon the Maiden Virginalls, All v Vpon the clerick Organs, and Cymballs, And Vpon the sweet majettick Vyalls touch, OfG Double your joyes, and let your praise be such; The Let all, in whom is life and breath, give praife in Pe To heavens Eternall God, in endlesse daies; The ! Let every Soule, to whom a voice is given, Rewa Sing Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord of beaven; The For loe, a Lambe is found, that undertooke Full s To breake the feven-fold-feale, & ope the Booke. A Oler my life adde number to my dayes, Myh To shew thy glory, and to sing thy praise; But i Let every minute in thy praise be spent, Then Let every head be bare, and knee be bent To thee (deare Lambe;) Who-ere thy praises hide Clos'd be his lippes, and tongue for ever ty'de.

Hallelujab:

Eleva a He

In

ELEVEN PIOVS

Meditations.

Ithin the holy Legend I discover Three speciall Attributes of God; his His Inflice, and his Mercy: All uncreated, (Power, Flute, Eternall all, and all unseparated From Gods pure Effence, and from thence procee-All very God, All perfect, All exceeding: And from that felfe-fame text three names I gather Of Great Ichova; Lord, and God, and Father; The first denotes him mounted on his Throne, In Power, Majettie, Dominion; The fecond showes him on his kingly Bench, Rewarding Evill with equall punishments; Full great in Grace; and in his Mercy-fear, the third describes him on his Mercy-fear. My heart shall humbly prostrate, with my knee; But in my private choice, I fancy rather,

s hide y'de. (IN hell no Life, in Heaven no Death there is, In Earth both Life and Death, both Bale & Bha

Then call him Lord, or God, to call him Father.

hHeavn's all Life, no end , nor new supplying; a Hell's all Death, and yet there is no dying; leve arth (like a partiall Ambidexter) doth mpere for Death, or Life, prepares for both;

c, arpe,

,

chi

Who lives to finne, in Hell his portion's given, Who dyes to finne, shall after live in Heaven.

Though Earth my Yurse be, Heaven, be thou my Ten thousand deaths let me endure rather (Faibe; Within my Nurses armes, then One to Thee; Earths honour, with thy frownes is death to mee: I live on Earth, as on a Stage of forrow; Lord, if thou pleasest, end the Plas to morrow: I live on Earth, as in a Dreame of pleasure, Awake me when thou with, I wait thy leisure: I live on Earth, but as of life bereaven, My life's with thee, for (Lord) then are in Heaven.

3.

NOthing that e'r was made, was made for nothing Beafts for thy food, their skins were for thy cloth-Flowers for thy fmell, and bearbs for Cuer good (ing. Trees for thy flade, Their Fruit for pleafing Food: The flowers fall upon the fruitfull ground, Whose kindly Dew makes tender Graffe abound, The Graffe fprings forth for Beafts to feed upon, And Beafts are food for Man: But Manalone Is made to ferve his Lord in all his wayes, And be the Trumpet of his Makers praise. Let Heav's be then to me obdure as braffe, The Earth as iron, unapt for graine or graffe, Then let my Flacks confume, and never fleed me, Let pinching Famine want, wherewith to feed me, When I forget to honour thee, (my Lord) Thy glorious Attributes, thy Works, thy Word. O let the Trump of thine eternall Fame, Teach us to answer, Hallow'd be thy Name. G

G

He

Bu

Wi

Od built the World, and all that therein is THe framed, yet how prore a part is his? Quarter the Earth, and fee, how small a rome Is filed with the name of Christendome; The rest (through blinded ignorance) rebels, O're-run with cagans, Turks, and Infidels : Nor yet is all this little quarter his, For (though all know him) halfe know him amiffe, Profesting chrift for lucre, (as they lift) And serve the triple Crown of Antichris; Yet is this little handfull much made leffer, There's many Libertines, for one Profesion: Nor doe Profesiors all profesie aright, 'Mong whom there often lurks an Hypocrite. (O where, and what's thy Kingdome (bleffed God) Where is thy Steper? where's thine iron Red? Reduce thy reck nings to their totall fumme, Olet thy Power, and thy Kingdome Come.

MAN in himselfe's a little world, Alone,
His Soul's the Court, or high Imperiall throne
Wherein as Empreffe, fits the Understanding
Gently directing, yet with awe Commanding:
Her Handmaid's will: Affelions, Maids of Honor,
All following close, and duely waiting on her:
But Sin, that alwayes envi'd mans Condition,
Within this Kingdome raised up Division; F 2 With-

XUM

uber;

:35

thing cloth

(ing od:

d,

me,

Withdrawne the will, and brib'd the false Affection, That This, no order hath; nor That, Election; The will proves Traitor to the Vnderflanding; Reason hath lost her power, and lest commanding, She's quite depos'd, and put to foule differace, And Tyrant Passion now usurps her place. Youchsafe (Lord) in this little world of mine To raigne, that I may raigne with Thee in thine: And since my Will is quite of good bereaven, Thy will be done in earth, as 'tis in Beaven, 6.

Tho live to fin, are all but theeves to heave and Earth, They steale fro God, & take Good men they rob, & fuch as live upright, (ungive; And (being bastards) share the freemans Right: They're all as owners, in the owners stead, And (like to Dogs) devoure the childrens bread; They have, and lacke, and want that they possesse, Vnhappy most, in their most happinesse: They are not goods, but riches, that they wast, And not be'ng goods, to ev's they turne at laft. (Lord) what I have, let me enjoy in thee, And thee in it, or elfe take it from mee; My flore or want, make thou, or fade, or flourish, So thall my comforts neither change, nor perits That little I enjoy, (Lord) make is mine, In making me (that am a Sinner) thine; Tis thou or none, that shall supply my need, O Lord; Give m this day our dayty bread,

XUM

V

In

F

M

M

(1

A

In

Ar

Th

En The The

The quick conceited Schoole men do approve A difference 'twixt (barity and Love: Love is a vertue, whereby we explaine Our felves to God, and God to is againes But Charitie's imparted to our Brother, Whereby we trafficke, one man with another : Thefirst extends to God; The last belongs To Man, in giving right, and bearing wrongs; In number, they are twaine, In vertue One; For one not truely being, t'other's none, In loving God, if I negled my Neighbour, My love hath loft his proofe, and I my labour : My Zeale, my Faith, my Hope that never failes me, (If Charity be wanting) nought availes me. (Lord) in my Soule, a spirit of Love create me, And I will love my Brother, if he hate me : In nought but love, let me envy my betters; And then, Forgive my debts, a I my detters.

8.

TFinde a true refemblance in the growth Of Sin, and Man; Alike in breeding, both; The Soul's the Mother, and the Devill, Syer; Who lusting long in mutuall defier Enjoy their wills, and joyne in Copulation; The Seed that fils her wombe, is foule Tentation; The seed that fils her wombe, is foule Tentation; And then quickens, when it breeds content; ke

Fz

le,

The birth of Sin is finisht in the altion;
And Custome brings it to its full persection.

¶ Olet my fruitlesse Soule be barren rather,
Then bring forth such a Child for such a Father;
Orifmy Soule breed Sinne (not being wary)
Let not her wombe bring forth, or elle miscary;
She is thy Spouse (O Lord) doe thou advise her;
Keepe thou her chast, Let not the Frend entice her:
Try thou my heart, Thy Tryalls bring Selvation.
But let me not be led into Temptation.

9.

Tortane (that blind supposed Goddesse) is Still rated at, if ought succeed amisse ; 'Tis she (the vaine abuse of Providence) That beares the blame, when others make th'office; When this mans barne finds not her wonted flore, Fortune's condemn'd, because she sent no more; If this mandye, or that man live too long, Fortune's accus'd, and she hath done the wrong; Ah foolith Dolls, and (like your Goddeffe) blind! You make the fault, and call your Saint unkind; For when the cause of Evil begins in Man, Th'effect enfues from whence the cause began; Then know the reason of thy discontent, Thy ev'll of Sinne, makes Ev'll of puniforment. (Lord)hold meup, or spurre me, when I fall; So shall my Eu'll be juft, or not at all ; Defend me from the World, the Flest, the Devill, And so thou shalt deliver me from Evill.

The

H

Su

An

Th

Vp Fir By Ma

Pom As i

¶ 1

My

My

(Gr

Auer

Thre

Met

They

Too

Then

Grace

THe Prieftly skirts of A'rons holy coate I kiffe; and to my morning Muse devote: Had never King, in any age, or Nation, Such glorious Kobes, fer forth in fuch a fashion, With Gold, and Gemmes, and Sills of Princely Dye, And Stones befitting more then Majefy: The Persian Sophies, and rich Sheba's Queene Had n'er the like, nor e'r the like had feene; Vpon the skirts (in order as they fell) First, a Pomegranat was, and then a Bell; By each Pomegranat did a Bell appeare; Many Pomegranats, many Bells there were; Pomegranats nourish, Bels doe make a found, As bleffings fall, Thanks giving must rebound. If thou wilt cloth my heart with A'rons eyer, My tongue shall praise, as well as heart desier. My tongue, and pen, shall dwell upon thy Story, (Great God) for thine is Kingdome, Power, Glory.

11.

The Ancient Sopbifis, that were so precise, (and oftentimes (perchance) too eurious nice) Auerre, that Nature hath bestow'd on Man Three perfect Soules: When this I truly scan, Me thinks, their Learning swath'd in Errour, lyes; They were not wise enough, and yet too wise; Too curious wise, because they mention more Then one; Not wise enough, because not foure; Nature, not Grace, is Mistris of their Schooles; Grace counts them wises, that are veriest Fooles:

e;

72

Three Soules in man? Grace doth a fourth allow,
The Soule of Faith: But this is Greeke to you;
'Tis Faith that makes man truly wife;' Tis Faith Makes him possels that thing he never hath.
This Glorious Soule of Faith bestow on me,
(O Lord) or else take thou the ather three:
Faith makes men tesse then Children, more the Men
It makes the Soule cry Abba, and Amen.

The End.

on neither along the conosmiT

unit of their tarades;

XUM

He

PENTELOGIA.

Merstua, Mors Chrifti, Frans Mundi, Gleria Coti, Et Delor Inferni, funt meditanda tibi.

Thydeath, the death of Christ, the worlds tetation; Heavens joy, hells torment, be thy meditation.

LONDON, Printed for IOHN MARRIOT. 1630.

Mon

7 5 5557 CV

position of grown for the allegants or, hellershamt be the marriage.

ARRIOT.

Mindin din lone ethin tting his m hoda ethir ith fig y tend wing e thir Glaf

A No as he ad door as ! co ore fire id they as they 1 sol bottid

Mors tua.

.

A E thinkes, I fee the nimble-aged Sire Paffe swiftly by, with feet unapt to tire; on his head an Homer-glaffe he weares, din his wrinkled hand a Sythe he beares, oth Instruments, to take the lives from Men) fone shewes with what, the other sheweth when's ethinkes, I heare the dolefull Passing-bell, sting an onfer on his louder knell; his moody musick of impartiall death hodances after, dances out of breath.) ethinkes I fee my dearest friends lament, ith fighes, and teares, and wofull dryriment, tender Wife, and Children Standing by, wing the Death bed, whereupon I lye: thinkes, I heare a voice (in fecret) fay, Glaffe is runne, and thou must dye to day.

Mors Christi.

2.

A Nd am I here, and my Redeemer gone?

Can He be dead, and is not my life done?

Is he tormented in excepte of measure,
addoe! live yet? and yet live in pleasure?

Is! could Simmers finde out no re a one,
ore fit than Thee, for them to spit upon?

I thy cheekes entertaine a Traylors lips?

Is thy deare body scourg'd, and torne with whips?

So

So that the guiltlesse blood came trickling after And did thy fainting browes sweat blood and mated Wert thou (Lord) hang'd upon the Cursed Tree? O world of griefe! And was all this for me? I Burst forth, my teares, into a world of serrow, And let my mights of griefe finde ne're a morne; Since thou art dead (Lord) grant thy servant room Within his beart, to build thy heart a Tombe.

Fraus Mundi.

3.

Wherein all forts, and fexes cheapning as The Flesh, the Devill sit, and cry, what lackeyee? When most they fawn, they most intend to rack The wares, are cups of Joy, and beds of Pleasur, Ther's goodly choice, down weight, & flowing as A soul's the pice, but they give time to pay, (sur Vpon the Death-bed, on the dying day.

Hard is the bargaine, and unjust the measure, When as the trice so much out-lasts the steasure.

When as the price so much out-lasts the pleasure.
When as the price so much out-lasts the pleasure.
The joyes that are on earth, are counterfeits;
If ought be true, 'tis this, Th' are true deceits
They flatter, fawne, and (like the crocadile)
Kill where they laugh, and murther where they sail
They daily dip within thy Dish, and cry,
Who bath betraid thee? Master, It it 1?

Miet 1

Nem

ey far re ti dlot rwh herei what ewel eglo ere t cha cre l

Cloria Cali.

Hen I behold, and well advise upon The Witemans Speech, There's nought beow, quanty, my foule rebels within, (neath the Sun, lothes the dunghill prison the is in: when I looke to new terufalen. erein's referv'd my Crowne, my Diadem, that a Heaven of bliffe my Soule enjoyes, fudden rapt into that heaven of loyes! bereravisht (in the depth of meditation) ewell difcernes, with Eye of Contemplation, eglory' of God, in his Imperial Seat, Altrong in Might, in M. jefty compleat, of was here troops of Powers, Vertues, Cherubins, ning a mls, Archangels, Saints, and Seruphins, yee? echaunting prayles to their heavenly King, tract; are Hall lajab they for ever fing.

Dolor Inferni.

Et Pocts please to torture Tantalus, Let griping Vultures gnaw Prometheus, let poore Ixion turne his endleffe wheele, ey fai Neme fo, torment with whips of steele; eyfar come fort, t'expresse the paines of those rage in Hell, enwrapt in endlette woes; ere time no end, and plagues finde no exemption; ste erges admit no helpe, nor place redemption;

after mate? ree ?

100 afure, ingm , (Sun

Cure, gure:

tt

:)

Where her lacks no flame, the flame no heat,
To make their torments sharpe, and plagues comple
Where wretched Soules to tortures bound shalls
Serving a world of yeares, and not be Free;
Where nothing's heard, but yells, and fudden crys
Where fer never slakes, nor worme e're dyes;
But where this Hell is placed (my Muse) stop there.
Lord, shew me what it is, but never where.

Mors tua.

T.

An he be faire, that withers at a blaft? Or he be from, that Ayery Breath can a Can he be mife that knowes not how to live? Or he be rich, that nothing hath to give? Can he be young, that's teeble, weake, and wa So faire, frome, wife, forib, fo youg is man: So faire is Man, that Death (a parting Blaft) Blasts his faire Flow'r, and makes him Earth at h So firong is Man, that with a gasping Breath He totters, and bequeathes his strength to Des So wife is Man, that if with Death he ftrive, His wisedome cannot teach him how to live; Sorich is Man, that (all his Debts b'ing paid) His wealth's the winding-sheet wherein he's la So yong is Man, that (broke with care and form He's old enough to day, to Dye to morrow : Why brag'ft thou then, thou werm of five-foot Th'art neither faire, nor firong, nor wife, nor rich

XUM

Il gr

1 gric

1 thus

1 thus 1 grit The

Would thur But to I grie

I thu

1 thur

1gis

'Twa

Alth

0 60

Who

The B

Tore

I love To ba

Mors Christi.

2.

T Thurst , and who shall quench this eager Thurst? I grieve ; and with my griefe my heart will burft ; I greve, because I thurt without reliefe ; Ithurft, because my Soule is burnt with griefe Ithurft , and (dry'd with griefe) my heart will dye; Igrave, and thurfi the more, for Sorrow's dry: The more I grieve, the more my thurf appeares: Would God! I had not griev'd out all my teares; Ithurft; and yet my griefes have made a Floud; But teares are falt , I grieve, and thurft for bleed; I grieve for bloud, for bloud must fend reliefe , I thurff for bloud, for bloud must ease my griefe; Ithurs for facred bloud of a deare Lambe; Inieve to thinke from whence that deare blond came ; Twas shed for mee, O let me drinke my fill, Although my gri-fe remaine entier fill : O foveraigne po'wr of that Vermilian Spring, (fine. Whose vertue, neither beart conceives, nor tongue ca

Frans Mundi.

3.

Love the World (as Clients love the Lawes)
To manage the uprightnesse of my Cause;
The World loves me, as Shepheards doe their flockes,
To rob, and spaise them of their fleecy lockes;
Ilove the World, and use it as mine Inne,
To bait, and rest my tyred carteise in:

The

מ כרוש

here

an ( nd war

. ?

1)

Des

d) e's la

oot

The World loves me : For what ? To make Her gaze; For filthy finne, the fells me timely flame; She's like the Bafiliske by whole sharpe eyes The living object, first discover'd, dyes ; Forth from her eyes empoyfoned beames do burfts Dyes like a Bafiluke, discerned first; We live at james as froward Gamesters doe. Still mardine, not regarding others foe; I love the World, to ferve my turne, and leave her, Tis no deceit to coogen a Deceiver She'll not miffe me ; I, leffe the World fall miffe, To lofe a world of griefe, t'enjoy a world of Bliffe.

Gloria Cali.

L' Arth flands immov'd, and fixt; her figuation Admits no locall change, no alteration, Mosvem alway moves, renewing still his place, And ever fees us with another Face ; Earth flandeth fixt, yet there I live opwest; Heaven alway mooves, yet there is all my reft: Enlarge thy felfe, my Soule. with meditation, Mount there, and there bespeake thy habitation; Where joies are ful, & pure, not mixt with mournin (Lord All endleffe, and from which is no returning: No theft, no cruell murder harbours there, Nothoary-headed-Care, no fudden Feare, No pinching west, no (griping fast) opprefien, Nor Death the Separa of our first transgression: But dearest Friendflip, Love, and lasting Pleafure, Sail there abides, without or ftint, or meafure ,

The Toju Toy to Toth

Depar Depart

Depar

Like I

Depart

Letre

Befle

Let Fi

Depart.

If Hell

with

Falueffe of Riches, comfort fempoternall, Ixeeffe without a furfetting; And Life Eternell.

Dolor Inferni.

THe Trump fhall blow, the dead (awak'd) fhal rifes And to the Clouds shall turn their wondring cies; mille The beau'ns shal ope, the Bridegroom forth shal come, effe. To judge the World, and give the World her dome : Toy to the luft, to others endleffe [mart , To thefe the Voice bids come; to thefe, Depart; Depart from Life, yet (dying) live for ever; For ever dying be, and yet Dye never; Depart like Dogs, with Devils take your lot; Depart like Devills, for I know you not ; Like Dogs, like Devills goe, Goe howle, and barke; Depart in darkneffe, for your deeds were darke; Let roring be your Mufiche, and your Food Be flesh of Vipers, and your drinke, their blood; Let Fiends afflict you , with Repreach, and Shame, Depart, depart into Eternall Flame : m; If Hell the Guerdon then of Simers be, arnin (Lord) give me Bell on earth, (Lord) give me bend's with thee.

vv-- Iam Define Tibia verfus.

FINIS.

G

e, gane;

urft

er,

XUM

1

.

Hadassa.

Horat. Ode 6.

Conamur tenues, grandia; nec pudor, Imbelli que Lyra Musa potens vetat.

By Fra. Quarles.

Printed for IOHN MARRIOT. 1630.

int. Ode &.

namur i ves grandia ner padar. delify the Majopiers was

LONDON, for long Marrior.

1 63 00

XUM

with perl

ind Iref 7 mat A itis rit o blam In by l mig Men

A

A PREFACE TO THE

Sober veine best suits Theologie: If therefore thou expect the tuch Elegancy as takes the times, affect some subject as will beate it. Had I laboured with over-abundace of fictions, or flourishes, perhaps they had exposed mee, censurable, and disprized this sacred subject: Therefore Irest more sparing in that kinde.

Two things I would treat of : First, the manner of this History.

As for the matter, (to farre as I have dealt) it is Canonicall, and indited by the holy Spint of God, not lyable to errour, and needs no blanching.

In it, Theologie fits as Queene, attended by her handmaid Philosophy; both concuring, to make the understanding Reader & good Divine, and a wife Moraliff.

As for the Divinity; it discovers the Almighty in his two great Attributes; in his Mercy, delivering his Church; in his Iufice, confounding her enemies.

As for the Morality; it offers to us the whole practicke part of Philosophy, dealt out ing, into Ethicks, Politicks, and Occonomicks. inn

2. The Ethical part (the object wherof is the toh manners of a private man) ranges through Chi the whole booke, and empties it selfe into the Catalogue of Morall vertues, either those com that governe the body; as Fortitude, Chap. Mass. 2. and Temperance, Chap. 1.8. or those F. which direct the foule, either in outward fipa things, as Liberality, Chap. 1. 3. Magnifi- imp cence, Chap. 1.6, Magnanimity, Chap. 2.20, F and Modesty, Chap. 6. 12. or in conversati- Trus on, as Inflice, Chap. 7.9. Mansuetude, Chap. obie 5.3. Oc.

s. The Politicall part (the object whereof is dom publike Societie) inftructs, firft, in the beha- now viour of a Prince to his Subject; in punishing his vice, Chap. 7. 10. in rewarding of vertues, was, Chap. 8. 1,15. Secondly, in the behaviour of part the Subject to his Prince; in observing his sim Lawes, and discovering his enemies, Chapin er 2.22. Thirdly, the behaviour of a Subject, to how a Subject in mutuality of love, Chap. 4.7. forth will' in propagation of peace, Chap. 10.2.

3. The Oceonomical part (the obiect where. As ofisprivate Society) teacheth, first, the canging rage of the Wife, to her Musband: in obey-bory ing,

that

ing, Chap. 1.22. of the Husband to his Wife, inruling, Chap. 1.22. Secondly, of a Father to his Childe, in advising, Chap. 2. 7, 20. of a Childe to his Father, in observing, Chap. 2. 10. Thirdly, of a Master to his Servant, in commanding, Chap. 4. 5. of a Servant to his Master, in effecting his command, Chap. 4.6. Furthermore, in this history, the two principals faculties of the soule are (nor in vaine) imployed.

L.20. First, the Intellect, whose proper object is fatifati- Truth. Secondly, the Will, whose proper chap, object is good, whether Philosophicall, which that great Master of Philosophy calls Wise- of it some: or Theologicall, which wee point at ocha- now, hoping to enjoy hereafter.

tues, was, or why the name of God (as in few other or of parts of the Bible) is unmentioned in this, it is immateriall, and doubtfull. For the first, it hap a enough for an uncurious questioner to st, to mow, it was indired by the Spirit of God's 4.7. for the second, let it suffice, that that Spirit will'd not here to reveale his name.

to mow, it was indired by the Spirit of God's 4.7 for the second, let it suffice, that that Spirit will'd not here to reveale his name.

As for the Manner of this history (consistence in the Periphrase, the adjournment of the obey-tory, and interposition of Meditations) I hope

ing, G4

I hope it hath not injured the Matter : Forin this I was not the least carefell, to use the light of the best Expositors, not daring toge un led, for feare of stumbling. Some fay, Divinity in Verie, is incongruous and unpleafing: fuch I referre to the Pfalmes of David, or the Song of his fonne Salomon, to bee con rected. Bur in thefe lewd times, the falt, and soule of a Verse, is obscene scurrility, with out which it feemes dull, and liveleffe: And though the facred Hiftory needs not (as humane doe) Poetry, to perperuate the remem brance, (being by Gods owne mouth bleff with Eternity) yet Verse (working so neare upon the foule, and spirit) will oft times draw those to have a history in familiarity, who (perchance) before, scarce knew there was fuch a Booke.

Reader, be more than my hafty pen stile thee: Reade mee with advice, and thereaster iudge me, and in that iudgement censure me. If I iangle, thinke my intent thereby, is to tel better Ringers in. Farewell,

Tale Park Tale

Wen

(The dt

Cam

lato The

Bre

Red

Say il

Berja

Thy b

Flam

Name

Name

None

But &

Sai

Thei And I

iden of Medianiers) I

XUM

THE INTRODUCTION.

Hen Zedechia (He whose haplesse hand Once held the Scepter of Great Iudah's Went up the Palace of Proud Babylon, The Prince Serajab him attending on,) dreadfull Prophet, (from whole blafting breath Came fudden death, and nothing elfe but death) Into Serajob's peacefull hand betooke The fad Contents of a more dismall Booke : Breake ope the leaves, those leaves so full of dread, led (onne of thunder) faid the Prophet, reade; Say ibus , fay freely thus, The Lord baib fooke it, Tildone, the world's unable to revoke it : The woe, and heavy woes ten thou fand more Buide great Babylon, that painted wbore; Thy buildings, and thy fenfive Towers fhall Hame on a fudden, and to cinders fall: None foat be left, to maile thy griefe with How!es : The Breets foull peopl'd be with Bats, and Owles : None fo all remaine, to call thy places voyd, Name to poffeffe, nor ought to be enjoy'd; Wought floall be left for thee to terme thine owne, lut belpleffe ruines of a bapleffe towne : Said then the Prophet, when thy language hath Impty'd thy Cheekes of this thy borrow'd Breath, the then the Booke, and bindera flone unto it, That done, into the froift Euphrates throw it, and let this following fpeech explaine withall The Hierogliphick of proud Babels fall. Thus, thus facil Babel, Thus fort Babels glory, ber destruction leave a Tragick flory:

Thus,

orin che fay, oles.

evid,

COL

and vich.

And

hu-nem

bleft care draw

who

Was

ftiles after e me

o tel

Thus, thus Thall Babell fall, and none relieve ber. Thus, thu forll Babel Gake, Thus finke for ever.

And falne the is. Thus after-times make good That facred Prophesie, confirm'd in blood.

Great Royall Dreamer, where is now that thing from Thou fo much vant dft of where, O foveraign King Afec Is that great Babel, that was rais'd fo hye, To show the highnesse of thy Majesty? Where is thy Royall-off-spring to succeed For w Thy Throne, and to preserve thy Princely seed Yeeld Till this time? Sleeping, how could'ft thou foreset Like That thing, which waking thou thoghtft ne'r wold And I

And thou Belfbazzer, (full of youthfull fire, (be) Orlin Vnlucky Grand-child to a luckleffe Syre) On thee the facred Oracles attended, For with thy life, great Babels Kingdome ended? What made thy Spirit tremble, and thy hayre The o Bolt up? What made thee (fainting)gaspe for ayre! A simple Word upon a painted Wall? Aswh What's that to thee ? If ought, what harme at all ? Wich Could words affright thee? O preposterous wit, Ahan To feare the writing, not the Hand that writ! Not le The Hand that writ, it selfe (unseene) did shroud Here I Within the gloomy bosome of a Cloud; Even The Hand that writ, was bent, (nor bent in vaine) To part the Kingdome, and the King in twaine, So fell Which The Hand that writ, did write the sentence downe, Ne'r f And now stands armed to depose the Crowne; The hand that writ, did threaten to translate But f Tofce Thy Kingdome (Babel) to the Persian state; Must n Th'effect whereof did brooke no long delayes, For when Belfbizzar had spun out his dayes, And C (Soone cut by that Avengers fatall knife,) He fig! He bu Proud Babels Empire ended with his life.

XUM

Her I

The

The v

So fr

Whol

Sobra

Marc

Two

(Reap

As when that rare Arabian Bird dor h reft Her bedrid carkaffe in her Spicy neft, The quick-devouring fire of heaven confumes The willing facrifice, in fweet perfumes, thing From whose sad cinders (baul'md in fun'ral spices) King Afecond Phænix (like the first) arises; So from the Ruines of great Babels Seat, The Medes and Perfians Monarchy grew great; For when Belfhazzar, last of Babels Kings, d Yeelded to death, (the fumme of mortall things) reset Like earth-amazing thunder from above, wold and lightning from the house of angry Jove, (be) Orlike two billowes in th' Eubæan Seas, Whose swelling, nought but shipwrack can appease Sobravely came the fierce Dariss on, ed: Marching with Cyrus into Babylon, Two Armies Royall floutly following, yre The one was Medes, the other Perfia's King: As when the Harvester, with bubling brow, all? (Reaping the intrest of his painfull Plough,) With crooked Sickle now a shock doth sheare, Ahandfull here, and then a handfull there, t, Not leaving, till he nought but stubble leave; Here lies a new-falne ranke, and there a sheave; ne) Even fo the Perfian Hoft it felfe beftur'd, Sofell great Babel by the Persian Sword, wne, Which warm with flaughter, & with blood imbru'd Ne'r sheath'd, till wounded Babel foll, subdn'd. But see ! These brave Ioynt-tenants that surviv'd To see a little world of men unliy'd, Must now be parted: Great Dains dyes, And Cyrus shares alone, the new-got prize; He fights for Heaven, Heavens soemen he subdues:

Hebuilds the Temple, he restores the lewes,

bo

By him was Zedechia force disjoynted,
Vnknown to God he was, yet Gods Anointed;
But marke the malice of a wayward Fate;
He whom successe crown'd alwaies fortunate,
He that was strong t'atchieve, bold to attempt,
Wise to foresee, and wary to prevent,
Valiant in warre, successe full to obtaine,
Must now be flaine, and by a Woman slaine.

Accurfed be thy factilegious hand,
That of her Patron rob'd the holy Land;
Curs'd be thy dying life, thy living death,
And curs'd be all things, that proud Tompri hath.
O worst that death can doe, to take a life,

Which(loft)leaves Kingdomes to a Tyrants knife For now, alas! degenerate Cambyfes (vices (Whose hand was fill'd with blood, whose hart with Site crowned King, to vexe the Persian state, With heavy burthens, and with fore regrate. O Cyrus, more unhappy in thy fon, Then in that stroke wherewith thy life was done! Cambyles now fits King, now Tyrant (rather!) (Vnlucky Sonne of a renowmed Father) Blood cries for Blood : Himfelfe revenged hath His bloody Tyranny, with his owne death; That cruell fword on his owne flesh doth feed, Which made fo many loyall Perfians bleed, Whose wofull choyce made an indiff rent thing, To leave their lives, or lose their Tyran' King: Cambyfes dead, with him the latest drop Of Cyrus blood was spilt, his death did stop The infant fource of his brave Syers worth, Ere after-times could spend his rivers forth.

Tyrant Cambyles being dead, and gone, On the reversion of his empty Throne,

Moni

For

To

AB

But

Tin

Gre

So

The

No

An

Th

So

Sha

For

Ob

No

Lab

Did

Son

Un

But

And

Afri

Son

Inc

Oth

Bett

The

On

One

No,

Thu

Dou

Mounts up a Mague with diffembled right, Forging the name of him, who fe greedy night Too carly did perpetuate her owne, And filent death had fnatcht away unknowne. But when the tydings of his Royall cheat, Times loyall Trumpe had fam'd, th'usurped feat Grew too ton hot, and longer could not beare So proud a burthen on fo proud a Chayre: The Nobles fought their freedome to regaine, Not resting, till the Magi all were flaine; And forenowned was that happy flaughter, That it folemniz'd was for ever after; So that what pen shall write the Persian story, Shall treat that Triumph, & write that daies glory; For to this time the Persians (as they fay) Observe a Feast, and keepe it holy-day; Now Perfia lacks a King, and now the State Labours as much in want, as it of late Did in abundance. Too great calmes doe harme Sometimes as much the Sea-man, as a ftorme; One while they thinke t'erect a Monarchy; But that (corrupted) breeds a Tyranny, And dead cambyjes, fresh before their cyes, Afrights them with their new-scap'd miseries; Some to the Nobles would commit the State, In change of Rule, expecting change of fate; Others cri'd, no; more Kings then one, incumber; Better admit one Tyrant, than a number: The rule of many doth disquiet bring; One Monarch is enough, one Lord, one King: One faies, Let's rule our felves; 'let's all be Kings; No, fayes another, that confusion brings; Thus moderne dauger bred a carefull trouble, Double their care is, as their feare is double;

ath.

knife

ath ı,

ing,

g.

And doubtfull to refolve of what conclusion,
To barre confusion, thus they bred confusion;
At last (and well advis'd) they put their cheyce
Vpon the verdict of a Iuries voyce;
Seven is a perfect number, then by seven,
Be Persia's royall Crowne, and Scepter given;
Now Persia, doe thy plagues or joyes commence;
God give thy lurie sacred evidence:

Fearfull to chuse, and faithlesse in their choyes, (Since weale, or woe depended on their voice,) A few from many they extracted forth, Whose even-poys'd valour, and like-equall worth Had set a Non pine on their doubtfull tongues, Vnwceting where the most reward belongs, They this agreed, and thus (advis'd) bespake;

Since porblind mortalis, of themsetves, can make No difference 'twixt good, and evill, nor know A good from what u onely good, in flow, But, with une onflant frailty doth vary From what is good, to what is che ane contrary ; And fince it lies not in the braine of man, To make his drooping flate more bappy, than His unprespitious stars allot, mach leffe To lend another, or a flate fucceffe, In vaine you therefore thall expect this thing, That we should give you fortune with a King: Since you have made us meanes to propagate The joyfull weifare of our headleffe State, (Bound by the tender fervice that we beare Our native foyle, fare then our lives more deche) We fifted bave, and boulted from the Reft, Whofe worft admits no badneffe, and whofe beft Cannot be bettered : When Chaunticleere, (the Belman of the morne)

Shall

Shall

Let ab

dud ti

Attend

richia

And h

To bin

thech

Thú 19

Some

Some

And a

Wh

And t

Comp

Came

With 1

nto t

There

There

This f

One fi

This n

Byt

uffe t

Where

der'c

Fort

ndep

Who is rocla

So

shall summan trailight, with his bugle borne, Le thefe brave Hero's, dreft in marlike mife, indrichly mounted on their Palferies, attend our rifing Sun- gods ruddie face, rubin the limits of our Royali place. and he whose lufty Stellion first foall neigh. to him be given the doubtfull Monarchy, the charge of Kings lies not in mortall s breft, this we; the Gods, and Fortune doe the reft.

So faid; the people, tickl'd with the motion, some rost their caps, some fell to their devotion, some clapt their joyful hads, some shout, some sing and all at once cry'd out, A King, A King.

When Phabus Harbinger had chae'd the night, and tedious Phospher brought the breaking light, Complete in armes, and glorious in their trayne, Came these brave Heroes, prancing o're the plaine, With mighey streamers came these blazing starres, Portending Warres, (and nothing else but Warrs;) nto the royall Palace now they come: There founds the martiall Trump, here beats the there stands a Steed, and champes his frothy steele his stroaks the groud; that scorns it with his beel ; One fnorts, another pufs out angry wind: this mounts, before; and that curvets, behind;

By this, the fomy Steeds of Phaetos uffe too, and spurne the Easterne Horizon : thereat the Nobles, prostrate to the ground, der'd their God, (their God was early found.) Forthwith, from out the thickest of the crowd, adepth of filence, there was heard the loud, ad luftfull language of Darius Horle, Tho in the dialect of his discourse, roclam'd his rider King; whereat the rest (Patient

orth

(Patient to beare what cannot be redreft) Difmount their lofty Steeds, and proftrate bring Their humbled bodies to their happy King; God fave the King, they joyntly fay; God bleffe Thy prosprous actions with a due successe; The people clap their sweatty palmes, and show, The bonfires smoke, the hels ting round about, The minstrels play, the Parrats learne to fing, (Perchance as well as they,) God fave the King. Affuerus now's invefted in the throne, And Persia's rul'd by him, and him alone; Prove happy Persa : Great Affinerus prove As equall happy in thy peoples love.

Enough; And let this broken breviate Suffice to shadow forth the downfall state Of mighty Babel, and the conquest made By the fierce Medes, & Perfians conqu'ring bla Whose just succession we have traced downe, Till great Affuerus weare the Perfian Crowne; Him have we fought, and having found him, reft,

To morrow goe we to his royall Feast.

FINIS.

XUM

Non

So Th

THE HIGHEST:

His Humble Servant Implores his gracious ayde.

Thou great Directer of the hearts of men,
From whence I propagate what e'r is mine;
Still my disquiet thoughts, Direct my Pen
No more mine owne, if thou adopt it thine:
Oh, be thy Spirit All in All to me,
That will implore no ayde, no Muse, but thee:

Bethou the Load flarre to my wandring minde, New rig d, and bound upon a new Adventure: Ofill my Canvac with a prosp rous winde; Valocke my soule, and let thy Spirit enter: Soblesse my Talent with a fruitfull Lone, That it, at least, may render two for one,

Vinverthy

ring

ic,

;, ic;

reft

Ynworthy I, to take so high a Taske s
Ynworthy I, to crave so great a Boone:
Alae! unseason'd is my stender Caske,
My Winters day hath scarcely scene her Noones
But if the Childrens Bread must be deny'd, Tet let me lieke the Crammes that fall beside.

and he washed a free letter.

The markey we re rem for one,

THE Soft!

Con

Whice (For

Pare!

Which Parely To ma He ma Fit for

VIIM

HISTORIE OF ESTER.

THE ARGYNENT.
The King Afficeries makes two Feafls,
Invites his great and meaner gueffs;
He makes a Statute to repress
The losbsome sun of Drunkennesse.

Sect. 1:

When great Assuerus (under whose Comand the worlds most part did in subjectio stad, Whose Kingdome was to East and West confin'd, And stretcht from Ethiopia unto Ind',) i (power When this brave Monarch had with two yeeres Confirm'd himfelfe the Perfian Emperour; The peoples patience nilling to sustaine The hard oppression of a third yeeres raigne, softly began to grumble, fore to vexe, Feeling fuch Tribute on their fervile necks; Which when the King (as he did quickly) heares, (For Kings have tender, and the nimblest earcs) Partly to blow the coales of old affection, Which now are dying through a forc'd subjection; Partly to make his Princely might appeare, Tomake them feare for love, or love for feare, He made a Feaft : He made a Royall Feaft, Fit for himselfe, had he himselfe bin Guest;

To which he calls the Princes of his Land, Who (paying tribute) by his power stand; To which he calls his fervants of Estate, His Captaines, and his Rulers of the State, That he may shew the glory of his store, The like unscene by any Prince before; That he may boaft his Kingdomes beauty forth, His fervant Princes, and their Princely worth; That he may shew the Type of Sov'raignty Fulfil'd, in th'honour of his Majesty: He made a Feast, whose Date should not expire, Vntill feven Moones had loft, and gain'd their fire.

When as this royall-tedious Feast was ended, (For good more common 'tis, 'tis more comended) For meaner forthe made a fecond Featt; His Guests were from the greatest to the least In Sufa's place; Seven dayes they did refort To Feaft i'th Palace Garden of the Court; Where in the midft, the house of Bacchus stands The I To entertaine when Bounty claps her hands; Tofw The Tap'ftry hangings were of divers hue, The S Pure white, and youthfull Greene, and joyful blue, Comf The maine supporting Pillers of the Place Bywh Were perfed Marble of the pureft race; Docs The Beds were rich, right Princely to behold, So mi Ofbeaten Silver, and of burnish't Gold. To pe The Pavement was discolour'd Porphyry, But to ·And during Marble, colour'd diverfly; Those In lavish Cups of oft-refined gold, oloy Came wine unwisht, drinke what the people would ench v The Golden veffels did in number paffe, le shal Great choice of Cups, great choyce of wine then Prince And fince Abuse attends upon Excelle, Leading fweet Mirth to lothforne Drunkenness, bon A

So

Info

Sot

And

Toa

Whe

Whe

Wife

Who

Tobe

Who

A temp'rate Law was made, that no man might Inforce an undisposed Appetite; So that a fober mind may use his pleasure, And measure drinking, though not drinke by mea-

Meditat. 1.

NTO man is borne unto himselse alone; Who lives unto himselfe, he lives to none: The World's a body, each man a member is, Toadde some measure to the publike bliffe; Where much is given, there much shall be requir'd, Where little, leffe; for riches are but hyr'd; Wisedome is sold for sweat; Pleasures for paine; Who lives unto himsefe, he lives in vaine; To be a Monarch is a glorious thing; Who lives not full of Care, he lives no King; The boundlesse glory of a King is such, Tosweeten Care, because his Care is much; I blus, The Sun (whose radient beames reste & so bright)
Comforts, and warmes, as well as it gives light, By whose example Phabe (though more dim) Does counterfeit his beames, and thines from him : mighty Kings are not ordain d alone To pearch inglory on the Princely Throne, out to direct in Peace, command in Warre Those Subjects, for whose sakes they onely are; oloyall subjects must adapt them to sch vertuous actions as their Princes doe: shall his people, even as well as He, rinces (though in a leffer volume)be. So often as I fixe my ferious eye pon Afuerus Feaft, me thinkes, I fpye

H 3

h,

re.

d,

d, r fire.

ndcd)

The Temple daunce, me thinkes, my ravisht eare (Rapt with the fecret mulicke that I heare) Attends the warble of an Angels tongue, Refounding forth this senee bereaving song; Vashti fall, and Ester rife, Sion fhall thrive, when Haman dyes. Bleft are the meetings, and the Banquets bleft, Where Angels caroll mulicke to the Feast; How doe our wretched times degenerate From former ages! How intemperate Hath lavish custome made our bed-ride Age, Acting obsceane Sceanes on her drunken Stage! Our times are guided by a lewder lot, As if that world another world begot : Their friendly fealts were fill'd with sweet sobrien Ours, with uncleane delights, and base ebricty; Theirs, the unvalued prife of Love intended; Ours feeke the cause, whereby our Love is ended How in fo blind an age could those men fee ! And in a feeing Age, how blinde are we!

THE ARGYMENT.
The King fends for the Queene, the Queene
Denies to come; His bafly fleene
Inflames, unto the Perfun Lawes
He leaves the confine of his canfe.

Sell. 2.

To adde more honour to this Royall Feaft, That Glory may with Glory be increast, Vashti the Queene (the fairest Queene on earth) She made a Feast, and put on jolly mirth, Tol

To:

Hat

Six !

And

Vpo

The

And

OfT

Rofe

(Ho

That

That

For l

And

To w

The !

More

With Answ And (

Ducen

Wher

(Whe

Here

Now | So Ao His co

He fte

NOW (

One v

and th

Bu

B

103

Tobid sweet welcome with her Princely cheere To all her Guests; Her Guests all, women were. By this the Royall bounty of the King Hath well-nigh spent the seven dales banqueting. Six Ioviall dayes have runne their howers out, And now the feventh revolves the weeke about, Vpon which day, (the Queenes unlucky Day) The King, with jollity intic'd away, And gently having flipt the ftricter reynes Of Temperance, (that over-mirth restraines) Rose up, commanded that without delay, (How-e're the Perfran custome doe gain-fay That men and maried wives should feast together) That faire Queene Vasti be conducted thither, For him to fhew the fweetnesse of her face, And peerleffe beauty mixt with Princely Grace, To wound their wanton hearts, and to furprize

But fairest Vasti (in whose scornfull Eyes
More hauty Pride, than heavenly beauty lyes)
With bold deniall of a flinty brest,
Answer'd the longing of the Kings request;
Answer'd the the feorne preturn of this message home
Queene Vasti cannot, Vasti will not come;
Wherear, as Boreau with his blustering,
(When sturdy Aries ushers in the Spring)
Here fells an aged Oke, there cleaves a Tree,

The Princes with th' Artill'rie of her eyes.

Now holds his full-mouth'd blaff, now lets it flee, softormes the King; now pale, now fy'ry red, His colour comes and goes, his angry head He fternly shakes, spits his inraged speene, Now on the messenger, now on the Queene; One while he deeply waighes the soule contempt, and then his passion bids his wrath attempt

H 4

e!

rich nded

me

ft,

th)

73

A quicke revenge; now creepe into his thought Such things as aggravate the peevish fault : The place, the persons present, and the time Increase his wrath, increase his Ladies Crime.

But soone as Passion had restor'd the Reyne To righteous Reason's government againc; The King (unfit to judge his proper Cause) Roferr'd the triall to the Perfian Lawes : He call'd his learned Counfell, and display d The nature of his Grievance thus, and faid :

By vertue of a Husband, and a King, (To make semplete our Royall banquetting) We experient me gave a Arici commant. That by the affire of our Eunychs band, Ducene Vafhti fosuldin flate attended be Into the prefence of our Majeflie. But in contempt. foe flacks our dread beheft Regletts performance of our deare Requell. And (through difdaine) diflo yally deny'd, Like a filfe [whije &, and a faitbleffe Bride : Say then (my Lords) for you (being truly wife) Have braines to judge, and judgements, to advise; Say boldly (fay) what doe the Lames assigne? What punishment? or what deferved Fine? Affucrus bids, the mighty King commands : Vainti denjes, the feornefull Ducene with Hands.

Meditat, 2.

Vill manners breed good Lawes: And that's the Mo that e'r was made of bad: The Persian feast (bel To be (Finding the mischiefe that was growne fo rife) Passio Admitted not with men a maried wife.

How

Which Ch

ow i

W 3

ly fu

low h thy f

Where

Thy L

Wher

Sent o Where

The C

Or ha

And t Sure t

Or ch

(Our

Defire

Had n

That

Perha

Vnfen

Such a Cutto Conju

Enfuc

Is mo

105 for carefull were they in preferving that, which we so watchfull are to violate ! Chaftity, the Flower of the foule, wis thy perfect fairnesse turn'd to foule ware thy Bloffemes blafted all to duft, y fudden lightning of untamed Luft! fow haft thou thus deal'd thy Iv'ry feet ! Thy fweetnesse that was once, how far from fweet ! There are thy maiden-fmiles ? thy blushing check? thy Lamb-like countenance, fo faire, fo meeke? There is that spotlesse Flower that while-ere Within thy lilly-bosome thou didst weare? la's wanton Cupid fnatcht it ? Hath his Dart ent courtly tokens to thy simple heart ? Where dost thou bide? the Country halfe disclames. The City wonders when a body names thee : (thee; Or have the rurall Woods ingrost thee there, And thus forestall'd our empty markets here? Sureth'art not, or kept where no man showes thee; Or chang'd so much, scarce man or woman knowes Our Grandame Eve, before it was forbid, (thee. Defired not the fruit, the after did: Had not the Custome of those times ordain'd That women from mens feasts should be restrain'd, Perhaps (Affuerss) Vafiti might have dyed Valent for, and thy felfe beene undenyed: Such are the fruits of mirths, and wines abuse, Cuftomes must crack, and love must break his truce, Conjugiall bands must loose, and sullen Hate Ensues the Feast, where Wine's immoderate. s the More difficult it is, and greater skill (bell To beare a mischiefe, than prevent an ill: Is more divine, and vertues operation:

To

How

To doe amiffe, is Natures act; to erre,
Is but a wretched mortalls character:
But to prevent the danger of the ill,
Is more than Man, surpassing humane skill:
Who playes a happy game with crafty sleight,
Confirmes himselfe but Fortunes Favourite;
But he that husbands well an ill-dealt game,
Deserves the credit of a Gamesters name;
I Lord, if my Cards be bad, yet lend me skill
To play them wisely and make the best of ill.

THE AR GVMENT.
The learned Counfell plead the cafe;
The Queene degraded from her place;
Decrees are fent throughout the Land,
That Wives obey, and men command.

Sed. 3.

The righteous Counsel (having heard the cause Adviz'd a while, (with respite of a pause, Till Memican (the first that silence brake)
Vnseal'd his serious lips, and thus bespake:
The Great Assurings sorraigne Lord and King,
(To grace the period of his banquetting)
Hath seat for Vashti; Vashti would not come,
And now it ress in me to give the doome.
But lest too much rashvesse violate
The sacred suffice of our bappy sace,
We first propound the beight of her offence,
Next, the succeeding successioner.
Which through the circumstances does augment,
And is descend to the aqual punisonent;

The !

Man

Ner

For a

West

Ofth

Shall

Their

Affu Affu By V

Thus

Now

(Sin

Let &

Hisr

But !

Les f

Her

To as

So m

Waffence propounded, now we must relate Such circumftances that might aggravate, And first, the Place, (the Palace of the King,) And next, the Time, (the Time of Banquetting) Laftly, the Perfons, (Princes of the Land) Which witneffe the contempt of the command; The Place, the Perfens prefent, and the Time, Maje foule the fault, make foule the Ladies crime ; Ner was ber fault unto the King alone, But to the Princes, and to every one, For when this freesh divulg'd about fall be, Vafhei the Queene withflood the Kings Decree, Women (that foone can an advantage take Of things which for their private ends doe make) Shall fcorne their coward busbands, and defpife Their deare requests within their fornfull eyes, And fay, If we deny your befts, then blame not, Affuerus fent for Valhti, but fbe came not; By Vashties patterne others will be taught; Thus ber example's fouler than ber fault : cause Now therefore if it like our gracious King, (Since be refers to us the censuring) Let bim proclaime (which untranfgreffed be) His royall Sdiel, and bu juft Decree, That Vafhti come no more before his face, But leave the sixles of ber Princely place : Let firme divorce unloofe the Muptial knot, And let the name of Queene be quite forgot, Let ber effate, and princely dignity, HerRoyall Crowne, and feat affigued be To one whose facred vertue Shall attaine As high perfection, as ber bold difdaine So when this Royall Edict fhall be fam'd, And through thefeverall Provinces proclam'd, Difdain.

Disdainfull wives will learne, by Vashties fall,
To answer centh to their Hunbands call.
Thus ended Memucan; the King was pleas'd;
(His blustring passion now at length appeas'd)
And soone apply'd himselfe to undertake,
To put in practice what his Counsell spake:
So, into every Province of the Land,
He sent his speedy Letters, with command,
That Husbands rule their wives, & beare the sway,

And by subjection teach their Wives t'obey.

Medita 3

He God with facred breath did first inspire The new-made earth with quick, and holy He (well advising, what a goodly creature He builded had, fo like himfelfe in feature) Forth-with concluded by his preservation T'eternize that great worke of Mans creation; Into a fleepe he caft this living clay, Lockt up his fenfe with drowzy Merphens key, Opened his fruitfull flanke, and from his fide, He drew the fubstance of his helpfull Bride, Flesh of his flesh, and bone made of his bone He framed Woman, making two of one; Thus broke in two, he did anew ordaine That these same two should be made One againes Till fingling Death this facred knot undoe, And part this new-made One, once more in two. I Since of a Rib first framed was a Wife, Let Ribs be Hi'rogliphicks of their life : Rios coast the Heart, and guard it round about, And like a trufty Watch keepe danger out;

XUM

Series All a But I Won And If Ris

If Rill They Wom And I The I

It was When

Your Who! What The ! Their

Their As we. And fo Mount

Onely And h So lon

ACoc

Obey

.

Setender wives should loyally impart Their watchfull care, to fence their Spouses heart: All members else from out their places rove, But Ribs are firmly fixt, and feldome move : Women (like Rlbs) must keepe their wonted home, And not (like Dinab that was ravisht) rome : If Ribs be over-bent, or handled rough, They breake; If let alone, they bend enough: Women must (unconstrain'd) be plyent still, And gently bending to their Husbands will. The facred Academy of mans life bholy wedlocke in a happy Wife. It was a wifemans speech, could never they Know to command, that knew not first t'obey : Where's then that high command>that ample fame Your fexe, to glorifie their honour'd name, Your noble fexe in former dayes atchiev'd? Whose founding praise no after-times out-liv'd. What brave exploits? what well-deferving glory The subject of an everlasting story, Their hads atchiev'd they thrust their Scepters the As well in Kingdomes, as in hearts of men; And sweet obedience was the lowly staire, Mounted their steps to that commanding chaire. A Womans Rule should be in such a fashion, Onely to guide her houshold, and her passion : And her obedience never's out of feafon, ine: If thrives the haplefic Family, that showes ACocke that's filent, and a Hen that crowes. wo. Inow not which live more unnatural lives,

Obeying Husbands, or commanding Wives.

aspire holy (fire,

130

THE ARGYMENT.
Aftuorus pleas dy bis fervants motion
Propounded, gaine bis approbation.
Efters descent, her temple race:
Mer beauties, and her per sis groce.

Sed. 4.

When Time (that endeth all things) didast The burning Fever of Affuerus rage, (swage And quiet satisfaction had assign d Delightfull Iu'lips to his troubled minde, He call'd his old remembrance to account Of Yabu, and her Crimes that did amount

To the summe of her divorcement; In his thought He weigh'd the censure of her heedlesse fault: His fawning servants willing to prevent him, (him Left too much thought should make his love repeat

Left too much thought mouth make his love.
Said thus: (If is fitall please our gracious Lord
To crowne with audience bis servants word)
Let firid Inquest, and carefull Inquisition
In all the Realme be made, and quicke provision

Throughout the Afedes and Perfians all along For comely Vingins, beautifull and yong, Which (curiously feletled) lee them bring

Into the Reyall Palace of the King;

And let the Eumschs of the King take care

For Princely Robes, and Veflure, and prepare

Sweet Chants, choice Perfumes, and all things west,

To addo a greater sweemesse to their sweet;

And foe, whose perfett beames shall best delight,

And forme most gracione in bis princely fight;

The Tha Wick By b By cl

(Whe Whe And With Who

His b This She v Her V Brigh And i

Whice To m Each

THE LE LE LIP'NE And if

7

To her be given the Conquest of ber face, and be entbron'd in fcornfull Vashties place. The project pleas'd the King, who straight requires That ftriet performance fecond their defires : Within the walls of Sbufa dwelt there one, By breeding, and by birth a Iew, and knowne By th' name of Mordecai, of mighey kin, Descended from the Tribe of Benjamin, (Whose necke was subject to the flavish yoke, When Joconiab was furpris'd and tooke, And caried captive into Babels Land, With strength of mighty Neb'chadneggars hand;) Within his house abode a Virgin bright, Whose name was Efter, or Hadaffa hight, His brothers daughter, whom (her parents dead) This Iew did foster, in her fathers stead She wanted none, though father the had none, Her Vncles love affum'd her for his owne; Bright beames of beauty freamed from her eye, And in her cheeke fate maiden modesty ; Which peerleffe beauty lent so kinde a rellish To modest vertue, that they did imbellish Each others ex'lence, with a full affent, liber to boatt their perfect complement.

Meditat. 4.

The firongest Arcteries that knit and tye
The members of a mixed Monarchy, Ire learned Counsels, timely Consultations, lip'ned Advice, and sage Deliberations;
And if those Kingdomes be but ill be-blest,
Viose Rule's committed to a young mans brest;
These

idaß wage ight

(him

Then fuch Estates are more unhappy farre, Whose choicest Councellors but Children are : How many Kingdomes bleft with high renowne, (In all things happy else) have plac's their crowne Vpon the Temples of a childish head, Vntill with ruine, King, or State be sped! What Massacres (begun by factious jarres, And ended by the spoile of vivill warres) Have made brave Monarchies unfortunate, And raz'd the glory of many a mighty State How many hopefull Princes (ill advis'd By young, & smooth-fac'd Counsell)bave despis'd The facred Oracles of riper yeares, Till deare Repentance washt the Land with teares Witnesse thou lucklette, and succeeding Son Of (Wisedomes Favourite) great Salamon ; How did thy rash, and beardlesse Counsell bring Thy fortunes subject to a ftranger King? And laying burthens on thy peoples necke, The weight hung fadly on thy bended backe. Thou fecond Richard, (once our Britaine King, whose Syr's, & Grandfyr's fame the world did ring How was thy gentle nature led afide, By greene advisements, which thy State did guide, Vntill the title of thy Crowne did cracke, Andfortunes (as thy Fathers name) were blacke? Now glorious Britaine, clap thy hands, and bleft Thy facred fortunes; for thy happinetle (As dosh thy Iland) does it felfe divide, And sequester from all the world beside; Bleft are thy open Gates with joyfull peace, Bleft are thy fruitfull barnes with fweet increased He fes Bleft in thy Counfell, whose industrious skill, Toffe Is but to make thy fortunes happy full ; Rich T

Th

Lo

Th

40

Forth

The 1

Arme

Toga

But m

Aslov

Inloy

In all things bleft, that to a State pertaine; Thrice happy in my dreaded Soveraigne, My facred Sov'raigne, in whose onely brest, A wife Allembl' of Privie Counfells reft, Who conquers with his princely hourt as far By peace, as Alexander did by War, And with his Olive branch more hearts did boord, Than daring Cefar did, with Cefars fword: Long maift thou hold within thy Royall hand, The peaceful! Scepter of our happy Land: Great Intab's Lyon, and the Flow'r of leffe. Preserve thy Lyons, and thy Flowers bleffe.

> THE ARGVAENT. Paire Virgins brought to Hege's Bank, The cuft me of the Perfian Land : Esters weglett of rich artire. To whet the wanten Kings defire.

Sett. s. A Nd when the lufffull Kings Decree was read In ev'ry care, and Shire proclam'd, and spred, Forthwith unto the Eunuch Hege's hand The Bovy came, the pride of beauties band, Armed with joy, and warring with their eyes, To gaine the conquest of a princely prize But none in peerlede beauty thin'd fo bright, As lovely Efter did, in Hege shight : Inloyall fervice he observed her; He fens for coffly Oyles, and fragrant Myrrh, Toffther for the prefence of the King : lich Tyres, and change of vefture did he bring;

pis'd ares ring

guide ackel

d blefe calcy

ill,

Seven comely maids he gave, to tend upon her, To shew his service, and increase her honour: But she was watchfull of her lips, and wise, Disclosing not her kinred, or alyes: For trusty Mardochem tender care Gave hopefull Ester Items to beware To blaze her kin, or make her people knowne, Lest for their sake, her hopes be overthrowne. Before the Gates he to and fro did passe, Wherein inclos'd the Courtly Ester was, To understand how ester did behave her, And how she kept her in the Eunuchs sauour.

Now when as Time had fitted ev'ry thing, By course, these Virgins came before the King.

Such was the custome of the Persian Soyle, Sixe months the Virgins bath'd in Myrrh & Oyle, Sixe months perfum'd in change of odours sweet, That perfect luft, and great excelle may meet; What coffly Robes, rare Iewels, rich attire, Or curious Fare, these Virgins did desire, Twas given, and freely granted, when they bring Their bodies to be proftrate to the King : Each Virgin keepes her turne, and all the night They lewdly lavish in the Kings delight, And foone as morning shall restore the day, They in their bosomes beare blacke night away, And (in their guilty brefts, as are their finnes Close prisoners) in the house of Concubines Remaine, untill the fatiate King shall please To lend their pamperd bodyes a release.

Now when the turne of Efter was at hand, To fatisfie the wanton Kings command, Shee fought not (as the reft) with brave attire, To lend a needlesse spurre r'unchast Desire,

Net

N

H

Ea

As

The

Far

Th:

Wig

Wit

Tru

The

Yee

Botl

His I

Stan

All C

Man

Vper

Hetr

Whic

And Nako

Forh

Nor yet endevours with a whorish Grace,
T'adulterate the beauty of her face;
Nothing she sought to make her glory braver,
But simply tooke, what gentle Here gave her:
Her sober visage daily wan her honour:
Each wandting eye instam'd, that look'd upon her.

Meditat. 5.

7 Hen God had with his All-producing Blaft, Blowne up the bubble of the World, & plac's In order that, which he had made in meafure, As well for necessary use, as pleasure: Then out of earthy mould he fram'd a creature Farre more Divine, and of more glorious feature Than earst he made, indu'd with understanding, With strength, victorious, & with awe commanding, With Reason, Wit, replete with Majesty, With heavenly knowledge, and Capacity, True embleme of his Maker : Him he made The fov raigne Lord of all; Him all obay'd; Yeelding their lives (as tribute) to their King; Both Fish, and Bird, and Beast, and every thing: His body's rear'd upright, and in his eye, Stand radient beames of awfull fov raignty; All Creatures else pore downward to the ground, Man lookes to heaven, and al his thoughts rebound Vpon the Earth (where tydes of pleasures mees) He treads, and daily tramples with his feet; Which reade fweet Lectures to his wandring eyes, And teach his luftfull heart to moralize: Naked he liv'd, nak'd to the world he came; For he had then nor fault to hide, nor hame : His ect,

XIIM

Net

ring

Y,

His state was levell, and he had free will Toftand or fall, unforft to good or ill; Man had (fuch flate he was created in) Within his pow'r, a power not to fin : But Man was tempted, yeelded, finn'd, and fell, Abus'd his free-will, loft it, then befell A worse succeding state; who was created Complete, is now become poore, blind, and naked; He's drawne with head-strong bias unto ill, Bereft of active pow'r to will, or nill; A bleffed Saint's become a balefull Devill, His free-will's onely flinted now to evill : Pleafure's his Lord, and in his Ladies eyes His Christall Temple of devotion lyes : Pleasure's the white, whereathe takes his levell, Which (too much wronged with the name of evill) With best of bleffings takes her lofty feat, Greatest of goods, and feeming best of great : What's good, (like Iron) rufts for want of ufe. And what is bad is worfed with abufe ; Pleasure, whose apt, and right ordained end Is but to fweeten labour, and attend The frailty ofman, is now preferr'd fo hie. To be his Lord, and beare the for raignty, Ruling his flavish thoughts, ignoble actions. And gaines the conquest of his best affections. Sparing no coft to bolfter up delight, But force vaine pleasures to unwonted height : Who addes excelle unto a luftfull heart. Commits a coffly fin, with greater Art.

THE

No

An

Go

An

As

Pic

No

And

The

Shi

Thi

Vpc

Atl

She

So y

Perc

He li He v Spar Tran Efter i THE ARGV MENT. Efter's below d, wedded, crown's; A Treason Mordecai betrai'd; The Traitors are pursu'd, and sound, And for their treason well appayd.

Sel. 6.

TOw, now the time is come, faire Effer must Expose her beautic to the Lethers luft; Now, now must Efter stake her honour downe, And hazzard Chastity, to gaine a Crowne; Gone, gone fac is, attended to the Court, And spends the evening in the Princes Sport : As when a Lady (walking Flora's Bowre) Picks here a Pinke, and there a Gilly-flowre, Now plucks a Vi'let from her purple bed, And then a Primerofe. (the yeeres maiden-head) There, nips the Bryer; here, the Louers Pauncy. Shifting her dainty pleafures, with her Fancy, This, on her arme; and that, the lifts to weare Vpon the borders of her curious haire, At length, a Rose-bud (palling all the rest) She plucks, and bosomes in her Lilly breft: So when Affurus (tickled with delight) Perceiv'd the beauties of those virgins bright, He lik't them all, but when with ftrict revye, He viewed Effers face, his wounded eye Sparkl'd, whill Cupid with his youthfull Dare, Transfixt the Center of his feeble heart; Her is now his joy, and in her eyes, The sweetest flower of his Garland lyes:

Who

kcd;

Who now but Efer? Efter crownes his bliffe, And hee's become her prisoner, that was his: Efter obtaines the prize, her high desert Like Di'mond's richly mounted in his heart; 18, now 16 Hymen fings; for she That crownes his joy, must likewise crowned be: The Crowne is set on Princely Efters head.

Efter sits Queene in scornfull Vasties stead.

To confectate this Day to more delights,
In due folemnizing the nuptiall rites,
In Elers name, Affuerus made a Fealt,
Invited all his Princes, and releast
The hard taxation, that his heavy hand
Laid on the subjects of his groning Land;
No rites were wanting to augment his joyes,
Great gifts confirm'd the bounty of his choyce;
Yet had not Elers lavist tongue descri'd
Her Iewish kin, or where she was aly'd;
For still the words of Mordetai did rest
Within the Cabbin ofher Royall brest,
Who was as plyent (belng now a Queene)
To sage aduice, as ere before sh'ad been.

It came to passe, as Mardochem sate
Within the Portall of the Princes gate,
He over-heard two scrvants of the King,
Clossy combin' din hollow whispering,
(Like whistling Worm that foretells a raine)
To breathe out treason' gainst their Soveraigne:
Which, soone as loyall Mardochem heard,
Forthwith to Effers presence he repair'd;
Disclos'd to her, and to her care commended
The Traitors, and the treason they intended;
Whereat, the Queene (imparient of delay)
Betrayd the Traitors, that would her betray,

And

An

Th

To

(W

W

(T

An

An

W

No

Ma

W

WI

We

An

Of

Or

T

Or

Ob

119

And to the King unbosom'd all her heart, And who her Newes-man was, and his defert.

Now all on hurly-burly was the Court,
Aft tongues were filld with wonder and report:
The watch was fet, purfuit was made about,
To guard the King, and finde the Traitours out,
Who found, and guilty found, by fpeedy triall,
(Where witneffe fpeakes, what boots a bare denial)
Were both hang'd up, upon the fhamefull tree:
(To beare fuch fruit let trees ne'r barren be:)
And what fucceffe this happy Day afforded,
Was in the Perfian Chronicles recorded.

Meditat, 6.

THe hollow Concave of a humane breft Is Gods Exchequer, and therein the best, And fumme of all his chiefest wealth confists, Which he fluts up, and opens when he lifts : No power is of man ; To love or hate, Lyes not in morrals breft, or pow'r of Fate : Man wants the ftrength to Iway his ftrong affectios What power is, is from Divine directions ; Which oft (unfeene through dulneffe of the minde) We nick-name, Chance, because our selves are blind And that's the caufe, mans first beholding eye Oft loves, or hates, and knowes no reason why. Twas not the brightneffe of Rebecca's face, Or fervants skill, that wan the virgins grace : Twas not the wish, or wealth of Abraham, Or Ifacks fortune, or renowned name, His comely perfonage, or his high defert, Obtain'd the conquest of Rebecca's heart ;

IA

Old

Old Abra'm witht, in fecret God directed Twas Aba'm, va'd the meanes, 'twas God effected; Best marriages are made in heaven; In heaven, The hearts are joyned; in earth the hands are given, First God ordaines, then man confirmes the Loug' Proclaming that on earth, was done aboue. Twas not the tharpnetic of thy wandting eye, (Great King Affuerus) to picke Maietty From out the fadnesse of a Captines face; Twas not alone thy chufing, nor her grace; Who mounts the meeke, and beates the lefty down Gaue thee the heart to chuse, gaue her the Crowne;

Who bleft thy fortunes with a second wife, He bleft thy fortunes with a fecond life; That breft that entertain d'o sweet a Bride, Stood faire to Treason, (by her meanes descride;) With double fortunes, wer't thou doubly bleft, To finde fo faire, and scape so foule a guest. Thou aged father of our yeeres, and howres, (For thou as well discouerst, as deuoures) Search fill the entrails of thy iust Records, Wherein are entred the diutnall words. And deeds of mortall men; Bring (thou) to light All trech'rous projects, mann'd by craft, or might With Towr's of Braffe, their faithfull hearts imbolle The K That beare the Christian colours of the Crosse. And Thou Preferuer of all mortall things. Within whole hands are plac'd the hearts of Kings By whom all Kingdomes Hand, and Princes raignes Preserve thy CHARLES, and my deare Soueraigne Who Let Traitors plots, like wandring Atomes, fly, And on their heads pay ten-fold viury; His bosome tuter, and his fafety, tender : O be thou his, as hee's thy Faiths. Defender :

That

nere

Fullg

and fi lelon

Tofui

and d

With 1

hey:

he fe cout hich

heir

That thou in him, and he in thee may reft, and we of both may live and dye poffeft.

> THE ARGUMENT. Theline of Haman, and bis race; His fortunes in the Princes grace: His rage to Mordecai expreft. Not beming to bim, as the reft.

> > Sell. 7.

Pon a time, to Perfias Royall Court, A forraigne Stranger uled to refort, He was the iffue of a Royall breed, The off-cast off-spring of the cursed seed Of Awelek from him descended right, That fold his birth-right for his Appetite; Beman his name; His fortunes did improve, Increast by favour of the Princes love; full great he grew, preferd to high command, and plac'd before the Princes of the Land: and fince that honour, and due reverence clong where Princes give preeminence; ight bolle The King commands the fervants of his State. Tofuite respect to Haman high estate, and doe him honour, fitting his degree, Kings With vailed Bonner, and low bended knee : igne hey all observ'd; But aged Mordecai aigno Whose stubborne joynts neglected to obey he feed which Heaven with infamy had braded) toutly refused what the King commanded; hich, when the fervants of the King had feene, heir fell disdaine, mixt with an envious folcene; Inflam'd;

That

.

d:

49 nwo ne:

hc

XUM

Inflam'd; They question'd how he durst withstand
The just performance of the Kings Command;
Daily they checkt him for his high distaine,
And he their checks did daily entertaine
With filent slight behaviour, which did prove
As full of care, as their rebukes of love.

Since then their hearts (not able to abide A longer fuffrance of his peevish pride) (Whose scorching fires, passion did augment,) Must either breake, or finde a speedy vent : To Haman they th'unwelcome newes related, And what they faid, their malice aggravated. Envie did ope her Snake-devouring lawes, Foam'd frothy blood, and bent her unked Pawes, Her hollow eyes did caft out sudden flame, And pale as ashes lookt this angry Dame, And thus belpake! Art thou that man of might, That Impe of Glory? Times great Favorite? Hath thy deferved worth reftor'd agains The blemifts benour of thy Princely fraine? Art thou that Wonder which the Perfian State Stands gazing at somuch, and posming at? Filling all wondring eyes with Admiration, and every loyall beart with Adoration? Art thou that mighty He? How baps it then That wretched Mordccai, the work of men. A saptive fleve, a superfitious lem, Slights thee, and robs thee of thy rightfull due? Nor was his fault difguis'd with Ignorance, (The unfee'd Advocate of finne) or Chance, But backt mith Arrogance and foule Despite: Rife up, and doe thy fuffring bonour right.

Vp (like his deepe Revenge) role Hanas then, And like a fleeping Lion from his Den,

Rouz'd

nd G

Confi

His R

And]

and (

The Then !

like po

Nor C.

Thy mo

Tober

Mads

Nat 10

touz'd his relentleste Rage; But when his eye Confirm'd the newes Report did teftifie, His Reason straight was heav'd from off his henge, and Fury rounded in his eare, Revenge, Ind (like a rash Adviser) shus began : There's nothing (Haman) a more deare to man, and cooles bis boyling veines with sweeter pleasure, then quicke Revenge; for to revenge by leifure, hut like feeding, when the flomake's paft, Pleafing nor eager appetite, nor tafte: In when delay returnes Revenge the greater, the poynant fauce, it makes the meat the fuccter : lifts not th' benow of thy personage, In flands it with thy Greatneffe, toingage Thy noble thoughts, to make Revenge fo poore, Tibereveng'd on one alone: thy fore Meds many plaisters : make thy bonour good,

Meditat. 7.

Val with a drop, but mith a world of blood: brow the Sythe of Time, and let thy Pafsion Mome downe thy Iemifb Foe, with all bis Nation.

Lights God for curfed Amalek? That hand That once did curse, doth now the curse with-BGod unjust? Is Iustice fled from heaven; (stand: Or are the righteous Ballances uneven ? Isthis that Iust Ichova's facred Word, Firmely inroll'd within the Lawes Record, la fight with Amaleh deftroy bis Nation, had from remembrance blurre bis Generation? What, shall his Curfe to Amaleh be voyd? and with those plagues shall Ist'el be destroyd Ah, Rouz

hen,

Ah, soner shall the sprightly slames of sire Descend and moysten; and dull carth, aspire, and with her drynesse quench saite Than heate. Then shall thy words, and just Decrees retreat. The Day, (as weary of his burthen) tyres; The Yeere (sull laden with her months) expires; The heav'ns (grown great with age) must some a The pondrous earth in time shall passe away; (as But yet thy sacred Words shall asway flourish; Though daies, & yeres, & heave & carth do person

How perkes proud Haman then? What profp to Exalts his Pagan head? How fortunate (fin Hath favour crown d his times? Hath God decree No other Curfe upon that curfed leed?

The mortalleye of man can but perceive Things present; when his heart cannot conceive, Hee's either by his outward fenfes guided, Or,like a Quere, leaves it undecided: The fleshly eye that lends a feeble fight, Failes in extent, and hath no further might Than to attaine the object : and there ends His office; and of what it apprehends, Acquaints the understanding which conceives, And descants on that thing the fight perceives, Or good, or bad, unable to project The just occasion; or the true effect: Man fees like man, and can but comprehend Things as they prefent are, not as they end; God fees a Kings heart, in a flrepheards breft; And in a mighty King, he fees a Beaft: Tis not the Spring tide of an high eftate

Creates a man (though feering) Fortunate's The blaze of Honous, Fortunes (weet excelle, Doe undeferve the name of Happinelle)

The

erch

ad le

Lor

[mal dle md !

Maft

afts L

pic mof

lon

Ham

plain

Pon!

ere flo

Refr

the frownes of indisposed Fortune makes lin poore, but not unhappy. He that takes inchecks with patience, leaves the name of poore addets in Fortune at a backer doore. Lord, let my fortunes be or rich, or poore: finall, the lesse account; if great, the more.

THE ARGVMENT.

Priothe King proud Haman fues,
For the destruction of the lewes:
The King consents, and in hu name
Decrees were sent t'essell the sume.

Sect. 8.

TOw when the yeer had turn'd his course about And fully worne his weary howers out, d left his circling travell to his heire, ntnow fets onfer to th'enfuing yeere, and Haman (pain'd with travelf in the birth, Mafter-time could bring his mischiefe forth) the Lots, from month to month, from day to day. spicke the choycest time, when Fortune may Hon the last month fell th'unwilling Lot : Haman guided by his Idoll Fate, loking with publike good his private Hate) plaintife tearmes, where Reason forg'd a relist to the King, his fpeech did thus imbellifh : Ponthe limits of this bappy Nation, me flotes a shumme, an off caf Generation, aft, defpis'd, and noy some to the L, and, Refractory to the Lames, to thy Com mand,

Nat

eate,

one de perill lp ro

CCTE

CS,

CS,

le,

Not Rooping tothy Power, but despiting All Government but of their owne deviling Which fires the glowing embers of division, The batefull mother of a States perdition, The which (not fome redreft by Reformation) Willyuine breed to thee, and to thy Nation, Begetting Rebels, and feditions broyles, and fill thy peacefull Land, with bloody fooyles:

Now therefore, if it please my gracious Lord, To right this grievance with bis Princely foord, That Beath, and equal Iuflice may o'rembelme The fecret Rumers of thy facred Realme, Vato the Royall Treasure of the King. Ten thousand silver Talents will I bring.

Then gave the King, from off his heedleffe han Wept His Ring to Haman, with that Ring command, And faid : Thy proffer a wealth poffeffe, Tet be thy juft Petition ne'rtbeleffe Entirely granted, Loe before thy face Thy vaffals bye, with all their rebell race; Thine be the people, and the power thine, Tallet thefe Rebells their deferved Fine. Forthwith the Scribes were fummon'd to appear Decrees were written, fent to ev'ry Shiere; To all Lievtenants, Captaines of the Band, And all the Provinces throughout the Land, Stil'd in the name and person of the King, And made authentick with his Royall Ring; By Speedy Post-men were the Letters Sent; And this the fumme is of their fad content :

ASSYERVS REX. Let su'ry Province in the Perfan Land, (Fren the Day prefixt) prepare bis hand, To make the Channels flow with Robels blood, Exce struf Tobat Whon or w Into t What tin it What What !

certur lad ( uffice hat ( Spate (

ing lik

erree

and gi

Soi

With

Taid o

Confi

Mean Perpl

With

indrom the earth to root the lewish brood:
indict the infinesse of no partiall heart, finush melting pity love or false desert,
space cuber yong or old, or man, or woman, in like their faults, so let their plagues be common.
Decreed, and signed by our Princely Grace, and given at Sushan, som our Royall Place.

So Haman fill'd with joy (his fortunes blest With faire successe of his so soule request)
Laid care aside to sleepe, and with the King,
Consum'd the time in jolly banquetting:
Meane while, the Iewes, (the poore affileded Iewes Perplext, and startl'd with the new-bred newes)
With drooping heads, and selse-imbracing armes, Sie has Wept forth the Dirge of their ensuing harmes.

Medita. 8.

Fall discases in a publike weale, No one more dangerous, and hard to heale, Except a tyrant King) then when great might strufted to the hands, that take delight To bathe, and paddle in the blood of those, Whom jealousies, and not just cause oppose : for when as haughty power is conjeyed Into the will of a diftemper'd mind, What e'r it can, it will, and what it will, tin it felfe, hath power to fulfills What mischiese then can linger, martempted? What base attempts can happen, unprevented? tatutes must breake, good Lawes must go to wrack lad (like a Bow that's overbent) must cracke; uffice (the life of Law) becomes fo furious, hat (over-doing right) it proves injurious? Mcrcy ıd.

Mercy (the Steare of Juffice) flyes the City And fallly must be term'd, a feolish Pity, Meane while the gracious Princes tender breft (Gently possest with nothing but the best Of the disguis'd dissembler) is abus'd And made the cloke, wherewith his fault's excus'd The radient beames that warme, & shine so bright, Comfort this lower world with hear, and light, But drawne, and recollected in a glaffe, They burne, and their appointed limits paffe: Even fo the power from the Princes hand, Directs the subject with a sweet command, But to perverse fantasticks if confer'd, Whom wealth, or blinded Fortune hath prefet'd It fourres on wrong, and makes the right retire. And fets the grumbling Common-wealth on fire: Their foule intent, the Common good pretends, And with that good, they maske their private ends, Their glorie's dimme, and cannot b'understood, Vnleffe it shine in pride, or swimme in blood ? Their will's a Law, their mischiese Policy, Their fromnesate Death, their power Tyranny! Ill thrives the State, that harbours fuch a man, That can, what c'r he wills, wills, what he can-

May my ungarnethe quill prefume to much,
To glorifie it felfe, and give a touch
Vpon the lland of my Sov'raigne Lord?
What language shall I use, what new-found word,
T'abridge the mighty volume of his worth,
And keepe me blametesse, from th'untimely birth
Of (falle repined) stattery? He lends
No cursed hames prov'r, to worke his Ends
Vpon our mine, but transferres his grace
On just desert, which in the ugly sace

And

Her

He

Dire

And

From

And

He

Dift

He

His

No.

No

To

Did

But

The Ith.

D

Of foule Detraction, (untoucht) can dare, And fmile, till blackmouth'd Envy bluth, and tare Her Snaky fleece. Thus, thus in happy peace He rules, to make our happinelle increase, Directs with love, commands with Princely awe, and in his breft he beares a Living Law:

Defend us thou, and heavens thee defend, And let proud Haman have proud Hamans end.

THE ARGVMENT.
The lewes, and Mordecai lament,
And waile the beight of their diffresses.
But Mordecai the Queene possesses, Withcruell Hamans foule intent.

Sell. 9. YOw when as Fame (the daughter of the earth Newly dif-burthen'd of her plumed birth) From off her Turrets did her wings display, And pearche in the fad cares of Mordecas, He renthis garments, wearing in their flead Diffrested fackcloth: on his fainting head He ftrowed Duft, and from his showring eyes Ran floods of forrow, and with bitter cryes His griefe faluted heaven; his groanes did borrow No Art, to draw the true pourtraid of forrow; Nor yet within his troubled breft alone, (Too small a stage for griefe to trample on) Did Tyrant fortow ach her lively Sceane, But did inlarge (fuch griefe admits no means) The lawlesse limits of her Theater Ith' hearts of all the Lewith Nation, where right,

it,

ire:

ends,

od.

my:

The History of Queene Efter. (With no diffembled Action) the exprest The lively Passion of a pensive breft. Forthwith he posteth to the Palace gate, T'acquaint queene Efter with his sad estate. But found no entrance : for the Perfian Court Gave welcome to delights, and youthly sport, To jolly mirth, and fuch delightfull things : Soft raiment best befits the Courts of Kings; Therelyes no welcome for a whining face, A mourning habit fuits no Princely Place : Which when the Maids, and Eunuchs of the queen (Vnable of themselves to helpe) had seene, Their Royall Mistresse straight they did acquaint With the dumb-shew of her sad Cousins plaint; Whereat (till now a stranger to the cause) Perplext, and forced by the tender Laws Of deare Affection, her gentle heart Did sympathize with his conceived smart: She fent him change of raiment to put on, To vaile his griefe; But he received none: Then (fore difmai'd, imparient to forbeare The knowledge of the thing the fear'd to heare) She feat her fervant to him, to importune, What sudden Chance, or what disast' rous fortune Had caus d this ftrange, and ill-apparell'd griefe, That she (if in her lyes) may fend reliefe: To whom his forrowes made this fad Relation, And this, the tenor of his Declaration : Hamans, (thet curfed Hamans) baughty tride, (Because my knee deservedly denyde To make an Idall of bis Greatne [[e] bath Incenst the fury of his fealous wrath, And profer'd lavis bribes to buy the blood Of me, and all the faithfull Fewife bread ?

37

Cu

Go

Ton

Her

Prej

Muf

The

And

Thus

Wha

The

Vntil

The S

Alab

And o

The v

And I

There

la ma

Lbayo

ajoy I

Sweat

Of Re

Lee, here the copy, granted by the King,
Stil'd in his name, confirmed with his Ring,
By vertue of the white b, into bu hands,
Curft Haman hath ingroft our lives, our lands:
Got tell the Queene, it reflects in her powers
To belpe; the cofe is hers as well an Ours:
Got tell my Coufin Queen, it is her charge,
To ufe the meanes, whereby fibe may inlarge
Her aged hinfmans life, and all her Nation;
Proferring to the King her supplication.

Meditat. 9.

Tho hopes t'attain the fweet Elysian Layes To reap the harvest of his well spent daies Must passe the joyleste streames of Acaron. The foorching waves of burning Phlegeton, And fable billowes of the Stygian Lake Thus fweet with fowre, each mortall must partake. What joyfull Harvester did ere obtaine The sweet fruition of his hopefull gaine, Vntill his hardy labours first had past The Summers hear, and ftormy Winters blaft? A fable night returnes a fhining morrow ; And dayes of joy enfue fad nights of forrows The way to bliffe lyes not on beds of Downe. And he that had no Croffe, deferves no Crowne : There's but one Heav'n, one place of perfed cafe, In man it lies, to take it where he pleafe, Above, or here below; And few men doe ajoy the one; and tast the other too; weating, and constant labour wins the Goale Of Reft; Afflictions clarifie the foule, And

int

t;

re)

rtune icfe,

B.

le.

And like hard Masters, give more hard directions, Tut'ring the nonage of uncurb'd affections: Wisedome (the Antidote of sad despaire) Makes sharpe Afflictions sceme not as they are, Through patient suffrance; and doth apprehend, Not as they feeming are, but as they end : To beare Affliction with a bended brow, Or stubborne heart, is but to disallow The speedy meanes to health; salve heales no fore, If mif-apply'd, but makes the griefe the more: Who fends Affliction, fend an end; and He Best knowes what's best for him, what's best for met "Tis not for me to carve me where I like; Him pleases when he lift, to stroake or strike: He neither wish, nor yet avoid Tentation, But still expect it, and make Preparation : If he thinke best my Faith shall not be tryde, (Lord)keep me spotles from presumpruous prides If otherwife; with tryall, give me care, By thankfull patience, to prevent Despaire; Fit me to beare what e'r thou shalt affigne; I kiffe the Rod, because the Rod is thine. How-e'r, let me not boaft, nor yet repine, With triall or without (Lord) make me thine.

Sweeting, and coult int labour with the Goale
Of Kelly Afflictions clarific the lonles to bline is not onlede

lamant lies, to take it where a pleafe,

igge, othere below, And few men doe

lajoy the one, and tall the other cos:

And he that had no Croffe, deferves no Crowner

There's but one fleat in, driep age of partielled

Th

Th

Ba

(Li

The

We

As

433

Non

No . Hon Befo

(Va

Exp

May

Whe

Thef

Pate

Goe.

And

THE ARGYMBHT.
Her and implored, the Queene refules
To helpe them, and her felfe excuses:
But (urged by Mordecai) consents
To die, or crosse their foes intents,

Sea. To.

Ow when the servant had return'd the words Of wretched Mordecai, like pointed swords, They neere impiere't Queene ssers tender heart, That well could pity, but no helpe impart; Ballac'd with griese, and with the burthen soyld, (Like Ordnance over-charg'd) she thus recoyld:

Goe, Hatach, tell my wretched hinfman thus, The cafe concernes not you alone, but us: We are the Subjett of proud Hamans bate, As well a you; our life is pointed at As well as yours, or as the meaneft lem. Nor can I belpe my felfe, not them, nor you : You know the Cuftome of the Perfian State, No King may breake, no subject violate: How may I then presume to make accesse Before th'offended King? or rudely preffe (Vncall'd) into bis prefence? How can ? Expell my fuit, and bave defero'd to dye? May my defires bope to finde fucceffe, When to effect them, I the Law transgreffe? Thefe thirty dayes uncall'd for have I bin Vato my Lord, How dare I now goe in? Goe, Hatach, and returne this beaugnewes and shew the srush of my vufore'd excuse.

Whereof

ons, fore,

orides

Whercof when Mordecai was full poffeft, Mistroubled foule he boldly thus expres : Gee tell the fearfull Queene; too great's ber feare, Too fmall ber zeale; ber life fbe rates too deare : How poore'sth'adbenture, to ingage thy blood, To fave thy peoples life, and Churches good ? To what advantage canft thou more expose Thy life than this ? Th'aft but a life to lofe ; Thinke not, thy Greatneffe can excuse our death, Or lave thy life; thy life is but a breath As well as ours, (Great Queene) thou bop fin vaint, In faving of a life, a life to zaine: Who knowes if God on purpose did intend Thy bigb proferment for this bappy end? If at this needfull time then fare to feake, Our freedy beloe Shall (like the morning) breake From beaven, together with thy wees; and he That fuccours no Shall beape his plagues on thee.

Which when queene Ester had right well perus'd And on each wounding word had fadly mus'd, Startled with zeale, not daring to deny, She rouz'd her faith, and sent this meeke reply:

Since beaven it is endowes each enterpring With good faccesse, and onely in us lies. To plant, and water; let us first obtaine. Heavens high Assistance, lest the worke be waine: Let all the Iewann fula summon'd be, and heepe a solemne three dayes. Fast, and we, with all our sevants, and our maiden traine, Shall fast as long, and from our thoughts abstaine: Then to the King, (uncall'd) will I repaire, (Howe'r my buldnesse shall bis Lawes contraine,) and bravely welcome Death before mine eye, and scarme her power: If I dye, I dye.

Medita

Th

Th

Ta

Ot

Di

So

Lil

An

Th

Th

Eac

So

An

The

Eac

Pro

To

Who We Or 1

The Five

Wh

Wh:

Meditat, 10.

S in the winged Common-wealth of Bees, 1 (Whose carefull Summer-providence foresees Th'approching fruitlesse Winter, which denyes The crowne of labour) fome with laden thighs Take charge to beare their waxy burthens home; Others receive the welcome load; and fome Dispose the waxe; others, the plot contrive; Some build the curious Comb, some guard the Hive Like armed Centinels; others diffraine The purer hony from the wax; fome traine, And discipline the young, while others drive The fluggish Drones, from their deserved Hive: Thus in this Common-wealth (untaught by Art) Each winged Burger acts his busie part; So man (whose first Creation did intend, And chiefly pointed at no other end, Then (as a faithfull Steward) to receive The Fine and quit-rent of the lives we live,) Must fuit his deare indeavour to his might; Each one must lift, to make the burthen light, Proving the power, that his gifts afford, To raise the best advantage for his Lord, Whose substitute he is, and for whose sake We live and breath; each his account must make, Or more, or leffe; and he whose power lacks The meanes to gather honey, must bring waxe: Five Talents double five; two render foure; Wher's little, little's crav'd, where much, there's Kings by their Royall priviledge may doe, (more: What unbefits a mind to fearch into, K 4

But

But by the force of their Prerogatives,
They cannot free the custome of their lives:
The filly Widow (from whose wrinkled browes
Faint drops distill, through labour that she owes Her needy life, must make her Audite too,
As well as Kings, and mighty Monarkes doe:
The world's a Stage; each mortall ast thereon,
As well the King that gilteers on the Throne,
As needy beggers: Heav'n Spectator is,
And markes who asteth well, and who amisse.

What part befits me best, I cannot tell: It matters not how meane, so acted well.

THE ARGUMENT.
Vato the King Queene Efter goes,
He unexpedded favour flowers,
Demands her fait, she dost request
The King and Haman to a Foot.

Sell. II.

Hen as Surme Esters solemne 3. daies Fast Had seasted heaven, with a sweet repast, Her lowly bended body she unbow'd, And (like faire Timas breaking from a cloud) She rose, and with her Royall Robes she clad Her livelesse simmers, and with a face as sad As guiest could paint, (wanting no Art to borrow A needlesse helpe to counterfeit a sorrow,) Softly she did direct her seeble pace Vinto the inner Court, where for a space, She boldly shood before the Royall Throne, Like one that would, but durst not make her mone; Which

His h

And

Who

In gr

Hang

807.1

That I

So

Ofun

They

(Rob

The I

The g

Say

Said

The LY

Thy be

y Ki

Rep

in Ki

137

Which when her princely husband did behold; His heart relented, (Fortune helpes the bold) And to expreile a welcome unexpected, Forth to the Queene his Scepter he directed : Whom (now imboldned to approch fecur'd) In gracious termes, he gently thus conjur'd : What is't Queene Efter would ? What fad request Hangs on ber ups, awells in her doubtfull breft? So, fay, (my lifes preferver) what's the thing, That hes in the p riormance of a King, Shall be deny'd ? Faire Queene, what e're is mine Vato the moity of my Kingdome's thine. So Efter thus: If in thy princely eyes thy loyall fervant bath obtain'd the prine Ofundescrued favour, let the King and Haman grace my this dayes banqueting, Humbly devoted to so great a Guest.

The motion pleas'd, and fairly well succeeded:
(To willing mindes, no twice intreaty needed)
They came; but in Queene Esters troubled face, (Robd of the sweetnesse of her wonted grace)
The King read discontent; her face divin'd
The greatnesse of some surther suit behinde.

To crowne the dainties of bis hand maids Feaft,

Say, say, (theu bounteous bartust of my joyes)
(Said then the King) what dumpif griese annayes by troubled (oule? Speake, Lady, what's the thing Ty beart desires? By th' onour of a King.
My Kingdomes basso, requested, I'le divide
Tosire Queene Efter, to my fairest bride.
Lo then the tenour of my degre request,
Reply d the Queene,) unto a second Feas,
Ty humble suitor doth presume to bid
Miking, and Haman, as before she did:

Now

one:

hich

Faft

aft,

Now therefore if it please my gracious Lord, To daigne bin Royall prefence, and offord The peerleffe treasure of bis Princely Grace, To dry the forrowes of bis Handmaids face, Then to my Kinely, and thrice-welcome Gueft. His ferwant fhall unbofome ber Requell.

Medita It.

HE that invites his Maker to a Feast, (Advising well the greatnesse of his Guest) Must purge his dining chamber from infections, And sweepe the Cobwebs of his lewed affections, And then provide fuch Cates, as most delight His Palate, and best please his Appetite: And fuch are hely workes, and pious deeds, These are the dainties whereon heaven seeds: Faith playes the Cook, seasons, directs, and guide So man findes meat, fo God the Cooke provides: His drinke are teares, fprung from a midnight cry, Heaven fips out Nectar from a finners eye; The dining Chamber is the foule opprest; God keepes his revells in a Sinners breft: The musicke that attends the Feast, are grones, Deep-founding fighes, and loud-lamenting men Heav's heares no sweeter musick, than complain The Fasts of sinners, are the Feasts of Saints, To which heav'n dains to floop, & heav'ns hie K Descends whilst all the quire of Angels fing, And with fuch fense-bercaving Sonners fill The hearts of wretched men, that my rude quill (Dazeld with too much light) it selfe addressing Vaap To blaze them forth, obscures the in th'express

Th

Gr

To

Of

Or

Hee TL.

My

Y

T

Ofal

Tofa

(His o

With

Bu

Thrice happy man, and thrice thrice happy Feaft, Grac'd with the presence of so great a Gueft; To him are freely giv'n the privy keyes Ofheav'n and earth, to open when he pleafe, And locke when e're he lift; In him it Ives To ope the fnowring flood-gates of the skies, Or four them at his pleasure; in his hand The Host of heaven is put; if he command, The Sunne (not daring to withfrand) obeyes, Our-runnes his equall howres, flies back, or flayes, To him there's nought uneafie to atchieve: Hee'le rouze the graves, and make the dead alive. Lord, I'me unht t'invite thee to my home, My Cates are all too coorfe, too meane my Roome: Yet come and welcome; By thy pow'r Divine, Thy Grace may turne my Water into Wine.

THE ARGVMENT.
Good Mordecai's unreverence
Great Hamans haughty pride offends:
H'acquaints his wife with the offence,
The counfell of his wife and friends.

Sell.12.

That day went Haman forth; for his Iwolne brest Was fill'd with joyes, and heart was full possess Of all the height Ambition could require, To satisfie her prodigall Desire.

But when he passed through the Palace Gate, (His eye-sore) aged Mardochew sate, With head unbar'd, and stubborne knee unbent, Vnapt to sawne, with slavish blandishment:
Which

XUM

ft) ns,

ns,

ides:

it cry,

nes,

men ic Ki quill fling refi

Thi

t

Which when great Haman faw, his boiling breft (So great distaine unable to digest)
Ran o're; his blood grew hor, and new desires.
Incenst, and kindled his avenging fires:
Surcharg'd with griefe, and fick with male-content.
Through his distemper'd passion, home he went;
Where (to asswage the swelling of his sorrow
With words, the poorest helps distresse can borrow
His wife, and friends he summon'd to parcake
His cause of discontent, and thus bespake:

See, fee, how Fortune with a lib rall hand,
Hath with the best, and sweetest of the Land,
Crown a my desires, and bath timely blowne
My badded bopes, whose ripenesse bath out-growne
The limits, and the height of expectation,
Scarce to be had, but in a Contemplation:

See, fee, how Fortune (to inlarge my breath, And make me living in despight of Death) Hath multiply'd my loynes, that after-Fame May in my stocke proserve my Blood, my Name!

To make my bonour with my fortunes even, Behold, my gracious Lord the King hath given And trusted to my hand the sword of Pow'r, Or life, or death lies where I laugh or lowre: Who stands more gracious in my Princes eye? How frownes the King, if Haman be not by?

Efter the Queene hath made the King her Gueff,
And (wifely weighing how to grace the Feaft
With most advantage) hath (in policy)
Invited me.: And no man eife but I (Quely a fit Companion for a King)
May taste the secrets of the hanquetting

Nes what availes my wealth, my place, my might? How can I rellifo them? with what delight?

XUM

rhat a talong tofe !

My life

W

In blo

Then u

When I

Th

CO

JSo

In chi

My fl

No ot

For fe

Thee

Кеер

Ere

but pleasure is in daintier, if the tafte in it felfe deftemper'd ? Better faft : many fweets, one forere offends the Pallate. ne lothfome weed annoyes the choicest Sallat : that are my Riches? What my bonour'd Place? that are my Children ? or my Princes Grace. lalong as curfed Mordecai furvives ? whose very breath infests, whose life deprives uplife of bliffe, and visage sternly strikes Infevenome to mine eyes, than Basiliskes

When Haman then had lane'd his ripened griefe; In bloody tearmes, they thus apply'd reliefe:

Ered a Gibbes, fifty Cubits bic, Then urge the King (what will the King deny Then Haman fues?) that flavifh Mordecai lehang'd thereon ; his blood will foone allay The heat of thine ; his curfed death shall fome. The highneffe of thy power, and his shame ; Somben thy fuit shall finde a faire event, Gu banquet with the King, and live content.

The Counfell pleas'd: The Gibbet fairly flands, Soone done, as faid : Revenge findes nimble hands.

Meditat. 12.

Come Ev'ls I must approve; al Goods, I dare not: Some are, & feem not good; fome feem, & are not: Inchusing goods, my heart shall make the choice, My flattring eye shall have no casting voice; No outward fense may chuse an inward bliffe, For feeming Happinesse least happy is ; The eye (the chiefest Cinque-port of the Heart) Reepes open doores, and playes the Traitors part,

3

tigo

142 The History of Queene Efter. Lets painted pleasures in, to bribe th' Affections,

Which masks foule faces under falle complexion; It hath no pow'r to judge, nor can it fee Things as they are, but as they feeme to be. There's but one happinesse, one perfect blisse; But how obtain'd, or where, or what it is, The world of nature ne're could apprehend, Grounding their labours on no other end Than bare opinion, diverfly affecting Some one thing, some another, still projecting Prodigeous fancies, till their learned Schooles Lent fo much knowledge, as to make them fooles: One builds his bliffe upon the blaze of glory? Can perfect happinelle be transitory? In ftrength, another fummes Felicity : What horse is not more happy farre than he? Some pile their happinefle on heapes of wealth, Which (ficke) they'd loath, if gold could purchase Some, in the use of beauty place their end; (health Some, in th'enjoyment of a Courtly friend: Like wasted Lamps, such happinesses smother; Age puffeth out the one; and wants, the other. The happinesse, whose worth deserves the name Of chiefe, with fuch a fier doth inflame The brefts of mortalls, that heav'n thinkes it fit That men should rather thinke, than tafte of it All earthly joyes some other aime intend, This, for it felfe's defir'd, no other end : Those, (if injoy'd) are crost with discontent. If not in the pursuit, in the event: This (truly good) admits no contrariety, Without defect, or yet a loath'd faciety. The least is more than my deferr can claime, (Thankfull for both) at this alone I aime.

And

The

The

Difg

Kep

Heg

And

Her

Of a His

Wh

Suc

Ger

Wh:

Iuft The

To

Sto

The

Beft

THE ARGUMENT.
The King askes Haman, what respects
Besits the man that he assets,
And with that bonour doth appay
The good deserts of Mordecai.

Seff. 13. N TOw when as Morphens (Serjeant of the night) Had laid his mace upon the dawning light, And with his luftleffe limbs had clofly fored The fable Curtaines of his drowzie Bed, The King slept not, but (indispos'd to rest) Disguised thoughts within his troubled breft Kept midnight Revells. Wherefore (to recollect his randome thought) Hegave command the Chronicles be brought. And read before him, where, with good attention, Hemark'd how Mordecai (with faire prevention) Of a foule treason 'gainst his blood intended) His life, and state had loyally defended; . Whereat the King (impatient to repay Such faithfull service, with the least delay) Gently demands, What thankfull recompence, What worship, or deserved reverence, Equivalent to fuch great fervice, hath luftly repayd this loyall Liege-mans faith? They answer'd, none : Now Haman (fully bent Togive the veffell of his poifon, vent) Stood ready charg'd with foll Revenge, prepar'd To beg his life, whom highly to reward, The King intends : Say (Haman) quoto the King that worship, or what bonourable thing ons,

iffe :

es

oles

chale calth

me

fit

it .

donl

Noc

For

33%

Best fits the person, whom the King shall place Within the bounty of bis bigheft Grace?

So Hawas thus bothought, Whom more than I Deferves the Sun-fine of my Princes eye? Whom feekes the King to bonour more than me? From Hamans mouth , fb : Il Haman bonour'd be ? Speake freely them, And let thy tongue proclame An bonour futing to thy worth, thy name : So Haman thus : This honour, this respect Be done to bim the King foall mof affelt, In Robes Imperiall be bis body dreft, And bravely mounted on that very Beaft The King bestrides; then be the Crowne of State Plac'd on his lofty browes; let Princes maite From bis Stirrop, and in triumph leade This Impe of Honour in Affucrus Read; And to expresse the glory of bus name, Like Heralds, let the Princes thus proclame; so This peerleffe honour, and thefe Princely rites a Be done to bim, in whom the King delights. Said then the King, (O sudden charge of Fate! Within the Portall of our Palace Gate There fits a lew, whose name is Mordecai, Be be the man; Let no pertierfe delay Protract; But what thy lavifb tongue hath faid, De thou to bim : So Haman fore difmaid : His tongue (ty'd to his Roofe) made no reply, But (neither daring answer nor deny) Perforce obeyd, and so his Page became, Whose life he sought to have bereav'd with the The Rites folemniz'd, Mordetai return'd Vnto the Gate; Haman went home and mourn' (His vifage muffled in a mournfull vafe) And told his wife this melancholy Tale;

When

WI

De

The

Hi

The

Tha

Hat

Defi

An

Sn

Hen

To Win

Tha

No.

Tol

To

The

Wit

Her

OfC

Nor

The

Tha

Inn

The

As P

Whereat amaz'd, and startled at the newes, Despairing, thus she spake: If from the lewes Thu Mordecai derive hu happy line, Hu be the palme of victory, not thine; The highest heavens have still confin at to helfe That fait full seed, and with a sure sacesse Have crown a their just designes: If Mordecai Descent from thence, thy hopes shall some decay, And melt sine waxe before the mid-day Sun.

So said, her broken speech not sully done, Haman was hasted to Queene Esters Feast; To mirth and joy, an indisposed Guest.

Meditat. 13.

THere's nothing under heaven more glorifies I The name of King, or in a fubjects eyes Winnes more observance, or true loyalty, Than facred Iuftice, shared equally : No greater glory can belong to Might, Than to defend the feeble in their right; Tohelpe the helpleffe, and their wrongs redreffe, To curbe the haughty-hearted, and suppresse: The proud; requiting ev'ry speciall deed With punishment, or honourable meed ? Herein Kings aptly may deferve the name Of Gods, enshrined in an earthly frame; Nor can they any way approach more nye The full perfection of a Deity, Than by true luftice, imitating heaven In nothing more, than in the poizing eaven Their righteous ballance: Iustice is not blind. As Poets feigne; but, with a fight refin'd, Her

Vhen

Her Lyncian eyes are clear'd, and fhinc as bright As doe their errours, that deny her fight; The foule of luftice refterh in her eye, Her comtemplation's chiefly to descry True worth, from painted showes; and loyalty, From false, and deepe-diffembled trechery; A noble Statesman, from a Parafite; And good, from what is meerely good in fight: Such hidden things her piercing eye can fee: If luftice then be blinde, how blinde are we!

Right fondly have the Poets pleas'd to fay, From earth the faire Afraa's fled away, And in the thining Baudrike takes her feat, To make the number of the Signes compleat :

For why ? Aftres doth repose and rest Within the Zodiake of my Sov'raignes breft, And from the Cradle of his infancy, Hathtrain'd his Royall heart with industry, In depth of righteous lore, and facred thewes Of lustice Schoole; that this my Haggard Muse Cannot contains the freenesse of her fpright, But make a Mounty at fo faire a flight, (Perchance) though (like a bastard Eagle daz'd With too great light) the winke, and fall amaz Heav'n make my heart more thankfull, in confe , So high a bliffe, than skilfull, in expreffing. (fir

T Wher And f Wb4

that is faire ! there . My K

Wh Disclo

in the rest n fe

122

THE ARGUMENT. The Queene brings Hamans accufation ; The King's diffleas'd, and growes in paffian: Proud Hamans treebery defery'd; The framefull end of formeleffe pride.

Sed. :14.

Orthwith, to fatisfic the queenes requeft, The King and Haman came unto her Feaft, Whereat the King (what then can hap amilie?) Became her fuitor, that was humbly his, And fairly thus entreating, this befpake :

What is't Queene Efter would ? and for ber fahe, that is't the King would not ? preferre thy fait, faire Ducene : Thofe that deftaire, let them be mute; there up those clouded beames (my fairest Bride) My Kingdomes balfe (requested) I'le divide.

Whereat the Queen, halfe hoping, halfe afraid, Difclos'd her trembling lips, and thus the faid: Hin the bonney of thy Princely Grace, ly ad Petitioner may finde a place

onfe forward ber moft unutterable griefe, thick (of not there) may be pefor no reliefe; fin the treafure of thy grasious eyes, Where mercy, and releating pity lies) by band-maid bath found fewour; let my 1.

ram me my life (my life fo much abhard, a doe him fervice) and my people slife, hickness bye open to a Tyrants beiff ? but lives are fold, 'th I, 'th guildeffe I, by legal Spenfe, thy Lynene and bers

The

The spotlesse blood of me, thy faithfull Bride, Must swage the swelling of a Tyrants pride: Had we beene sold for drudges, to attend The buse Spindle; or for slaves, to spend Our weary howers, to deserve our bread, So as the gaine slood but my Lord im slead, I had beene silent, and ne're spent my breath: But meither he that seekes it, nor my death, Can to himselfe the least advantage bring, (Except revenge) nor to my Lord the King.

Like to a Lyon rouzed from his reft, Rag'd then the King, and thus his rage exprest; Who is the man, that dares attempt this thing?

Where is the Traiter? What? am I a King?
May not our fabjects ferve, but must our Ducene
Be made the subjects of a villaines spleene;
Is not Quetne Ester bosom'd in our heavt?
What Traiter then dares be so bold, to part
Our beart, and us? Who dares attempt this thing?
Can Ester then be slaine, and not the King?

Reply'd the Queene, The man that bath done this,

That curfed Haman, wicked Haman is.

Like as a Felon shakes before the Bench, Whose troubled filence proves the Evidence, So Hamas trembled, when queene Efter spake, Nor answer, nor excuse, his Guilt could make

The King, no longer able to digeft
So foule a trechery, for fooke the Feaft,
Walk'd in the Garden, where confuming rage
Boil'd in his heart, with fire (unapt r'affwage.)
So Hames pleading guilty to the fault,
Befought his life of her, whose life he fought.
When as the King had walk'd a little space,
(So rage and choller often shift their place)

C

In

Wa

W

(A

Ne

An

Is't

(Sa

Well

And

Vnf

Ther

Ana

Tofo

Who |

That

Hang So les

The

S

Inhe return'd, where Haman fallen flat
Was on the bed, whereon Queene Efter fate;
Whereat the King new cause of rage debates;
(Apt to Suppose the worst; of whom he hates)
New passion addes new suell to his fire,
And faines a cause, to make it blaze the higher:
Is not enough for him to seeke her death,
(Said he) but with a Leichers tainted breath, will be inforce my Queene before my face?
And make bu Brothell in our Royall Place?

So faid, they veiled H amans face, as he Vnfit were to be feene, or yet to fee: Said then an Eunuch fadly standing by, in Hamans Garden, fifty Cubits bigb, There stands a Gibbet, but yesterday, Made for thy loyall servant Mordecai, Whose faithful lops thy life from danger freed, And merit leads him to a fairer meed.

Said then the King, It formers just and good,
To fined his blood, that thir fied ofter blood;
Who plants the tree, deferves the finit; 'the fit
That he that bought the purchase, hanfell it:
Hang Haman there; It is his proper good;
So let the Horseleach burst himselse with blood:
They straight obeyd: Lo here the end of Pride:
Now refts the King appeas' d, and fatish'd.

Meditat. 14.

Heere up, and caroll forth your filver ditie,
(Heaven's winged quirifters) and fill your Ciry
(The new Ierusalem) with jolly mirth: (earth:
The Church hath peace in heaven, hath peace on L3 Spread

e.)

Spread forth your golden pinions, and cleave The flitting skies , difmount, and quite bereave Our stupid senses with your heavenly mirth, For loe, there's peace in heav'n, there's peace of Let Halelujab fill your warbling tongues, (carth; And lerthe ayre, compos'd of faintly fongs, Breathe fuch celeftiali Sonnets in our cares; That whofee're this heav'nly musicke heares, May stand amaz'd, & (ravisht at the mirth) (earth Chat forth, there's peace in heav'n, ther's peaced Let moungaines clap their joyfull, joyfull hands, And let the leffer Hills trace o're the lands In equal measure; and resounding woods Bow downe your heads, and kiffe your neigh'ring Let peace and love exalt your key of mirth; (Hoods For now there's peace in heav'n, there's peace on You holy Temples of the highest King, Triumph with joy ; Your facred Anthemes fing ; Chant forth your Hymns, & heav'nly roundelaies, And touch your Organs on their louder keyes: For Haman's dead that danted al your mirth, (carth And now there's peace in heav'n, there's peace of Proud Haman's dead, whose life disturb'd thy rest, Who fought to cut, and feare thy Lilly breft; The ray nous Fox, that did annoyance bring Vnto thy Vineyard, staken in a Spring. Seem'd not thy Spoule unkind, to hear thee weep And not redreffe thee? Seem'd he not affeepe? No, (Sion) no, he heard thy bitter pray'r, But let thee weepe: for weeping makes thee faire The morning Sun reflects, and thines most bright When Pilgrims grope in darknelle all the night: The Church must conquer, c're the gets the prize, But there's no conquest, where's no enemies ; Th

XUM

The

For

Wh

Tel

We

Tha

Go

The

FL

Ist

B

Bo

To

An

Vp

W

In

Fo

He

To

Hi

151

The day is thine ; In triumph make thy mirth, For now there's peace in heav'n, there's peace on What man's fo dul, or in his brains undone, (earth; To fay, (because he sees not) There's no Sun? Weake is the faith, upon a sudden griese, That fayes, (because not now) There's no reliefe: God's bound to helpe, but loves to fee men fue : Though dateleffe, yet the bond's not present due. Like to the forrowes of our child-bed wives, Is the fad pilgrimage of humane lives : But when by throes God sends a joyfull birth,

Then find we peace in heav'n, & peace on earth.

THE ARGUMENT. Vpm the Queene and Mordecai Dead Hamans wealth and dignity The King bestowes : to their discretion Referres the Jewes decreed oppreffion, Sett. 15.

Hat very day, the King did freely adde More bounty to his gift : What Hamen had Borrow'd of fmiling Fortune, he repayd To Efters hand, and to her use convaid : And Merdecei found favour with the King : Vpon his hand he put his Royall Ring, Whose Princely pow'r proud Haman did abuse, In late betraying of the guiltleffe lewes; For now had Efter so the King defery'd Her lewish kin, how neere the was ally'd To Mardochem, whom (her father dead) His love did foster in her fathers Read. Once

re

ace di careh;

earth

acet nds,

loods acc on arth:

laics

5: earth cea cft.

faire.

ght

1:30

ize,

The

Once more the Queene prefers an earnest suit, Her humble body lowly prostitute Before his Royall feet, her cheekes o'restowne With marish teares, and thus her plain full mone, Commixt with bitter singults, she express:

If in the Cabin of thy princely breft Thy loyall fervant (undeferv'd) hash found A place, wherein bir wifbes might be crown'd With faire successe; If in thy gracious ficht I pleafing, or my cause freme juft, and riebt, Be fpredy Letters written, to reverfe I boje bloody Writs which Haman did difperfe Throughout thy Provinces, whose fad content Was the fubver fion of my innocent And faithfull reople; Helpe, (my gracious Lord) The time's prefixt, wherein th'impartial Sword Muß make this maffacre, the day's at hand, Unleffe thy fpeedy Grace fend countermand : How can I brooke within my tender breft, To break the bonds of natures bigh bebeft, And see my people (for whose sake I breathe) Like flalled Oxen, bought and fold for death? How can I fee such mischiefe ? How can I Survive, to fee my kin, and people dye? Said then the King : La, curfed Haman bath The execution of our highest wrath, The equal bire of bis malicious pride; His wealth to thee I gave , (my fairef Bride) His borour (better plac'd) I bare beflow'd On bim, to sohom my borrowd life bath ow'd Her five yeares breath, the trufty Mordecai, Our loyalt hinfman : Let bis band pourtray Our pleasure, as beft liketh bim, and thee; Let bim fet dewne, and be it our Decree, at bism and we for more that's for rom I rom ikee With p Some oc le o ent lath, Soul Diving hat n rom ! easts ne el lutua he m hilde eferv hat's ripar

he no

for th

thin confirme it with our Royall Ring, ted we food ligne it with the name of King: In none may alter, or reverso the same hat seat d and written in our Princely name.

Meditat, 15.

TO breathe,'s a necessary gift of nature, Whereby we may discerne a living Creature rom plants, or ftones : 'Tis but's meere degree rom Vegitation; and this, hath the ike equally thar'd out to brutish beafts fith man, who leffe observes her due behefts Sometimes) than they; and oft, by accident, oe leffe improve the gift in the event: at man, whose organs are more fairly drest, o entertaine a farre more noble Gueft, ath, through the excellence of his Creation, Soule Divine; Divine by inspiration; livine through likeneffe to that pow'r Divine, hat made and plac'd her in her fleshly shrine; fom hence we challenge lifes prerogative; eafts onely breath; 'Tis man alone doth live; ne end of mans Creation, was Society, Autuall Communion, and friendly Piety: he man that lives unto himselfe alone, ablists and breaths, but lives not; Never one eferv'd the moity of himselfe, for he hat's borne, may challenge but one part of threes riparted thus; his Country clames the beft; he next, his Parents; and himselfe, the leaft. chusbands best his life, that freely gives for the publike good; He rightly lives,

That nobly dies: 'tis greatest mastery,
Not to be fond to live, nor seare to dye
On just occasion; He that (in case) despites
Life, earnes it best, but he that over-prizes
His dearest blood, when honour bids him dye,
Steales but a life, and lives by Robbery.

¶ O sweet Redeemer of the world, whose death
Deserv'd a world of lives! Had Thy deare breat
Been deare to Thee; Oh had'st Thou but deny'd
Thy precious Blood, the world for e'r had dy'd:
O spoile my life, when I desire to save it.
By keeping it from Thee, that freely gave it.

THE ARGYMENT.
Letters are fent by Mordecai,
That all the leves, upon the day
Appointed for their death, withfland
The fury of their for mens band.

Self. 16.

To ev'ry Province, and to ev'ry Shiere Letters they wrote (as Mordesa) directed)
To all the Iewes, (the Iewes so much dejected)
To all the States and Princes of the Band,
To all the States and Princes of the Land,
According to the phrase, and divers fashion
Of Dialect, and speech of ev'ry Nation;
All which was stilled in the name of King,
Sign'd with his hand, seal'd with his Royall Rie
Loe here the tenor of the Kings Commission,
Whereas of late, (at Hamans urg'd petition,)

Tota

Spur

Whi As w To c

So

Whi

Dep

Into

He b

(The

Like

Who

His I

(His

At la

And

Ama

And(

So is

Had

Thei

Difp

155 burees were fent, and fired throughout the Land. To Boile the Iewes, and with impartial band, (Pos a day prefixt) to kill, and flay; Welikewife grant upon that very day, Fall power to the lewes, to make defence, And quit their lives, and for a Recompence. To take the foiles of those they Ball suppresse, Showing like mercy to the mercileffe. By posts, as swift as Time, was this Decree Commanded forth: As fast as Day they flee, Spurr'd on, and haft'ned with the Kings Command Which ftraight was noys'd, & publisht through the As warning to the lewes, to make provision (Land To entertaine fo great an opposition. So Mordecai (disburthned of his gricfe, Which now found hopefull tokens of reliefe) Departs the prefence of the King, addreft In royall Robes, and on his lofty Creft He bore a Crowne of gold, his body fpred With Lawne, and Purple deeply coloured: Fill'd were the Iewes with triumphs, & with noife, (The common Heralds to proclame true joyes :) Like as a prifner muffled at the tree, Whose life's remov'd from dearh scarce one degree His last pray'r faid, and hearts confession made, (His eyes possetting deaths eternall shade) At laft (unlook'd for comes a flow Reprieve, And makes him (even as dead) once more alive: Amaz'd, he reads deaths muffer from his eyes, And(over-joy'd) knowes nor he lives, or dyes; So joy'd the lewes, whose lives, this new Decree Had quit from death and danger, and fet free Their gasping soules, and (like a blazing light) Disperst the darknesse of th' approching night;

ath brea

in ed)

So joy'd the Iewes: and with their folemne Feat They chas'd dull forrow from their penfive breth Meane while, the people (startled at the newes) Some griev'd, some envi'd, some (for feare) turn'd

Sed. 16.

Mong the Noble Greekes, it was no shame To lofe a Sword; It but deferv'd the name Of Warres disaftrous fortune; but to yeeld The right and fafe possession of the Shield, Was foule reproach, and manlefle cowardize, Farre worfe than death to him that fcorn'd to prin His life before his Honour, Honour's wonne Most in a just defence ; Defence is gone, The Shield once loft: The wounded Theban cry'd How fares my Sheild which fafe, he fmil'd, & dy'd True honour bides at home, and takes delight In keeping, not in gaining of a Right; Scornes usurpation, nor feekes the blood, And thirfts to make her name not great, as good: God gives a Right to man; To man, defence To guard it giv'n; But when a false pretence Shall ground her title on a greater Might, What doth he elfe but warre with Heav'n, and figh With Providence ? God fets the Princely Crown On heads of Kings; Who then may take it downs No juster quarrell, or more nobler Fight, Than to maintaine, where God hath giv'n a Right There's no despaire of Conquest in that warre, Where God's the Leader; Policy's no barre To his Defignes; no Power can withstand His high exploits; within whose mighty Hand

Ares

His f

His I

The

Who

Who

hij

Frai

Tru

TL:

Ful

Wh

He

An

Vp

An

157

Are all the corners of the earth; the hills
His fensive bulwarks are, which, when he wills,
His lesser breath can bandy up and downe,
And crush the world, and with a wmke, can drowne
The spacious Vniverse in suds of Clay;
Where heav'n is Leader, heav'n must win the days
God reapes his honour hence; That combat's sate,
Where hee's a Combatant, and ventures halse:
Right's not impair'd with weaknesse, but prevailes
In spight of strength, when strength & power failes.
Traile is the trust repos'd on Troopes of Horse;
Truth in a bandfull, finds a greater force.
[Lord, maile my heart with faith, and be my shield
And if a world constont me, l'le not yeeld.

THE ARGYMENT.
The bloody Massace: The Jewes
Prevaile: their satall sword subdues
A world of men, and in that fray,
Hamans ten cursed sonnes they slay.

Sea. 17.

Ow when as Time had rip' ned the Decree, (Whose Winter fruit unshaken from the tree Full ready was to fall) and brought that Day,
Wherein pretended mischiese was to play
Her tragicke Sceane upon the lewish Stage,
And spit the venome of her bloody rage
Vpon the face of that dispersed Nation,
And in a minute breathe their desolation,
Vpon that day (as patients in the fight)
Their scatter description.

c Fee

ves)

(Icwe

ame

o pri

cry'd

& dy' ood:

Righ

c, ď ht

brell

158 The Hiftery of Queene Efter.

And to a head their ftraggling ftrength reduc'd And with their fatall hand (their hand difus'd To bathe in blood) they made fo ftrong recoyle, That with a purple streame, the thirsty soyle O'rflowd: & on the pavement (drown'd with blood Where never was before, they rais'da flood: There lyes a headleffe body, here a limme Newly dif-joynted from the trunke of him That there lyes groning; here, a gasping head Cropt fro his neighbors shoulders; there, halfe deal Full heapes of bodies, whereof fome curse Fate, Others blaspheme the name of heav'n, and rate Their undisposed Starres; with bitter cryes One pitles his poore widow-wife, and dyes; Another bannes the night his fonnes were borne, That he must dye, and they must live forlorne: Here (all befmeard in blood congeald) there lyes A throng of carcafes, whose liveletie eyes Are clos'd with duft; & death : there, lyes the Syn Whose death the greedy heire did long defire; And here, the fonne, whose hopes were all the ples-His aged father had, and his lifes treasure: (fure Thus fell their foes, some dying, and some dead, And onely they that feap'd the flaughter, fled; But with such strange amazement were affrighted (As if themselves in their owne deaths delighted) That each his force against his friend addrest, And sheath'd his sword within his neighbors breff For all the Rulers (being fore afraid Of Mardochem name) with thrength, and ayde Supply'd the lewes : For Mardochem name Grew great with honour, and his honour'd Fame Was blaz'd through ev'ry Province of the Land, And fored as force, as did the Kings Command:

1270

id ad

hand nd or and or hat c offer and or sblo

The C

That i

pon ut to

My

Belo

The

On:

Stro

The

159 favour he increast, and ev'ry how'r dadde a greater greatneffe to his pow'r: has did the lewes triumph in victory, od on that day themselves were doom'd to dye, hey flew th'appointed Actors of their death, on their heads they were that noble wreath, hat crownes a Victor with a Victors prize; ofled their foes, so dyde their enemies: adon that day at Sufan were imbru'd blood, five hundred men whom they fubdu'd; he curled fruit of the accurled Tree. hat impious Decad, Hanans progeny, fon that fatall day, they overthrew, in took no spayle, nor substance, where they flew.

Medita, 17.

Lately mus'd; and muting fleod amaz'd, Syre My heart was bound; my fight was over-daz'd To view a miracle: Could Phare fall Before the face of Ifr'el? Could her small And ill-appointed handfull then prevaile, When Phare's men of warre, and Char'ots faile? Thefe flood like Gyants; those, like Pigmy brars; They foar'd like Eagles; those, like swarms of gnats On foot these marcht; those rode on troops of horse These never better arm'd; they, never worse; Strong backt with vengeance & revenge, were they Thefe, with despaire, thefelves, themselves betray; They close purfu'd; these (fearfull)fled the field; How could they chuse, but win for these, but yeeld? Sure tis, nor man, nor horse, nor sword availes, When Ifr'el conquers, and great Phare failes: Poore

XUM

uc'd oyle,

d:

ıd

te,

rate

rne, lyes ples (fure

ad, ntod seed) reft

ı.

In

e deal

Poore Ifr'el had no Man of Warre, but One; And Phare having all the reft, had none; Heav'n fought for Ifr'el, weakned Phare's heart, Who had no Counter god to take his part: What meant that cloudy Piller, that by day Did ufher I fr'el in an unknowne way? What meant that fi'ry Piller, that by night Appear'd to Ifr'el, and gave Ifr'el light? Twas not the fecret power of Asofes Rod, That charm'd the Scas in twaine; 'twas Mofes God That fought for Ifr'el, and made Phare fall , Well thrives the Fray where God's the Generall: 'Tis neither strength, nor undermining sleight Prevailes, where heav'ns ingaged in the fight. Me list not ramble into antique dayes, Fize To manne his Theame, left while Ulyffes strayes, And I Their His heart forget his home Penelope: What Our propf rous Britaine makes sufficient Plea To prove her bliffe, and heav'ns protecting power Expri Which had the mist, her glory, in an hower Miles i Had falne to Cinders, and had past away Like smoke before the wind; Which happy Day, Let none but base-bred Rebels ever faile In gra To confecrate, and let this Age entaile, Vpon fucceeding times Eternity, Tofat Heav'ns highest love, in that dayes memory. For th

XUM

Sa

Moft

THE ARGVMENT. The founes of Haman (that were flaine,) Are all hang'd up : The lenes obtaine Freedome to fight the morrow after; They put three hundred more to flaughter.

Sell. 18.

7 Hen as the fame of that daies bloody news Came to the King, he faid; Bebold, the lemes Bave wome the Day, and in their juft defence, Have made sheir wrong, a rightfull recompence, Five bundred men in Sufan they have flame, and that remainder of proud Hamans Braine, Their hands have rooted out; Queene Efter fay, What further fuit (wherein Affuerus may Expresse the bounty of his Royall hand) Is in thy bosome: What is thy demand? Said then the Queenc: If in thy Princely light My boone be pleasing, or thou take delight To great thy fervants faite, Let that Commission (which gave the lewes this happy dayes permission to fave their lives) to morrow fland in force, For their behalfes that onely make recourfe To God, and thee, and let that curfed brood (the formes of Haman, that in guilty blood, ne all ingoar'd, unfit to taint a Grave) tebang'd on Gibbets, and (like co-heires) bave THE de equal formes of that deferved fhame, beir wretched father purchas'd in bis name: The King was pleas'd, and the Decree was given om Sulan, where twixt earth and heaven, ut, erall:

XUM

yes,

owie

(Most undeserving to be own'd by either) These cursed ten (like twins) were borne together When I was (ready for his Iournall chase) Had rouz'd his dewy locks, and Rose face Inricht with morning beauty, up arose The Iewes in Susan, and their bloody blowes So roughly dealt, that in that difmall day A lease of hundreds fell, but on the prey No hand was laid: fo, sweet and jolly rest The Iewes enjoy'd, and with a folemne Feast, (Like joyfull Victors dispossest of forrow) They confecrated the enfuing morrow; And in the Provinces throughout the Land, Before their mighty and victorious hand, Fell more than feventy thousand, but the prey They feiz'd not; and in mem'ry of that day, They folemnized their victorious Guests, With gifts, and triumphs, and with holy Feafts.

Medita, 18.

The Doctrine of the Schoole of Grace differs From Natures (more uncertaine) rudiments, And are as much contrayr, and opposite As Yea, and Nay, or blacke, and purest white: For nature teaches, first to understand, And then believe; but grace doth first command Man to believe; and then to comprehend; Faith is of things unknowne, and must intend, And soare above conceit; What we conceive, We stand possess of an already have, But faith beholds such things, as yet we have not, Which cie sees not, eare hears not, hart coceivs and Heren He

Ere

Ou

To Go

In g

Aw

Go

Had

Bad

IfG

Is.b

The

Hav

Tov

The

And

Fith To le

But i

And

For v

Idar

Nor

Tor:

Nor t

With

Tog

With

From

And I

Lord,

The History of Queene of Ester. 163

Hereon, as on her ground-worke, our falvation Erects her pillers, From this firme foundation, Our foules mount up the new Icrufalem, Totake possession of her Diademe; God loves no fophistry; Who argues least In graces Schoole; concludes, and argues best; Awoman's Logicke palles there; For tis Good proofe to fay, Tis fo, because it is: Had Abraham advis d with flesh and blood, Bad had his faith beene, though his reasons good; If God bid doe, for man to urge a Why? Is,but in better language, a deny : The fleshly ballances of our conceits. Have neither equall poyfure, nor just weights, Toweigh, without impeachment, Gods defigne; There's no proportion betwixt things Divine, And mortall: Lively faith may not depend, Either upon th'occasion, or the end. The glorious Suns reflected beames fuffice, To lend a luster to the feeblest eyes, But if the Eye too covetous of the light, Boldly outface the Sun, (whose beames so bright And undespers'd, are too too much refin'd For view) is it not justly ftrucken blind? Idare not raske flout Samfon for his death; Nor wandring long b, that bequeath'd his breath To raging Seas, when God commanded fo; Nor thee (great Quene) whose lips did overflow With freames of blood; nor thee (O cruell kind) To quench the fire of a womans mind, With flowing rivers of thy subjects blood; From bad beginnings, God creates a good, And happy end : What I cannot conceive, Lord, let my foule admire, and beloeve. M 3

XUM

her:

lenu

ents,

:

and

d, e not,

Heres

THE ARGYMENT.
The Feaft of Purim confectated:
The Secafion why 'twas celebrated;
Letters were writ by Mordecai,
Tweepe the mem'ry of that Day.

Sett. 19.

CO Mardochemsthroughout all the Land Dispers'd his Letters, with a ftrickt command To celebrate thefe two dayes memory With Feasts, and gifts, and yeerly jollity, That after-ages may record that day, And keepe it from the ruft of time, that they Which shall succeed, may ground their holy mirth Vpon the joyes, those happy dayes brought forth, Which chang'd their fadnes, & black nights of los Into the brightnes of a gladfome morrow ; (res Whereto the lewes (to whom these Letters came Gave due observance, and did soone proclame Their facred Festivalls, in memory Of that dayes joy, and joyfull victory : And fince the Lots (that Haman did abufe, To know the difmall day, which to the lewer Might fall most farall, and, to his intent, Leaft unpropitious) were in th'event Croft with a higher Fare; than blinded Chance; To worke his ruine, their deliverance They therefore in remembrance of the Lot (Whole hop'd for fad event faceteded net) The folenme Feafts of Putim did inventy of And by the axage of Purion call d thirly Posts

Wh

An

Ith

Th

Ma

Bea

Per

Or

The Ina

And

The

Into

To

Thi

Tha

Who

Lurk

How

Vnm

Byh

Not

Is no

Den

Which to observe with sucred Complement, And ceremoniall rites, their soules indent, And firmly inroll the happy memory Ith hearts of their succeeding progeny, That time (the enemy of mortall things) May not, with how ring of his nimble wings, Beat downe the deare memoriall of that time, But keepe it flowring in perpetuall prime.

Now, left this shining day in times progresse Perchance be clouded with forgetful nesse.
Or left the gauled Persians should debate The bloody slaughter, and re-ulcerate Inaster-layes, their former misery, and blurre the glory of this dayes memory, The Queene and Mordecai sent Letters out into the Land, dispersed round out, To re-confirme, and sully ratisse This Feast of Purim, to eternity; That it to after-ages may appeare, (eare. When sinners bend their hearts, heav'n bowes his

Meditat, 19.

And are the Lawes of God defective then?
Or was the paper scant, or dull the pen
That wrote those sacred Lines? Could imperfectio
Lurk closely there, where heav'n hath give directio
How comes it then new Feasts are celebrated,
Vamention'd in the Law, and uncreated
By him that made the Law compleat, and just,
Not to be chang'd as braine sieke mortalls lust?
Is not heavens deepest curse, with death to boot,
Denounc'd to him that takes from, or adds too't?

M 3

True

mand forth.

s of los s cam

166 The History of Queene Efter.

True 'tis, the Law of God's the rule and squire, Whereby to limit Mans uncurb'd desire, And with a gentle hand doth justly paize The ballances of his unbevell'd wayes.

True 'ris, accurs'd, and thrice-accurs'd be he That shall detract, or change fuch Lawes, as be Directive for his Worship, or concerne His holy Service, thefe we strictly learne Within our constant brest to keepe inshrin'd, These in all seasons, and for all times binde: But Lawes (although Divine) that doe respect The publike rest, and properly direct, As Statutes politike, doe make relation. To times, and persons, places, and occasion : The brazen Serpent, which, by Gods command, Was builded up, was by the Prophets hand Beat downe againe, as impious, and impure, When it became an Idoll, not a Cure. A morall Law needs no more warranty, Then lawfull givers, and conveniency, (Not croffing the Divine :) It lyes in Kings, To act, and to inhibit all fuch things As in his Princely wisedome shall seeme best, And most vantagious to the publike rest, And what (before) was an indifferent thing, His Law makes good, or bad : A lawfull King Is Gods Liev-tenant; in his facred care God whispers oft, and keepes his Presence there.

To breake a lawfull Princes just Command, Is brokage of a sinne, at second hand.

colorist,

TH

The

Reco

For A

Of C

Of G

Seek

And

God

1

THE ARGUMENT.

Affacrus Alls noon Record: The just mans vertue, and reward.

Self. 20.

A Nd Affuerus stretcht his heavy hand,
Laying a Tribute, both on Sea, and Land;
What essentially what Tropbies of his fame,
Heleft for time to glorifie his Name,
With what renowne, and grace, he did appay
The faithfull heart of loyall Morde: ai;
Are they not kept in endlesse memory,
Recorded in the Persian History?
For Mordecai possess and his name was great;
Of God and man his vertues were approv d,
Of God and man, much honour d, and belov'd;
Seeking his peoples good, and sweet prosperity,
And speaking joyfull peace to his posserity.

Meditat. 20.

Thus thrives the man, thus prosper his endevors
That builds on faith, & in that faith persevers:
It is no lose, to lose; no gaine, to get,
If he that loses all, shall win the Set:
God helpes the weakest, takes the loses chaire,
And setting on the King, doth soone repaire
M 4
Hia

XUM

ere.

nd.

mire,

168 The Hiftory of Queene Efter.

His lofte with vengeance; Hee's not alway best That takes the highest place, nor he the least That sits beneath: for outward fortunes can Expresse(how great, but) not how good's the man. Whom God will raise, he humbles first a while; And where he raises, of the meanes to spoile.

It matters not (Lord) what my fortunes be, May they but lead, or whip me home to thee

Here the Canonicall History of Queene Ester ends-

PI

IOB MILITANT:

Horat.car.lib.1.ode 17.

— Diu, pietas mea, Et Musa, cordi est. —

By Fra. Quarles.

LONDON,
Printed by MILES FLESHER.
1630.

A

be,

0

Who Fren

The The B

Or n Upon Non With Upon

THE PROPOSITION OF THE WORKE.

Onldst thou discover in a curious Map,
That Iland, which fond worldlings call Surrounded with a sea of briny teares, (Missap, Therockie dangers, and the boggie Feares,
The stormes of Trouble, the afflicted Nation,
The beavie soile, the lowly situation?
On wretched Iob then spend thy weeping eye,
And see the colours painted curiously.

Wouldst thou behold a Tragicke Sceane of sorrow, Whose wofull Plot the Author did not borrow From sad Invention? The sable Stage, The lively Actors, with their Equipage? The Musicke made of Sighes, the Songs of Cries, The sad Spectators, with their watry Eyes? Behold all this, comprized here in one, Expect the Plandis, when the Play is done.

Or wouldst thou see a well-built Pinnace tost Upon the swelling Ocean, split (almost) Now, on a churlish Rocke, now, siercely striving With labouring Winds; now, desperately driving Upon the boiling Sands, her storme-rent Flags,

Her

172 The proposition of the Worke.

Her Maine-mast broke, her Canvas torne to rash Her Treasure loss, her Men with Lightning sam And lest a wrecke to the relentlesse Maine? This, this and more, unto your moistned Eyes, Our passent lob shall truely moralize.

Woulds thou behold unparalleld distresse,
Which minds cannot out think, nor tongues expess
Full to the life, the Anvill, whereupon Missibise doth worke her master piece, for now
To imitate; the dire Auatomy
Of (curiously disselted) Miserie;
The face of Sorrow, in her sternest lookes,
The rufull Arg' ment of all Tragicke bookes?
In briefe, Would tender eyes, endure to see (Samm'd up) the greatest sorrowes, that can be Behold they then, poore Iob assisted here,
And each Beholder spend (at least) his Ten

TO The

Hu

An

rke. 173 THE GREAT TETRAGRAMATON. Eyes LORD ARAMOVNT OF HEAVEN AND EARTH: His Humble Servant dedicates him-Selfe, and implores the Enfranchifing of his Mufe. Reat God, th'indebted praises of thy glary, In man fold mother, or his Muse wax fains To number forth; the stones wold make coplaint, And write a never-ending Story, And, not without just reason, say, Mens hearts are more obdure than they. Dismount from Heaven (O thou diviner Power) Handfell my flender Pipe, breathe (thon) wpon it, That it may run an everlasting Sonnet, Which envious Time may not devoure: Ob, let it fing to After-dages

(When I am Duft) thy londer Praife.

3 Dirett

5 ?

Direct

Direct the footsteps of my sober Muse
To tread thy clorious Path: For, best known,
She onely seekes thy Glory, not her owne,
Nor rouzed for a second use,
If otherwise, O! may she never

Sing more, but be firnche dumb for ever.

IOB Is fi

Diffuserer from Hermanica

Handfell rin Cinaler Pt . . . active (two ween it ,

There gon me we so some,

Ob, lett fagto Afterdager buch envious Time pries ne de wonre : .

(Phon I am Duft), by londer Prai &.

Tha His Iuft On The As

Go

Ase

Ah

His

Die

Th

XUM

IOB MILITANT:

THE ARGVMENT.
Iobs Lineage, and Integrity,
His Issue Wealth, Prosperity,
His childrens boly Feast: His wife Forecast, and realous Sacrifice.

Sell. 1.

A TOt far from Cafius, in whose bountious womb. Great Pompeys dust lies crowned with his tomb, Westward, betwixt Arabia and Iudaa, Is fituate a Country, called Idumaa, There dwelt a man (brought from his Lineage, That for his belly, swopt his Heritage,) His name was lob, a man of upright Will, luft, fearing Heaven, eschewing what was Ill, On whom his God had heapt in highest measure, The bountious Riches of his boundleffe Treasure, As well of Fortune, as of Grace, and Spirit, Goods for his Children, Children to inherit; As did his Name, his Wealth did daily wexe, His Seed did germinate in either Sexe A hopefull Iffue, whose descent might keepe His righteous Race on foot; seven thousand sheepe Did pay their Summer-tribute, and did adde Their Winter-bleffings to his Fold : He had

Thre

Three thousand Camels, able for their load, Five hundred Asses, furnishe for the road, As many yoake of Oxen, to maintaine His houshold, for he had a mighty Traine; Nor was there any in the East, the which In Vertue was so rare, in Wealth so rich.

Vpon a time, his Children (to improve The sweet affection of their mutuall love) Made solemne Feasts; each seasted in his turne, (For there's a time to mirth, as well as mourne) And who, by course, was Master of the Feast, Vnte his home invited all the reft.

Even as a Hen (whose render brood forfake The downy closet of her Wings, and takes Each its affected way) markes how they feed, This, on that Crum; and that, on t'other Seed; Mores, as they move; and flayes, when as they flay And feemes delighted in their Infant-play : Yet (fearing danger) with a buse eye, Lookes here and there, if ought the can efpy, Which (amawares) might fnatch a booty from a Eyes all that pafic, and watches every commer. Even fo th'affection of this tender Syre, (B'ing made more fervent, with the felfe-fame Of dearest love, which flamed in their brefts, Preferred (as by Fuell) in those Feasts) Was ravificin the height of joyes, to fee His happy Childrens ten-fold unity: As was his Loy, fuch was his holy Feare, Left he, that plants his Engines everywhere, Baited with golden Sinnes, and re-infaares The feule of Man, turning his Wheat to Tares, Should feafon Error with the tafte of Truth, And tempt the faulty of their tender youth.

XUM

Opc

And

But !

Véo

Ane

For n

Plead

The Aimi

The Cock

Whic

He w Whic

Butt

Coul

Lives To w

Butg

And t

But a

Wi

Moft

No fooner therefore had the dappled skye Opened the Twilight ofher waking eye, And in her breaking Light, had promis d day, But up he rose, his holy hands did lay Voon the facred Altar (one by one) An early Sacrifice for every Sonne: For who can tell, (faid he?) my Sonnes (perchance) Have flipt fume finne which neither Jewerance Pleaded, nor want of heed, nor youth can cure. Sin fteales, unfecne, when men fleep moft feeure.

Ateditat. 1.

Ant is the badge of poverty: Then he (wc. That wanteth most, is the most poore, say The wretch, that hunger drives from doore to door, y ftan Aiming at present Alnies, defires no more. The toiling Swaine, that hath with pleafing trouble Cockt a small fortune, would that fortune double, Which dearly bought with flav'ry, then (alas) He would be deem'd a Man, that's well to paffe: Which got, his mind's now rickled with an itch, But to deserve that glorious stile of Rich. That done, h'enjoyes the crowne of all his labour, Could he but once out-nofe his right-had-neighbor. Lives he at quier now > Now, he begins To wish, that Vs'rie were the least of finnes: But great, or small, he tries, and sweet's the trouble, And for its fake, he wishes all things double. Thus wishing still, his wishes never tease, But as his Wealth, his Wishes still encrease. Wishes proceed from want: The richest then, loft withing, want most, and are poorest men: R

ne,

ne) ed:

er.

ne fi

If he be poore, that wanteth much, how poore Is he, that hath too much, and yet wants more? Thrice happy he, to whom the bounty of heaven, Sufficient, with a sparing hand, hath given: 'Tis Grace, not Gold, makes great; sever but which, The Rich man is but poore, the Poore man rich. The fairest Crop of either Grasse, or Graine, Is not for use, undew'd with timely raine. The wealth of Crass, were it to be given, Were not thank-worthy, if unblest by Heaven.

Even as faire Phabe, in Diameter,
(Earth interpos'd betwixt the Sun and her) Suffers Eclipfe, and is diffohed quite (During the time) of all her borrowed Light;
So Riches, which fond Mortalls fo embrace,
If not enlightned with the Beames of Grace,
B'ing interposed with too groffe a Care,
They lye obscured, and no Riches are.

My kint of Wealth lyes not in my expressing, With laces Store (Lord) give me laces Blessing, Or if, at night, theu grant me Laces Boone.

Let Diver Dogs licke all my force at noone.

Lord, pare my Wealth, by my Capacity,

Lest I, with it, or it suit not with me.

This humbly doe I sue for, at thy hand,

Enough, and not too much, for my command.

Lord, what theu lend'st, shall serve but in the place of reckening Counters, to summe up thy Grace.

THI Tobia

Befo

Oft

Com

Sata

The

Sata

Hath

Thou

1 beve

And co Temple Sachin Losma

1 have Of Chr

Th

THE ARGUMENT.

Satan appeares, and then professes Himselfe mans Enemy, consesses Gods love to Lob, male ener his Faith, Gaines power over all he hath.

Sca. 1.

V Pon a time, whe heavens sweet quire of Saints (Whose everlasting Halelujah chaunts The highest praise of their celestiall King)
Before their Lord, did the presentment bring,
Of th'execution of his sacred Will,
Committed to their function to fulfill:
Satan came too (that Satan, which betraid
The soulcof man, to Deaths eternall shade,
Satan came too) and in the midst he stands,
Like to a Vulture 'mongst a Herd of Swans.
Said, then, th'Eternall; From what quarter now

Said, then, th'Eternall; From what quarter now
Hatb businesse brought thee? (Satan) whence com's thou?
The Lord of Heaven (said th'Infernall) since Thou hast intitled me the Worlds great Prince.

Thus hast intitled me the World's great Prince,
There beene practifing mine old profession,
And come from compassing my large Possifican,
And come from compassing my large Possifican,
Tempting thy sources, and (tike a vering Liam)
Stehing my prey, disturbe the peace of Sion 3
Tome from soming Tares among thy Wheat 3
To him, that shall dissamble Petors shat,
I have beene plotting, how to prompt the death
Of Christian Princes, and the solbed breath 263.

nich,

g, place

ce,

Of cheapned lustice, bath my Fire instam'd with spirit of boldnesse, for a while, unsham'd. I come from planting strife, and sterne debate, "Twixt private man and man," twixt State and State, Subverting Truth whith all the power I can, Accusing Man to God, and God to Man: I daily low fresh Schismes amang thy Saints; I buffet them and lings at their complaints; I best them and lings at their complaints; I round the World, and so from thence I come.

Said then th' Eternall: True, thou hast not fail'd

Said then th' Eternall: True, thou hast no Of what thou say'st; try spirit hath prevail d' To vext my little Flocke; Thou hast beene hold. But say; in all thy hard Adventures, bath Thine oge observed look my Servants saith? Hath open sorce, or secret fraud beset His Bulwarkes, so impregnable, as yet? And hast thou (without enay) yet beheld, How that the world his second cannot yeeld? Hast thou mot sound, that he's of upright mill, luß, searing God, escheming what is ill?

True Lord, (reply'd the Fierid) thy Champion hath A firong and fervent (yet a crafty) Faith, A forced lever meets no fuch great applause, He leves but ill, that loves not for a cause. Hast thou not beap'd his Garners with excesse? Inricht his Passwes? Dorb not be posses? Inricht his Passwes? Dorb not be posses? All that he bass, or san domand, from T bee? His (ofers fill'd, his Land Rock'd plentiously? Hath not thy love surrounded him about, And hedg'd him in, to sence my prastice out? But small's the tryall of a Pasth, in this, If thou support him, 'the thy strength, not bis.

And Ceafe No d Lo I bere Bji be Himfe

Stret

If Condition True Twa We be God The Can The Interest Condition The Interest Condition True But Condition Tru

That

He ai

Hech

And

Can,

God

tm then my power, that flands by thy permission, incounter, where Thou mak ft an Opposition? Snetch forth thy Hand, and smite but what he halb, and prove thou then the temper of his Faith; tusecock ring his found humour, veile thy Grace, Nodubt, but he'te blashbeme thee to thy face, Lo, (said th'Evernall) to thy surfed hand, I here commit his mighty Stocke, his Land, Bis hopefull Hue, and Wealth, though ne're so much; Himselfe, alone, thou shalt serve co touch.

Meditat 1.

Aran beg'd once, and found his pray'rs reward?
We often beg, yet of returne, unheard.
If granting be th'effect of love, then we Conclude our felves, to be lesse lov'd than he;
True, Satan beg'd, and beg'd his shame, no lesse;
'Twas granted; Shall we envie his successe?
We beg, and our request's (perchance) not granted;
God knew, perhaps, it were worse had, than wanted.
Can God and Belial both joyne in one will;
The one to aske, the other to sulfill?

The one to aske, the other to fulfill?

Sooner shall Sygian darknesse blend with light,
The Frost with Fier, sooner Day with Night.
True, God and Satan will'd the selfe-same Will,
But God intended Good; and Satan, Ill:
That Will produc'd a severall conclusion;
He aim'd at Mans, and God at his consusson.
Hethat drew Light, from out the depth of Shade,
And made of Nothing, what soo're he made,
Can, out of seeming Evill, bring good Events;
God worketh Good, though by ill Instruments.

N,

As in a Clocke, one motion doth convay
And carie divers wheeles a feverall way:
Yet all together, by the great wheeles force,
Direct the Hand unto his proper courfe:
Even so, that facred Will, although it use
Meanes seeming contrary, yet all conduce
To one effect, and in a free consent,
They bring to passe heavens high decreed intent.

Takes God delight in humane weaknesse, then)
What glory reapes he from assisted men?
The Spirit gone, can Flesh and Blood endure?
God burnes his Gold to make his Gold more pure.

Even as a Nurse, whose childes impersed pace Can hardly lead his foot from place to place, Leaves her send kissing, sets him downe, to goe, Nor does uphold him, for a step or two:
But when the findes that he begins to fall, She holds him up, and kisses him withdall:
So God, from man sometimes withdrawes his him A while, to teach his infant-saith to stand; But when he sees his feeble strength begin, To faile, he gently takes him up againe.

Lord, I'm a childe, so guide my paces, than, That I may learne to walke an upright man: So shield my Faith, that I may never doubt thee, For I shall fall, if e'te I walke without thee.

tivoring weather to be made, fections healthrone 2002 Even ve th Code, thoughter it Instrument TH

Wi

(L

At (N

Cr

Pu

Th

He

Th

Th Th

W

To

THE ARGUMENT.

The frighted Messengers tell Iob His source-fold losse: He rends his Robe, Submits him to his Makers truss, Whom he conclude to be just.

Sect. 3.

V Pon that very day, when all the reft
Were frollicke at their elder Brothers feaft,
A breathlesse man, prickt on with winged feare,
With staring eyes, distracted here and there,
(Like kindled Exhalations in the Aire
At midnight glowing) his stiffe-bolting haire,
(Not much unlike the pennes of Porcupines)
Crossing his armes, and making wofull signes,
Purboy! d in sweat, shaking his searfull head,
That often lookt behinde him, as he fled,
He ran to 30b, still ne rethelesse asfraid,
His broken blast breath'd forth these words, & said:

Alas, (deare Lord) the whiles thy fervants ply'd Thy painfull Plough, and whileft, on every fide. Thy Affes fed about us, as we wrought, There fallyed forth on us (fufpecting nought, Nor ought intending, but our cheerfull paine) A rout of rude Sabzans, with their Traine Armed with Death, and deafe to all our Cries, Which, with firong Hand, did in an houre furprize All that thou hadit, and whileft we firove (in vaine) To guard them, their impartiall hands have flaine pace be, e pure

N 4

Thy

ent. hen!

is han chee,

XUM

Thy faithfull Servants, with their thirfty Sword; I onely scap't, to bring this worull word.

No looner had he clos'd his lips, but see!

Another comes, as much agast as he:
A flash of Fire (said he) new falne from heaven,
Hath all thy Servants of their lives bereaven,
And burnt thy Sheepe; I, I alone am he,
That's lest unslaine, to bring the newes to thee.

This Tale not fully told, a third enfues,
Whose lips, in labour with more heavy Newes,
Brake thus; The forces of a triple Band,
Brought from the fierce Caldwans, with strong had Hath seiz d thy Camels, murther d with the sword
Thy servants all, but me, that brings thee word.

Before the Ayre had cool d his hafty breath,
Rusht in a fourth, with visage pale as Death:
The while (said he) thy children all were sharing Mirth, at a Feast of thy first Sonnes preparing,
Arose a Winde, whose errand had more hast
Than happy speed, which with a full-mouth blast
Hath smote the house, which hath thy children rest
Of all their lives, and thou art childlesse left;
Thy children all are slaine, all slaine together,
Lonely scap t to bring the Tidings hither.

So faid, Behold the man, whose wealth did flow Like to a Spring-tide, one bare houreagoe, With the unpartent, dheight of fortunes blest, Above the greatest Dweller in the East; He that was Syre of many sonnes but now, Lord of much people, and while-e're could show Such Herds of Cattell, He, whose sleecy stocke Of Sheepe could boast seven thousand, in a flocke, See how he lies, of all his wealth dispoyl'd, He now hath neither, Servant, Sheepe, nor Childe;

Like

(Stu

Na

Forth

and O

Toth

Ged gi

April

Te me

Dends

Beres

He len

Thou

The a

And a

Woul

Subdu

Earth

With

Offic

entf

Mans

To fti

lke a poore man, arose the patient lob, (Smn'd with the newes) and rent his purple Robe, shaved the haire from off his wofull head, And proftrate on the floore he worshipped:

Naked, ab! Poore and naked did I come Furth from the closet of my mothers wambe : and shall returne (alas) the very same To the earth as poore, and naked as I came: Get gives, and takes, and why floould He not have aprivi'edge, to take those things be gave? Temen miflakeour Tenure oft, for Hee Irids us at will, what we mifcall as Free; Berea Jumes bis owne, takes but the fame Helent a while. T brice bleffed be bis Name. In all this passage, Job, in heart, nor Tongue, Thought God unjust, or charg'd his hand with (wrong.

Med. 3.

He proudest pitch of that victorious spirit Was but to win the World, whereby t'inherite The ayrie purchase of a transitory And glozing Title of an ages Glory; Would'ft thou by conquest win more fame then He Subdue thy felfe; Thy felfe's a world to thee? Earth's but a Ball, that Heaven hath quilted o're With wealth and Honour, banded on the floore Offickle Fortunes false and slippery Court, ent for a Toy, to make us Children fport, dans fatiate spirits, with fresh delights supplying, lde; oftill the Fondlings of the world, from crying, And had ord ng

ıft

WC

2

Like

reft

And he, whose merit mounts to such a loy, Gaines but the Honour of a mighty Toy. (crown's To But would'ft thou conquer, have thy conquest By hands of Seraphims, trymph'd with the found Of heavens lowd Trumpet, warbled by the shrill Celestiall quire, recorded with a quill, Pluck't from the Pinion of an Angels wing, Confirm'd with joy, by heavens Eternall King? Conquer thy selfe, thy rebell thoughts repell, And chase those false affections that rebell. (the Hath heaven dispoil'd what his full hand had give Nipt thy fucceeding Bloffomes? or bereaven to Of thy deare latest hope, thy bosome Friend? Doth fad Despaire deny these griefes an end? Defpair's a whilpring Rebell, that, within thee, Bribes all thy Field, and fets thy felfe agin thee; Make keene thy Faith, and with thy force let flee, If thou not conquer him, hee'l conquer thee: Advance thy Shield of Patience to thy head, And when griefe ftriks, 'twil ftrike the ftriker do The patient man, in forrow spies reliefe, And by the taile, he couples loy with Griefe.

In adverse fortunes, be thou strong and stout, And bravely win thy selfe, Heaven holds not out His Bow, for ever bent. The disposition Of noblest spirits, doth, by opposition, Exasperate the more: A gloomy night Whets on the morning, to returne more bright; A blade well try'd, deferves a treeble price, And Vertu's purcit, most oppos'd by Vice: Brave minds, opprest, should (in despight of Fan Looke greateft, (like the Suune) in loowest state

But ah! shall God thus strive with flesh & blos Receives he Glory from or reapes he Good

M Hat

Ori

Ter Moi

The

Mar

Of (

L

The The Re g

The

Th'

(W

Or:

a mortals Ruine, that he leaves man fo rown' Tobe o'rwhelm'd by his unequal! Foe ueft May not a Potter, that, from out the ground, found Hath fram'd a veffell, fearch if it be found? Orif by forbushing, he take more paine Tomake it fairer, shall the Pot complaine? Mortall, thou art but Clay: then shall not he, That fram'd thee for his service, season thee? Man, cloze thy lips; Be thou no undertaker Of Gods defignes Dispute not with thy Maker. Lord, 'tis against thy nature to doe ill; Then give me pow'r to beare, and worke thy Will; Thou know it what's best, make thou thine owne Regiorifi'd, although in my confusion. (conclusion

THE ARGYMENT.

Satan the fecond time appeares, Before th' Eternall, boldly dares Maligne lobs tryed Faith afrefb, And gaines th'afflicting of his Flifh.

Sell. 4.

Nce more, whe heaves harmonious querifters Appear'd before his Throne, (whose Ministers They are, of his concealed will) to render . Their strict account of lustice, and to tender Th'accepted Sacrifice of highest praise, (Warbled in Sonnets, and celestiall Layes) ftate. Satan came too, bold, as a hungry Fox, Or rayinous Welfe amid the tender Flockes, Satan, thrill ing?

(thee d give en t

12 d ? hee, hee: t fice.

e:

er de

e. tout, ot out ght;

f Fan

blo

11,

Satan, (faid then th'Eternall) from whence now others Hath thy imployments drive thee ? whence com'h lend n Satan replies : Great God of heave & earth, (thou) I come from tempting, and from making mirth: To heare thy dearest children whine, and roare: In briefe, I come, from whence I came before.

Said then th'Eternall, Haft thou not beheld My servants Faith, how, like a seven-fold shield, It hath defended his integrity Against thy fiery Darts? Hath not thine Eye, (Thine envious eye) perceiv'd how purely just He stands, and perfect, worthy of the trust I lent into his hand, perfifting ftill Iust, fearing God, eschewing what is ill? Twas not the loffe of his fo faire a Flocke, Nor fudden rape of fuch a mighty Stocke; 'Twas neither loffe of Servants, not his Sonnes Vntimely flaughter, (acted all at once) Could make him quaile, or warpe fo true a Faith, Or staine so pure a Love; say (Satan)hath Thy hand (fo deepely counterfeiting mine) Made him miltrust his God, or once repine? Can there in all the earth, fay, can there be A man fo Perfect, and fo luit, as Hce?

Replies the Tempter, Lord, an outward losse Hopes for repaire, its but a common crosse: I know thy fervant's wife, a wife forecast, Grieves for things present, not for things are past; Perchance, the tumor of his fullen heart, Brookes loffe of all, fince he hath loft a part; My selfe have Servants, who can make true boaft, They gave away as much, as he hath loft : Others (with learning made fo wisely mad) Refuse such Fortunes, as he never had;

XUM

A Fait ur Sa and pi thy D

TOY

teplage in pore

u fleft

DO

DEX

Witho

Vnta

For I:

Most 1

Thing am i

My F

trule

But th

Free f

My D

Marb.

Eclip

By in

My m

lt ke c

Faith's not try'd by this uncertaine Tuch, e now others, that never knew thee, did as much : com'h end me thy Power then, that I might once thou a Sacrifice his Fleth, afflict his Bones, and pierce his Hide, but for a moments space, thy Darling then, would curfe thee to thy Face. To which, th' Eternall thus : His body's thine, toplague thy fill rouball. I doe confine in power to her lifts, of flict and teare In fleft at pleasure : But bis life forbeare.

Garify

Meditat. 4.

DOth Goods, and body too; Lord, who can stand? DExpect not lobs uprightnesse, at 1.9 hand, Without lobs aid, The temper of my Passion, Vntam'd by thee) can brooke no lebs Tempration for I am weake, and fraile, and what I can Most boast of, proves me but a sinfull man; Things that I should avoyd, I doe; and what am injoyn'd to doe, that doe I not. My Flesh is weake, too strong in this, alone, trules my spirit, that should be rul'd by none But thee; my spirit's faint, and hath beene never Free from the fits of fins quotidian Fever. aft; My pow'rs are all corrupt, corrupt my Will, Marble to good, and Waxe to what is ill, Edipfed is my reason, and my Wit; By interposing Earth 'twixt Heaven, and it : My mem'ry's like a Searce of Lawne (alas) It keepes things groffe, and lets the purer paffe. What

h:

d

re:

ld,

flu

:3

h,

What have I then to boast, What Title can
I challenge more then this, A finfull man?
Yet doe I (sometimes) seele a warme desire,
Raise my low Thoughts, and dull affessions higher
Where, like a soule entrans't, my spirit files,
Makes leagues with Angels, and brings Deities Halfe way to heaven, shakes hands with Seraphim
And boldly mingles wings with Cherubims,
From whence, I looke askaunce, adowne the earth,
Pity my selfe, and loath my place of birth:
But while I thus my lower state deplore,
I wake, and prove the wretch I was before.

Even as the Needle, that directs the howre, (Toucht with the Loadstone) by the secret power Of hidden Nature, points upon the Pole; Even so the wavering powers of my soule, Toucht by the vertue of thy Spirit, slee From what is Barth, and point alone to Thee. When I have faith, to hold thee by the Hand, I walke securely, and me thinke I stand More firme then Allas; But when I forsake The safe protection of thine Arme, I quake, Like wind-shakt Keeds, and have no strength at al, But (as a Vine, the Prop cut down) I fall.

Yet wretched I (when as thy Iustice lends Thy glorious Presence from me)straight am friest
With Flesh and blood, forget thy Grace flye stois,
And, like a Dog, returne unto my Vomit;
The fawning world, to pleasure then invites
My wandring eyes; The flesh presents delights
Vnto my yeelding heart, which thinke those pleater onely bus nes now, and rarest treasures, sure,
Content can glory in, whilst I, secure
Stoope to the painted plumes of Satans Lure:

Thu

Make:

Of his

Scfore

like to

Wha

Icha

feele tedref

Too gr

Say but tillth

Ne'r cl

Till th y ch

My har

l'le ftr

Say

Hea

hus I captiv'd, and drunke with pleasures Wine, lie to a mad-man, thinke no state like mine. What have I then to boaft? What title can Ichallenge more then this, A finfull man? feele my griefe enough, nor can I be dereft by any, but (Great God) by thee. ogreat thou art to come within my Roofe, Say but the word , Be whate, and 'tis enough; fill then, my tongue shall never ccase, mine Eyes Me'r cloze, my lowly bended knees ne'r rife; fill then, my foule shall ne'r want carly fobs. ly cheekes no teares, my Pensive breft no throbs, Whart shall lack no zeale, nor tongue expressing, leftrive like Jacob till I get my Bleffing: Say then, Be cleane, I'le never ftop till then, Heaven ne'r shall rest til Heaven shall say, Amen.

THE ARGVMENT.

Iob, smot with Vicers, groveling lyes, Plung'd in a Gulfe of Miseries, His Wise to blasshemy doth tempt bire, His three Friends visit, and lament bire.

Sell. 5.

Like as a Truant-Scholler (whose delay Lis worse then whipping, having leave to play)
Makes haste to be inlarged from the Iayle
Of his neglected Schoole, turnes speedy tayle
Vpon his tedious booke (so ill befriended)
Refore his Masters Ite be full ended:

gher

him

arth.

wer it al.

ićdi o it.

let res

hus

So thankleffe Satan, full of winged hafte, Thinking all time, not spent in Mischiefe, waste, Departs with speed, lette patient to forbeare The patient leb, then patient leb to beare.

Forth from the furnace of his Nostrell, flyes A fulpherous vapour, which (by the envious eyes Of this foule Fiend inflam'd) possest the faire, And sweet complexion of th'abused Ayre With Pestilence, and (having power so farre) Tooke the advantage of his worfer Starre, Smote him with Vlcers (fuch as once befell Th'Egyptian Wizzards) Vlcers hot and fell, Which like a fearching Tetter uncorrected, Left no part of his body unaffected, From head to foot, no empty place was found, That could b'afflicted with another wound: So noyfome was the nature of his griefe, That (left by friends, and wife, that should be chie Affister)he (poore he) alone remain'd, Groveling in Ashes, being (himselfe) constrain'd, With pot-sheards, to scrape off those rip'ned con (Which dogs disdain'd to licke) from out his som

Which when his wife beheld, adult, and keene, Her passion waxt, made strog with scorne & splee Like as the Winds, imprison'd in the earth, And barr'd the passage to their naturall birth, Grow fierce; and nilling to be longer pent, Breake in an Earthquake, shake the world, & ven So brake the forth, fo forth her Fury brake, Till now, pent in with shame, and thus she spake

Fond Saint, thine Innocence finds timely freed, A foolish Saint receives a Saintly meed; Is this the juft mans recompence? Or bath

Heaven no requitall for thy painfull Faith,

Other

Abites

Thy p

Nooth

Fond

Ceafe

'In H

Curfe

THE Curfe

Thou

Laugh

If-be

Am l'le tr

OfE

And

And

She

Adv:

And

The

Vpor

Who

His v

Toc

But

Whe

Bri

T, c

Seve

But !

W

lab

Other then thu? What, have thy zealous Qualmes, Abstenious Fastings, and thy hopefull Almes, Thy private groanes, and often bended kuces, Noother end no other thankes, but thefe? Fond man fubmit thee to a kinder fate, leafe to berighteous, at fo deare a rate : 'In Heaven, not Fortune, that thy weale debarres Cufe Heaven then, and not thy wayward flarres : 'In God that plagues thee, God not knowing why; Cusfe then that God, revenge thy wrongs and dye. lob then replyed: God loves where be chaftiz'd; Thou feakeft like a foole, and ill adviz'd ; Laugh we to little the freet, and fhall we lower, If be be pleas' d to fend a little forore? Am I fo weake, one blaft or two, should chill me; l'le truft my Meker, though my Maker kill me. When thefe fad tidings fill'd thofe itching eares Of Earths black babling daughter (the that heares And vents alike, both Truth and Forgeries, And utters, often cheaper then the buyes) She fored the pinions of her nimble wings, Advanc't her Trumpet, and away the fprings, And fils the whifpring Ayre, which foone potleft fplet The spacious borders of th'enquiring East, Vpon the fummon of fuch folemne Newes, Whose truth, malignant Fame could not abuse, His wofull friends came to him, to the end, To comfort, and bewaile their wretched friend. But when they came, farre off, they did not know, whether it were the felfe-fame friend or no, (T'express their griefe) the garmets that they wore Seven dayes and nights they fa te upon the ground But spake not, for his forrowes did abound. Meditet.

(Brim-fill'd with briny woe) they wept and tore afte,

CS.

eyes

e,

:)

9 d, e chie

in'd,

COL

s form

ene,

th,

C YCE

Medita, 5.

Say, is not Satan justly stiled than,
A Tempter, and an Enemy to Man?
What could he more? His wish would not extend
To death, lest his assaults, with death should end:
Then what he did, what could he surther doe?
His Hand hath seiz'd both Goods, and Body too.
The hopefull Issue of a holy straine,
In such a dearth of holinesse, is staine.
What hath the Lazar lest him, but his griese,
And (what might best been spard) his soolish wise?
Could mischiese bin more hard (though more in To nip the flowers, & leave the weeds behind (kind

Woman was made a Helper by Creation,
A Helper, not alone for Propagation,
Or fond Delight, but sweet Society,
Which Man (alone) should want, and to supply
Comforts to him, for whom her Sex was made,
That each may joy in eithers needfull aide:
But fairest Angels, had the foulest fall;
And best things (once abus'd) prove worst of all,
Else had not Satan beene so foule a Fiend,
Else had not Woman prov'd so false a Friend.

Even as the treacherous Fowler, to entice
His filly winged Prey, doth first devise.
To make a Bird his stale, at whose falle call,
Others may chance into the selfe-same thrall:
Even so, that crafty snarer of Mankind,
Finding mans righteous Pallate not enclind
To taste the sweetnesse of his gilded baites,
Makes a collaterall Sute, and slily waites 700 eit mot

st gloo.

m it.

V po

Wha

Is

TI

Too

Ifbei

If ort

No fe

Iwill

If goe

Hill,

Lo

Ypon the weaknesse of some bosome friend, From whose enticement, he expects his end.

Ah righteous lob, what croffe was left unknowne?
What griefe may be describ'd, but was thine owne?

Is this a just mans cafe What doth befall Toone man, may as well betide to all.

The worst I'le looke for, that I can project; Ifbetter come, 'tis more then I expect; If other wife, I'm arm'd with Preparation; No sorrow's sudden to an Expectation.

Lord, to thy Wisedome I submit my Will, I will be thankfull, send me good, or ill; If good, mypresent State will passe the sweeter; If ill, my Crowne of glory shall be greater.

THE ARGUMENT.

Orewhelm'd with griefe, Lob breaketh forth Into Impatience: Bans bit birth, Professes, that bit beart did doubt And searc, what since bath fallen out:

Sett. 6.

Orn bare with grief, the passet lob betrai'd His seven-daies silence, curst his day, and O that my Day of birth had never bin (said : say yet the Night, which I was brought forthind it not numbred for a Day, let Light lit not numbred for a Day, let Light lit make a difference twixt it and Right, which it gloomy Shades (then Death more fable) passet and the passet declare how fatall twas:

end

nd:

:00.

vife

in all,

Let Clouds ore-tall it, and as batefull make it, As life's to bim, whom Tortures bid, forfake it : From ber next day, let that blacke Night be cut, Nor in the reckning of the Months, be put : Les Defelation fill it, all night long, In it, be never beard a Bridall fone: Let all fad Mourners, that doe curfe the Light, When light's drawne in begin to curfe this night ? Her evening Twilight, les foule darkneffe flaine ; And may bet Mid night expell Light in vaine. Nor let ber infant Day (but newly borne) Suffer's to fee the Eye-lads of the morne, Because my Mothers Womb: it would not clove, Which gave me passage to endure these woes: Why dyed I not in my Conception, rather? Or why was not my Birth, and Death together? Wby did the Midwife take me on ber knees? WV by did I sucke, to feele such gricfes as these? Then had this body never been oppreft, I bad injoy'd th' eternall fleepe of reft; With Kings, and mighty Monarchs, that lie crown'd With flately Monuments, poore I bad found A place of Reft, bad borne as great a sway, Had beene as bappy, and as rich as they: Why was I not as an abortive birth, That ne're had knowne the borrors of the earth ? The filent Grave is quiet from the feare Of Tyrants Tyrants are appealed there, The grinded Prifner beares not (there) the noyfe, Nor barder streatnings of th' Oppreffors voyce: Both rich and poore are equal'd in the Grave, Servans no Lords, and Lords no Servants bave: What needs there light to him thats comfortleffe? Or life to (uch as languish in diftreffe, 25

And had had been a Boo Orelfo That is when

When Left, i I migh What But th Yet do

The fle

The r Diffe The r Diffe The r His D The r Norg

And Bow of The fi

had long for death, which, if it come by leifure, They ranfack for it, as a hidden treasure? What reasure there Life to him, that cannot have A Boone, were gracious, then a quiet Grave? Forest to him, whom God bath wall d about, That would, but cames find a passage out? When I but tasse, my sigher returne my food, The slowing of my teares have rais' d a flood; when my estate was prosperous, I did scare, less, by some beedlesses some to passage to the strong of care, and claw!) what I did then so feare as come to passe:

Lat though secure, my soule did never sumber, I the my Woes exceed both Waight, and Rumber.

Meditat, 6.

O poore a thing is Man. No Flesh and blood Deserves the stile of Absolutely Good:
The righteous man sins oft; whose pow'rs such,
To sin the least, sins (at the least) too much:
The man, whose Faith distain'd his Mark life,
Dissembled once, a Sister, for a Wife:
The righteous Les, being drunk, did make (at once)
His Daughters both, halfe sisters to their sonnes:
The royall Favorite of heaven, stood
Not guilt lesse of Adultery and Blood,
And he, whose hands did build the Temple, doth
Bow downe his sufffull knees to Astaroth
The sinfull Woman was accus'd, but none
Was sound, that could begin to sling a stone:

From

From mudled Springs, can Christall water come? In some things, all men fin, in all things, some.

Even as the foyle, (which Aprils gentle showers Have ald with sweetnesse, and inricht with flowers) Reares up her fuckling plants, still shooting forth The tender bloflomes of her timely Birth, But, if deny'd the beames of cheerly May, They hang their withered heads, and fade away: So man, affifted by th' Almighties Hand, His Faith doth flourish, and securely stand, But left awhile, forfooke (as in a shade) It languishes, and nipt with fin doth fade: No Gold is pure from Droffe, though oft refin'd; The ftrongeft Cedar's shaken with the wind; The fairest Rose hath no prerogative, Against the fretting Canker-worme; The Hive No hony yeelds, unblended with the wax, The finest Linnen hath both soyle and bracks: The best of men have sins; None lives fecure, In Nature nothing's perfect, nothing pure.

Lord, fince I needs must fin, yet grant that I Forge no advantage by infirmity: Since that my Vesture cannot want a Staine, Affift me, left the tineture he in Graine.

To thee (my great Redeemer) doe I fly,
It is thy Death alone, can change my Dye;
Teares, mingled with thy Blood, can scower so,
That Scaulet sinnes shall turne as white as Snow.

the still called the after bullishe Temple, forth

THI

Yet !

And

Thy

Help But r

And Fear

Indge

That But o

Lewo

Soha

With

And

In de Vnwe My ti

XUM

THE ARGYMENT.
Rash Eliphaz reproves, and rates,
And falsty consures Iob; Relates
His Vision; shewes bim the event
Of wicked men: Bids bim repent.

Seat 7.

Then Eliphas, his pounded tongue replier'd,
And faid, shold I coted, thou wold ft be grier'd;
Yet what man can refraine, but he must breake
His angry silence, having heard thee spake?

O fudden change! Many haft thou directed, And stregthned those, whose minds have bin deje-Thy facred Thewes, & fweet Inftructions, did (ctcd; Helpe those were falling, rays'd up such as flid: But now it is thy case, thy scule is vext, or And canst not helpe thy selfe, thy selfe perplext; Thou lov'd thy God, but basely for thy profit, Fear'ft him, in further expectation of it; ludge then : Did Record ever round thine eare, That God forfooke the heart, that was fincere? But often have we feene, that fuch as plow Lewdnesse, and mischiefe, reape the same they fow: So have proud tyrants fro their thrones bin caft, With all their off-Ipring, by th' Almighties Blaft; And they, whose hads have bin imbrew'd in blood, Have with their Iffue dyed, for want of Food :

A Vision lately, appeard before my fight, In depth of darknesse, and the dead of night, Vnwonted seare vsurpt me round about, My trembling bones were fore, from head to soot:

4 · Forth-

w.

me > wers

ers)

rth

y;

Forthwith, a Spirit glanc'd before mine eyes, My browes did sweat, my moistued haire did rise, The face I knew not, but a while it staid, And in the depth of silence, thus it said,

Is man more just, more pure then his Creator?

Amongst his Angels, (more upright by nature
Then man) he hath found Weaknes, how much Shall he expect in him, that's walled ore (more
With mortall flesh and blood, founded, & floor'd
With Dust, and with the Wormes to be devour'd?
They rise securely with the Morning Sunne,
And (unregarded) dye ere Day be done;
Their glory passes with them, as a breath,
They die (like Fooles) before they thinke of death.

Rage then, and fee who will approve thy rage, What Saint will give thy railing Patronage Anger destroyes the Foole, and he that hath A wrathfull heart, is flaine with his owne wrath; Yet have I feene, that Fooles have oft beene able To boaft with Babel, but have falne with Babel: Their fons despairing, roare without reliefe In open ruine, on the Rocks of Griefe: Their harvest (though but small) the hungry eate, And robbers seize their wealth, thogh ne'r so great; But wretched man, were thy Condition mine, I'de nor despaire, as thou dost, nor repine, But offer up the broken Sacrifice Of a fad foule, before his angry eyes, Whose workes are Miracles of admiration, He mounts the meeke, amidst their Desolation, Confounds the worldly wife, that (blindfold) they Grope all in darknesse, at the noone of day : But guards the humble from reproach of wrong, And stops the current of the crafty Tongue.

Thrice

Bewa

In lu

Fear Belie

In Fa

Shiel The

The !

Thy I

The 1

Like

Like

Thou All th

Thou

Begui

With

That

ltis a True

lt ruf

Gain

Ti

Thrice happy is the man his hands correct: Beware, left Fury force thee to reject Th'Almighties Triall; He that made thy wound In lustice, can, in Mercy, make it found: Feare not, though multiply'd afflictions shall Befiege thee; He, at length, will rid them all; In Famine he shall feed, in Warre defend thee, Shield thee from flander, & in griefes attend thee, The Beafts shall strike with thee eternall Peace, The Stones shall not disturbe thy fields Encrease Thy House shall thrive, replenisht with Content, Which, thou shalt rule, in prosp'rous Government, The number of thy Of-spring shall abound, Like Summers Graffe upon a fruitfull ground, Like timely Corne, well ripened in her Eares, Thou shalt depart thy life, strucke full of yeeres : All this, Experience tells: Then (70b) advise, Thou hast taught many, now thy selfe be wife.

Mediat. 7.

The perfect Modell of true Friendship's this:
A rare affection of the soule, which is Begun with ripened judgement, doth persever
With simple Wisedome, and concludes with Never.

'Tis pure in substance, as refined Gold,
That buyeth all things, but is never fold:
Itis a Coyne, and most men walke without it;
True Love's the Stamp, lebovab's writ about it;
Itrusts, unus d, but using makes it brighter,
Gainst Heav'n high treason 'tis, to make it lighter.

Tis.

ſe.

13 ston

de.

eath.

h;

ble 1:

reat:

they 3, rice

'Tis a Gold Chain, links foule and foule together ligen

In perfect Vnity, tyes God to cither.

Affliction is the touch, whereby we prove, Whether't be Gold, or gilt with fained Love.

The wifest Moralist, that ever div'd
Into the depth of Natures bowels, striv'd
With th'Augar of Experience, to bore
Mens hearts so farre, till he had sound the Ore
Of Friendship, but, despairing of his end,
My friends (said he) there und perfest Friend.

Friendship's like Musicke, two strings tun'd alike, Will both stirre, though but onely one you strike.

It is the quintessence of all Perfection
Extracted into one: A sweet connexion
Of all the Vertues, Morall and Divine, Abstracted into one. It is a Mine,
Whose nature is not rich, unlesse in making
The state of others wealthy by partaking:
It blooms and blossene both in Sucand the

It bloomes and bloffoms, both in Sun and shade,
Doth (like the Bay in winter) never sade:
It loveth all, and yet suspecteth none,
Is provident, yet seeking not her owne:
'Tis rare it selfe, yet maketh all things common,
And is judicious, yet it judgeth no man.

The noble Theban, being asked which
Of three (propounded) he suppos'd most rich
In vertues sacred Treasure, thus reply'd;
Till they be dead, that doubt cannot be try'd.

It is no wifemans part to weigh a Friend, Without the gloffe and goodnesse of his End: For Life, without the Death considered, can Affoord but halfe a Story of the Man.

'Tis not my friends affliction, that shall make Me either Wonder, Censure, or Forsake:

Iudge-

ris the

Grieve

Hea!

With

That

And (

Orla

Can

Or ca

My v

Corr

Alas

and

ogetic algement belongs to Fooles; enough that I finde he's afflicted, not enquier, why; is the hand of Heaven, that felfe-fame Sorrow Grieves him to day, may make me grone to morrow Heaven be my comfort; In my higheft griefe, I will not truft to mans, but Thy reliefe.

THE ARGVMENT.

Indicounts bis forrowes, and from thence Excuses his impatience; Describes the shortnesse of mans Time, and makes consession of his Crime.

Sell. 8.

Q Vt wretched lob figh't forth thefe words, & faid, DAh me! that my Impatience were weigh'd With all my Sorrowes, by an equall hand, They would be found more pondrous than the fand That lyes upon the new-forfaken shore; My griefes want uttrance, & have stopt their dore: And woder not heavens thafts have ftruck me dead, And God hath heapt all Mischiefes on my head: Will Affes bray, when they have graffe to eate? Or lowes the Oxe, when as he wants no meat? Can pallates finde a rellish in distast? Or can the whites of Egges well please the taft ? My vexed foule is daily fed with fuch Corruptions, as my hands disdaine to touch. Mas! that Heaven would heare my hearts request, and firike me dead, that I may finde fome reft : What dge

rike.

on,

What hopes have I, to fee my end of griefe, And to what end should I prolong my life? Why should not I wish Death? My strength (alas) Is it like Marble, or my flesh like Braffe? What power have I to mitigate my paine? If e're I had, that power now is vaine; My friends are like the Rivers, that are dry In heat of Summer, when necessity Requireth water; They amazed stand To fee my griefe, but lend no helping hand. Friends, beg I succour from you? Craved I Your Goods, to ransome my Captivity? Show me my faults, and wherein I did wrong My Patience, and I will hold my tongue; The force of reasonable words may moove, But what can Rage or Lunacy reproove? Rebuke you (then) my words, to have it thought My speech is franticke, with my griefe distraught? You take a pleasure in your friends distresse, That is more wretched than the fatherleffe : Behold these fores: Be judg'd by your owne eyes, If these be counterfeited miseries; Ballance my words, and you shall finde me free From these foule crimes, wherewith ye branded me And that my speech was not distain'd with fin, Onely the language forrow treated in.

Is not mans day prefixt, which, when expir'd,
Sleepes he not quiet, as a fervant hir'd >
A fervants labour doth, at length, surcease,
His Day of travell findes a Night of peace;
But (wretched) I with woes am still oppress,
My mid-day torments see no Even of Rest,
My nights (ordain'd for sleep) are fill'd with gries,
I looke (in vaine) for the next dayes reliese:

Wid

with

Have

My

And

Rem

Ibut

And

Inc'

The

No,

Whe

The

T'hi

And

ther

Pror

Am

Thy

Who

Of

Sot

Tha

My

No.

Ah

Hig

Wh

Wh

Aga

Hov

Wh

with dust and wormes my flesh is hid, my forrowes Have plow'd my skin, and filth lyes in her furrows: My dayes of joy are in a moment gone, And (hopeleffe of returning) fpent and done : Remember (Lord) my life is but a puffe, Ibut a man, that's mifery enough; And when pale Death hath once feal'd up my fight, Ine're shall see the pleasures of the light, The eye of Man shall not discover me. No, nor thine (Lord) for I shall cease to be ; When mortalls dye, they paffe (like clouds before The Sun) and backe returne they never more; T'his earthly house he ne're shall come agin, And then shall be, as if he ne're had bin ; therfore my tongue shal speak, while it hath breath Prompted with griefe, and with the pangs of death : Am I not weake and faint? what needft thou ftretch Thy direfull hand upon fo poore a wretch? When as I thinke that night shall stop the streames Of my diffress, thou fright'ft me then with dreams; So that my foule doth rather chuse to dye, Than be involved in fuch mifery : My life's a burthen, and will end: O grieve No longer him, that would no longer live. Ah! what is Man, that thou should'ft raise him fo High at the first, then finke him downe so low? What's matthy glory's great enough, without him: Why dost thou (thus) difturb thy minde about him? Lord, I have finn'd (Great Helper of mankind) lam but Duft and Afhes, I have finn'd: Against thee (as a marke) why hast thou fixt me? How have I trefpaft, that thou thus afflict'ft me ? Why, rather, didft thou not remove my fin, And falve the forrowes that I raved in ?

For

With ight)

res,

ree

ed me

d,

For thou haft heapt fuch vengeance on my head, antho That then thou feek it me, thou wilt find me deal agree

Meditat. 8.

TH'Egyptians, amidft their folemne Feafts, Vied to welcome, and present their Guests With the fad fight of Mans Anatomy. Serv'd in with this loud Motto, All muft dye. Fooles often goe about, when as they may Take better vantage of a neerer way. Looke well into your bosomes; doe not flatter Your knowne infirmities : Behold, what matter Your flesh was made of : Man, cast backe thincere Vpon the weaknesse of thine Infancy; See how thy lips hang on thy mothers Brest, Bawling for helpe, more helpleffe than a Beaft. 0

Liv'ft thou to childhood?then, behold, what tois Doe mocke the fenfe, how shallow are thy joyes? Com'ft thou to yeares ? fee, how deceits Gull thee with golden fruit, and with falfe baits, and o Slily beguile the prime of thine affection. Art thou attain'd at length to full perfection Of ripened yeares? Ambition hath now fent Thee on her frothy errand, Discontent Payes thee thy wages. Doe thy grizlye haires Begin to cast account of many cares Vpon thy head? The facred luft of gold Now fires thy spirit, for fleshly luft, too cold, Makes thee a flave to thine owne base defire, Which melts and hardens, at the felfe-fame Fire! Art poke thy tw

Tob re wo Who d and w Man lis bo > me, Other (we r Asthe

Wego Allgo Lea and I Vhie

Affile Relie My fe Caft f

hal

head, in thou decrepit? Then thy very breath ac deal egrievous to thee, and each griefe's a death? Looke where thou lift, thy life is but a span, thou art but Duit, and, to conclude, A Man. Thy life's a Warfare, thou a Souldier art, stan's thy Foc-man, and a faithfull Heart by two-edg'd Weapon, Patience thy Shield, teaven is thy Chieferain, and the world thy Field.
To be afraid to dye, or wish for death, the words and passions of despairing breath: Who doth the first, the day doth faintly yeeld, and who the second, basely flies the field. Man's not a lawfull Stearfman of his dayes, lis bootleffe with, nor haftens, nor delayes: rer Weare Gods hired Workmen; he discharges to some, late at riight, and (when he list) inlarges there are noone, and in the morning, some:
None may relieve himselfe, till he bid, Come:
Swereceive for one halfe day, as much they that toyle till evening, shall we grutch?
Our life's a Road, in death our lourney ends, wegoe on Gods Embassage, some, he sends fall d with the trotting of hard Misery, lad others, pacing on Prosperity:
Some lagge, whilest others gallop on, before; all goe an end; some faster, and some slower.
Lead me that pase (great God) that thou think'st had I will follow with a dauntlesse bress: (best, which (ne rethelesse) if I resuse to doe, sind be, wicked, and yet follow too.
Sistem in my Combat with the sless, the slieve my sainting powers, and refresh by seeble spirit: I will not wish to be saft from the world; Lord, cast the world from sic.

An er Weare Gods hired Workmen; he discharges THE

THE ARGYMENT.

Bildad, mans either flate expreffes; Gods Mercy and luftice lob confelles ; He pleads his cause, and bogs reliefe, Foild with the burthen of bis griefe.

Sell. o.

So Bildads filence (great with tongue) did break Ifma And, like a heartlesse Comforter, did speaket Nore How long wilt thou perfift to breathe thy mine His h In words, that vanish as a storme of winde? Will God forfake the innocent, or will His lustice smite thee, undeserving ill? Though righteous death thy finfull fons hath ren He fo From thy fad bosome, yet if thou repent, And wash thy wayes with undiffembled teares, No ey Tuning thy troubles to th' Almighties eares, The mercy of his eyes shall shine upon thee, And showre the sweetnesse of his blessings on the Nope And though (a while) thou plunge in mifery, At length hee'll crowne thee with prosperity to Run back, and learne of fage Antiquity, What our late births, to present times, deny, See how, and what (in the worlds downy age) Befell our Fathers in their Pilgrimage; If Rushes have no mire, and Grasse no raine, They cease to flourish, droop their heads, & wait That So fades the man, whose heart is not upright, So perithern the double Hypocrite;

But h

Root

SCOT

When

Nor e

Com

Agair

He fh From

His W

Lifts

His V

Much

Whic

Woul

Shoul

It wo

For h

Of hi

fmy

ly fe

God

His hopes are like the Spiders web, to day That's flourishing, to morrowswept away: But he that's just, is like the flowring tree, Rooted by Christall Springs, that cannot be Scorcht by the noone of day, nor flird from thence, Where, firmly fixt, it hath a refidence; Heaven never failes the foule that is upright, Nor offers arme to the bafe Hypocrite: The one, he bleffes with eternall joyes, Theother, his avenging hand deftroyes. I yeeld it for a truth, (1434)
Compar'd with God, can man be justifi'd? break Ifman thould give account what he hath done, eaker Nor of a thouland, could be answer one: mine His hand's all-Power, and his heart all pure,
Against this God, what flesh can stand secure? He shakes the Mountaines, and the Sun he barres From circling his due course, shuts up the Starres, h real Hespreads the Heavens, and rideth on the Flood, his Workes may be admir'd, not understood: es, No eye can fee, no heart can apprehend him : tifts he to spoile? what's he can reprehend him?
His Will's his Law. The smoothest pleader hathouthest Nopower in his lips, to slake his Wrath, y, an Much lefte can I plead faire immunity, y : Which could my guiltleffe tongue attaine, yet I Would kiffe the Foothep of his ludgement-feat: y, Should he receive my cry, my griefe's fo great, For he hath some me with the five-fold knot of his sharpe Scourge, his plagues successive are, want That I can finde no ground, but of Despaire. t, of my bold lips should daze to justifie My selfe, my lips would give my lips the lye.

God owes his mercy, nor to good, nor bad; The wicked oft he spares, and oft does adde Griefe to the just mans griefe, woes after woes; We must not judge man, as his Market goes. But might my prayers obtaine this boon, that God Would cease these forrowes, and remove that Rod Which-moves my patience; I would take upon me, T'implead before him, your rash judgement on me, Because my tender Conscience doth perswade me, I'me not fo bad, as your bad Words have mademe

My life is tedious, my diftreffe shall breake Into her proper Voice, my griefes shall speake; (luft ludge of Earth) condemne me not, before Thou please to make me understand wherefore. Agrees it with thy Iuftice, thus to be Kinde to the Wicked, and so harsh to Me? Seeft thou with fleshly eyes ? Or doc they glance By favour? Are they clos'd with Ignorance? Liv'st thou the life of man? Dost thou defire A space of time to search, or to enquire My sinne ? No, in the twinkling of an eye, Thou feeft my heart, feeft my Immunity (pleasure (How From those foule crimes, wherewith my friends His c Taxe me, yet thou afflict'ft me, in this Measure: Thy hands have form'd, and fram'd me, what I am, Even When thou hast made, wilt thou destroy the same Chec Remember, I am built of Clay, and must Returne againe (without thy helpe) to Duft. Thou didft create, preserve me, hast endu'd My life with gracious bleffings, oft renew'd Thy-precious Favours on me: How wert thou, Once, fo benigne, and fo cruell now? Thou hunt it me like a Prey, my Plagues encreale Succeed each other, and they never cease.

Ofno Wh

Why

Rece

Iha May

His v

His s

How

With

Vnto

More

With

Sera

At fir

Corr

And

As ly

Anot

Left,

Intho WH

For

Why was I borne > Or why did not my Tombe Receive me (weeping) from my mothers wombe? thave not long to live; Lord, grant that 1 May fee fome comfort, that am foone to dye.

Meditat. 9.

IE that's the truest Master of his owne, Is never leffe alone, than when alone; His watchfull eyes are plac't within his heart; His skill, is how to know himselfe; his Art, How to command the pride of his Affections, With facred Reason: how to give directions Vnto his wandring Will; His conscience checks his More loofer thoughts; His louder fins, the vexes With frights, and feares; within her owne precincts, Se rambles with her Whips of wire, ne're winks At smallest faults, Like as a tender Mother eafure (Howe're the loves her darling) will not fmother nds His childish fault, but she (her selfe) will rather re: Correct, than trust him to his angry Father: I am, Even fo, the tender Conscience of the wife, fame Checks her beloved foule, and doth chastife, And judge the crime her felfe, left it should stand As lyable to a feverer hand.

Fond foule beware, who e're thou art, that fpies Anothers fault, that thou thine owne chaftife, Left, like a foolish man, thou judge another, (ther. In those selfe-crimes, which in your brest you smo-

Who undertakes to dreine his brothers eye Ofnoisome Humours, first, must clarifie Wh

His

u, t God Rod n me. n me

e me e me

e; re rė.

ince

His owne, left when his brothers blemish is Remov'd, he spye a fouler Plame in his.

It is beyond th'extent of Mans Commission,
To judge of Man: The secret disposition
Offacted Providence is lockt, and seal'd
From mans conceit, and not to be reveal'd, Vntill that Lambe breake ope the Seale, and come
With life and death, to give the world her doome.

The ground-worke of our Faith, must not rely On bare Events; Peace and Prosperity
Are goodly Favours, but no proper Marke,
Wherewith God brands his Sheepe: No outward Secures the body, to be found within. (barke
The Rich man liv'd in Scarlet, dyed in Sinne,
Behold th'afflicted man; affliction moves Compassion; but no Consusion proves.
A gloomy Day brings oft a glotious Even:
The Poore man dy'd with fores, & lives in heaven.
To good and bad, both fortunes Heaven doth share
That both, an after-change, may hope, and feare.

I'le hope the best (Lord) leave the rest to thee, Lest, while I judge another, thou judge me; It's one mans worke, to have a serious fight Offus owne sinnes, and judge blmsclfe aright.

Alterdance contract on a second of all reday retire a burned wardlife's continue ballerias on tell von talou-oir dere ale tamena en el die

a Done - on cuestai

THI

Sha

Ane

Ou

Th

But

The Car

The Hea Wh Wh

Of

Bef

Th

An

THE ARGUMENT.

Zophar blame: Tob; Tob equal makes His wifedome unto theirs: He takes In hand to plead with God; and them Deferibes the fraile efface of men.

Sett. 10.

Hen Zophar from deepe filence, did awake His words, with louder language, and befpake: Shall Pratlers be unaniwer'd, or shall fuch Be counted just, that speake, for babbling much? Shal thy words ftop our mouths, he that hath blamd And fcoft at others, fhall be dye unfham'd? Our cares have heard thee, when thou haft excus'd Thy felfe of evill, and thy God accus'd: But if thy God should plead with thee at large, Thou'dit reape the forrowes of a double charge. Canft thou, by deepe enquirie understand The hidden Iuftice of Th' Almighties hand? Heavens large dimensiós cannot comprehend him; What e're he doe, what's he can reprehend him? What refuge haft thou then, but to prefent A heart, inricht with the fad compliment Of a true Convert, on thy bended knee. Before thy God, t'atone thy God and thee? Then doubt not, but he'll reare thee fro thy forrow Difperfe thy Clouds, and, like a thiming Morrow, Make cleare thy Sun-beames of Prosperity, And rest thy soule in Sweet Security.

P3

But

come

me.

tward

barke

Chare

hcc,

But he, whose heart obdur'd in sinne, persists, His hopes shall vanish, as the morning Mists. But lob, even as a Ball against the ground Banded with violence, did thus rebound:

You are the onely wifemen, in your brefts The hidden Magazen of true Wisedome refts, Yet (though aftund with forrowes) doe I know A little, and (perchance) as much as you; I'm scorned of my Friends, whose prosprous state Surmises me (that have expir'd the date Of earths faire Fortunes) to be cast away From heavens regard, think none belov'd, but then I am despised, like a Torch, that's spent, Whiles that the wicked blazes in his Tent: What have your wisdoms taught me, more that that Which birds & beafts could they but speak) would Digefts the Stomack, e're the Pallat taftes ? (chat) O weigh my Words, before you judge my Car. But you referre me to our Fathers dayes, To be instructed in their wiser Layes. True, length of dayes brings Wisedome; but, I say, I have a Wifer teacheth me, than they : For I am taught, and tutor'd by that Hand, Whose unresisted power doth command The limits of the Earth, whose Wisedome schooles If the And traines the fimple, makes the learned, fooles: Firft. His hand doth raise the poore, deposes Kings; Then On him, both Order, and the change of things Whic Depend, he fearches, and brings forth the light Prop From out the shadowes, and the depth of night. Why

All this, mine owne Experience hath found true And in all this, I know as much as you. But you averre, If I should plead with God, That he would double his feverer Rod.

You

You

Am In fi

You Wil

Are His

Thu

ludg

Hea

Ifth

Not

Who

Your

Are

Peac

Myf

Yet He, 1

Stan

Ball: Mefi

Who

Muft

With

For w

Break

Suman

Thou

Your tongue belyes his Iustice, you apply Amific, your Med'cine, to my Malady; Infilence, you would feeme more wife, leffe weake; You having spoke, now lend me leave to speake. Will you doe wrong, to doe Gods Iustice right? Are you his Counfell - Need you helpe to fight His quarrels > Or expect you his applause, Thus (brib'd with felfe-conceit) to plead his cause? ludgement's your Fee, when as you take in hand Heavens cause, to plead it, and not heaven comand. If that the foulnesse of your censures could Not fright you, yet, me thinks, his greatness should, Whose Iustice you make Patron of your lyes; Your flender Maximes, and falle Forgeries, Are substanc't, like the dust, that flyes besides me; Peace then, and I will speake, what e're betides me. My foule is on the rack, my tears have drown'd me, Yet will I trust my God, though God confound me; He, He's my Towre of strength, No hypocrite Stands, unconfounded, in his glorious fight: Ballance my words; I know my case would quit Me from your censures, should I argue it. Who takes the Plaintifes pleading? Come, for I Must plead my right, or else (perforce) must dye. With thee (great Lord of Heaven) I dare difpute, If thou wilt grant me this my double Suit; First, that thou flake these forrows that surroud me, Then, that thy burning Face doe not confound me; Which granted, then take thou thy choice, let me Propound the question, or, else, answer Thee. Why dost thou thus pursue me, like thy Foe? For what great sinne dost thou afflict me so? Break it thou a withred Leafe? Thy Iustice doth Summe up the recknings of my finfull youth:

XUM

ate they

that vould chat?

I fay,

oles:

ıt nt.

true

You

Thou keep'st me pris'ner, bound in fetters fast, And, like a threed-bare Garment, doe I wast.

Man, borne of Woman, hath but a short while To live; his daies are fleet, and full of toyle; He's like a Flower, shooting forth, and dying, His life is as a Shadow, fwiftly flying. him? Ah! b'ing fo poore a thing, what needst thou minde The number of his dayes thou hast confin'd him; Then adde not plagues unto his Griefe, O give Him peace, that hath fo small a time to live : Trees that are fell'd, may fprout again, man never; His dayes are numbred, and he dyes for ever; He's like a Mift, exhaled by the Sunne, His dayes once done, they are for ever done. O that thy Hand would hide me close, and cover Me in the Grave, till all thy Wrath were over! My desperate sorrowes hope for no reliefe, Yet will I wait my Change. My day of griefe Will be exchang'd, for an eternall day Of joy : But now, thou dost not spare to lay Full heapes of vengeance on my broken foule, And writ'ft my finnes upon an ample scrowle ; As Mountaines (being shaken) fall, and Rocks (Though firm) are worn, & rent with many knocks: So ftrongest men are batter'd with thy strength, Loofe ground, returning to the Ground at length: So Mortalls die, and (being dead) ne're minde The fairest fortunes, that they leave behinde. While man is man (untill that death bereave him Of his last breath) his griefes shall never leave him.

Meditat,

So firm

Wich !

Toed

and c

Wans

Atchie

Are a

Ish

His fa

Die

Boaft

An ho

And I

Man

What

The

Toy

A Ge

Did (

Was

Befo His I And

Wou

Meditat, 10.

Oth Hist'ry then, and sage Chronologie, (The Index, pointing to Antiquity,) firmely grounded on deepe ludgment, guarded, and kept by so much Miracle, rewarded With fo great glory, ferve, but as flight Fables, To edge the dulneffe of mens wanton Tables, and claw their itching eares? Or doe they, rather He a concise Abridgement, serve to gather Mans high Adventures, and his transitory Archievements, to expresse his Makers glory? Afts, that have blown the lowdest Trumpe of Fame Are all, but honours, purchac't in His name. Ishe, that (yesterday) went forth, to bring His fathers Affes home, (to day) crown'd King? Did he, that now on his brave Palace stood, Boafting his Babels beauty, chew the cud In hower after? Have not Babes beene crown'd, And mightie Monarchs beaten to the ground? Man undertakes, heaven breathes successe upon it: What good, what evill is done, but heave hath done The Man to whom the world was not asham'd(it? To yeeld her Colours, he that was proelam'd A God in humane shape, whose dreadfull voyce Did strike men dead like Thunder, at the noyle; Was rent away, from his Imperiall Throne, Before his flowre of youth was fully blowne, His Race was rooted out, his Issue slaine, and left his Empire to another straine. Who, that did c're behold the ancient Rome, Would rashly, given her glory such a doome, im?

rer;

r ks

th:

m im.

itat.

Or thought her subject to such alterations, That was the Mistresse, and the Queen of Nations Egypt, that in her walls, had once engroft More Wisdome, then the world besides, hath lost Her senses now; Her wisest men of State, Are turn'd, like Puppets, to be pointed at : If Romes great power, and Egypts wildome can Not aide themselves, how poore a thing is Man? God Playes with Kingdomes, as with Tennis-balls Fells some that rise, and rayses some that falls: Nor policie can prevent, nor secret Fate, Where Heaven hath pleas'd, to blow upon a State If States be not secure, nor Kingdomes, than How helplefie (Ah!) how poore a thing is Man!

He lives a while in finne, and dyes in feares. Art th Lord, I'le not boaft, what ere thou give unto me Lest e're my brag be done. thou take it from me. Vnfo No man may boaft, but of his owne, I can Then boaft of nothing, for I am a Man.

Hee's berne in forrow, and brought up in teares,

Man's like a flower, the while he hath to laft, Hee's nipt with frost, and shooke with every blaft,

> th alv Intro

> > He be

Ah fur

Ofhe

Thy v

Thy I

When

Then heve.

Our Ange Not p

THE ARGYMENT.

Rad Eliphaz doth aggravate The finnes of lob, malign's his flate, Whom lob regroving, justifies Himfelfe, bemailes bu miferies.

Sell. 11.

State Oth vaine repining (Eliphagreplies) (wife? Or words, like wind, befeeme the man that's Absure, thy faithlesse heart rejects the feare Of heaven, dost not acquaint thy lips with prayre: Thy words accuse thy heart of Impudence, Thy tongue (not 1) brings in the Evidence: me. Vnfold to thee? Art thou the onely wife? Wherein hath Wiscdome beene more good to you Then us > What know you, that we never knew? heverence, not Cenfure, fits a young mans eyes. We are your Ancients, and should be as wife; Is't not enough, your Arrogance derides Our counsels, but must scorne thy God besides ? Angels (if God inquier strictly) must Not plead Perfection: then, can man be just? It is a truth receiv'd, these aged eyes Have feen't, and is confirmed by the wife, That still the wicked man is voye of rest, The halwayes fearfull; falls, when he feares leaft, Introubles he despaires, and is dejected, He begs his bread, his death comes unexpected, ation

hloft

can fan ?

s-balle ls:

fan!

blaft,

res,

In his adversity, his griefes shall gaule him,
And, like a raging Tyrant, shall inthrall him,
He shall advance against his God, in vaine,
For Heaven shal crush and beate him down againe,
What if his Garners thrive, and goods increase?
They shall not prosper, nor he live in peace,
Eternall horrour shall begirt him round,
And vengeance shall both him and his confound,
Amidst his joyes, despaire shall stop his breath,
His sons shall perish, with untimely death;
The double soule shall dye, and in the hollow
Of all false harts, false harts the selves shall swallow

Then answered lob, All this, before I knew, They want no griefe, that find fuch friends as you) Ah, cease your words, the fruits of ill-spent houres If heaven should please to make my fortunes your, I would not scoffe you nor with caunts torment ye, My lips should comfort, and these eyes lament ye What shall I doe? Speake not, my griefes oppresse My foule, or fpeake (alas) they'r ne'rtheleffe; Lord, I am wasted, and my pangs have spent me, My skin is wrinkled, for thy Hand hath rent me, Minc enemies have smit me in disdaine, Laught at my torments, jested at my paine: I swel'd in wealth, but (now) alas, am poore And (feld with woe)lye grov'ling on the floore, In dust and fackcloth I lament my forrowes, (rowes, Thy Hand hath trencht my cheeks with water-tw-Nor can I comprehend the cause, that this My smart should be so grievous as it is: Oh earth! If then an Hypocrite I be, Cover my cryes, as I doc cover thec, And witnesse Heaven, that these my Vowes be tru (Ah friends!) I spend my teares to Heav'n, not you

XUM

Migh

Su

Let 1

/Bcf

Have

Who

Idot

You'

E're

Your

Hate

lam

Tofe

Mine

Good

Butr

And

Reca

One

Myd

The

My

E're

Myn

My n

Whe

Whic

Both

Whe

My time's but short, (alas!) would then that I Might try my cause with God before I dye. Since then I languish, and not farre from dead, gaint; Let me a while with my Accusers plead (Before the Judge of heaven and earth) my right: Have they not wrong'd, and vext me day & night? Who first, layes downe his Gage, to meet me? Say, Idoubt not (Heaven being Iudge) to win the day : You'l fay perchance, wee'l recompell our word, E'refimple truth should unawares afford Your discontent; No, no, forbeare, for I Hate leffe your Cenfures, then your flattery; lam become a By-word, and a Tabor, To fet the tongues, and cares of men, in labour, oured Mine cyes are dimme, my body's but a shade, yours, Good men that fee my case, will be afraid, ntys, But not confounded; They will hold their way, nt ye And in a bad, they'l hope a better day; Recant your errours, for I cannot fee One man thats truly wife, among you Three; My daies are gone, my thoughts are mif-possest, The filent night, that heaven ordain'd for reft, My day of travell is, but I shall have E're long, long peace, within my welcome grave My neerest kinted are the wormes, the earth My mother, for the gave me first my birth; Where are my hopes then? where that future joy. Which you falf-prophecy'd I should enjoy? Both hopes and I alike, thall travell thither, Where, clos'd in duft, we shall remaine together.

The

Medital:

afe >

and,

th,

W vallow

you) reffe

me,

mc, ore, rowes, er-fur-

t you

;

Meditat, 11.

"He Morall Poets, (nor unaptly) faine, That by lame Vulcans help, the pregnant brain Of foveraigne love, brought forth, and at that birth, Was borne Mineron, Lady of the earth.

Offrange Divinity! bur fung by rote; Sweet is the tune, but in a wilder note. The Morall fayes, All Wifedome that is given To hood-wink't mortals, first, proceeds from heave Hek Truth's errour, Wisedom's but wise insolence, And light's but darknesse, not deriv'd from thece; the Wisdom's a straine transcends Morality, No Vertu's absent, Wisedome being by. Vertue, by constant practice, is acquir'd, This (this by fweat unpurchas't) is inspir'd: The master-piece of knowledge, is to know But what is good, from what is good in show, And there it refts : Wisdome proceeds, and chules The feeming evill, th'apparant good refuses; Knowledge descries alone; Wisdome applyes, That, makes fome fooles, this, maketh none but will The curious hand of knowledge doth but picke Bare simples, Wildome pounds them, for the ficks In my afflictions, Knowledge apprehends, Who is the Author, what the Cause, and Ends, It findes that Patience is my fad reliefe, And that the Hand that caus'd, can cure my griefe To rest contented here, is but to bring Clouds without raine, and heat without a Spring:

Wife

Tha

Wife

Kno

Islik

Whi

Lo

Ogr

Isha

Tof

Wiel

Too

Top

What hope arises hence ? The Devils doe The very fame : They know, and tremble too ; But facred Wisedome doth apply that good, Which simple Knowledge barely understood: Wisedome concludes, and in conclusion, proves, That wherefoever God corrects, he loves: Wisedome digefts, what knowledge did but taft, t brain That deales in futures, this, in things are past: birth, Wildom's the Card of Knowledge, which, without That Guide, at random's wreck't on every doubt : Knowledge, when wisdome is too weak to guide her Is like a head-ftrong horfe, that throwes the rider: Which made that great Philosopher avow, heave He knew fo much, that he did nothing know.

Lord, give me Wisedome to direct my wayes, thece; theg nor riches, nor yet length of dayes, Ogrant thy fervant Wifedome, and with it, Ishall receive fuch knowledge as will fit Toferve my turne: I wish not Phabus waine. Without his skill to drive it, left I gaine Too deare an Honour, Lord, I will not flay, To picke more Manna, then will ferve to day.

iven

hules 5, ke c ficke

griefe pring: THE ARGVMENT.

Bildad, the whil'ft be makes a fbor To Brike the wicked gives the blow To lob : lobs mifery, and falth; Zophar makes good what Bildad faith.

Sell. 12.

Aid Bilded then, When will ye bring to end The fpeeches, whereabout ye fo contend? Waigh eithers words, lest ignorant confusion Debarre them of their purposed conclusion : We came to comfort, fits it then that we Be thought as beafts, or fooles accounted be? But thou, lob, (like a madman) would'it thou form God, to defift his order, and fer course Of Juffice? Shall the wicked, for thy fake (That would'it not talte of evill)in good partale! No no his Lampe shall blaze, and dye, his strengt Shall faile, or shall confound it selfe, at length, He shall be hampred with close hidden snares, And dog'd, where e'r he starts, with troops of fear Munger shall bite, destruction shall attend him. His skin shall rot, the worst of deaths shal end hi His feare, shall be a thousand linkt together, His branch above, his root beneath, shall wither, His name shall sleepe in dust, with dust decay, Odious to all, by all men chas't away, No Son shall keepe alive his House, his Name, Vexe And none shall thrive, that can alliance clame, OFI 1

The His

Thu And

Wil

Hoy

My Had Exp

Kno

Iróa

The

Heh

(My

His I My i

Myn

Myl

I call

Ibun

Myo

My fe

The

And

My b

One

Alas!

Expre

Have

'Tis y

The after-age shall stand amaz'd, to heare His fall, and they that fee't, hall shake for feare ; Thus stands the state of him that doth amisse, And (106) what other is thy cafe, then this? But lob reply'd, how long, (as with tharpe fwords) Will ye torment me, with your pointed words? How often have your biting tongues defam'd My fimple Innocence, and yet unfham'd? Had I deferv'd thefe plagues, yet let my griefe Exprese it felfe, though it find no reliefe; But if you needs must weare your tongues upon me Inow, 'Tis the hand of God hath overthrowne me; Imare, unheard; his hand will not release me; The more I grieve, the more my griefs oppress me He hath dispoyld my joyes, and goes about (My branches being lopt) to ftroy the Root; His plagues, like fouldiers, trench within my bones My friends, my kinred fly me all at onec, My neighbors, my familiars have forgone me, My houshold stares, with strangers eyes, upon me : Itall my fervant, but his lips are dumbe, I humbly beg his helpe, but hee'l not come: My own wife loathes my breath, though I did make My folemne fuit, for our dead childrens fake ; The poore, whose wants I have supply'd, despise And he that liv'd within my breft denyes me: (me, My bones are hide-bound, there cannot be found One piece of skin, (unleffe my gums) that's found, Alas! complaints are barren finadowes, to Expresse, or cure the fubstance of my woe. Have pity, (oh my friends) have pity on me, Tis your Gods hand and mine, that lyes upon me Vexe me no more. O let your anger be (If I have wrong'd you) calm'd with what ye fee;

n u fora rtake reng

th, es,

f fean

im,

nd hir

ther,

me,

me,

y,

O! that my speeches were ingraven, then, In Marble Tablets, with an yron Pen: For fure I am, that my Redeemer lives, And though pale death confume my fleth, & give His My Carkas to the wormes, yet am I fure, Clad with this felfe-same flesh (but made more I shall behold His glory; These sad eyes (Pure And Shall fee his Face, how-e're my body lyes Mouldred in dust; These fleshly eyes, that doe Behold thefe Sores, shall fee my Maker too.

Vnequall hearers of unequall griefe, Y'are all ingag'd to the felfe-same beliefe; Know ther's a Judge, whose voice will be as free, To judge your words, as you have judged me.

Said Lophar then, I purpos'd to refraine From speaking, but thou mov'ft me backe againe For having heard thy haughty Spirit breake Such hafty termes, my spirit bids me speake ; Hath not the change of Ages, and of Climes,

Taught us, as we shall our succeeding times, How vain's the tryumph, and how thort the blant Wherein the wicked sweeten out their dayes? Though for a while his Palmes of glory flourish, Yer, in conclusion, they grow sere, and perish : His life is like a Dreame, that passes o're, The eye that faw him, ne're shall see him more: Can g The Some shall flatter, whom the Syre oppres, And (poore) he shall returne, what he did wrest Doon He shall be bayted with the sinnes, that have Ah rig So smil'd upon his childhood, to his Grave; Man F His plenty (purchas't by oppression) shall Thou Be hony tafted, but digefted, Gall; That t It shall not bleffe him with prolonged stay, What But evilly come, it foone shall passe away;

XUM

The

Sha

In f

Soa

Sau

Ven

It'S

Retu

No 1 Shall

Shal

His v

Beho

Beho

Bequ

Thou !

The man, whose griping hath the poore opprest, Shall neither thrive in state, nor yet find rest In foule, nought of his fulnette shall remaine, giver Hisgreedy Heire fall long expect in vaine; Soak't with extorted plenty, others shall Squeeze him, and leave him dispossest of all; (pure And when his joyes doe in their height abound, Vengeance shall strike him groaning, to the ground liSwords forbeare to wound him, Arrowes shall, Returning forth, anounted with his Gall; No thade thall hide him, and an unblowne Fyer Shall burne both him, and his: Heaven, like a Cryet Shall blaze his thame, and earth shall stand his foe, His wandring Children shall no dwelling know; Behold the mans estate, whom God denyes: Behold thine owne, pour traited to thine Eyes.

Meditat, 11.

An mercy come from bloody Cain ? Or hath His angry Brow a fmile ? Or can his wrath Bequencht with ought, but righteous Abels blood? Can guilty Pris'ners hope for any good From the feverer Iudge, whose dismall breath Doomes the to die breathes nothing elfe but death Ah righteous Iudge! wherein hath Man to truft? Man hath offended, and thy Lawes are just; Thou frownest like a ludge, but I had rather, That thou would'ft smile upon me like a Father. What if thy Efan be auftere and rough Thou hait a least that is fmooth enough; Q2

oe

free, gaine

e.

: nes, e blaze

es? urish.

h:

ore:

preft, wreft ve

3

Thy Lassbrender Kid brings forth a bleffing, While Efan's redious Ven'zon is a dreffing. Thy face hath smiles, as well as frownes, by turnes, Thy fier giveth light, as well as burnes. What if the Scrpent stung old Adam dead, Yong Adam lives, to breake that Scrpents Head? Instice hath struck me with a bleeding wound, But Mercy poures in Oyle, to make it sound. The milk-white Lamb consounds the roaring Lion, Blasted by Sinah, I am heal'd by Sion: The Law sinds guilty, and Death Indgement gives, But sure I am, that my Redeemer lives.

How wretched was mans case, in those dark daies When Law was onely read? Which Law difmaies, And, taking vantage, through the breach of it, The Letter kills, and can no way admit Release by Pardon for by Law we dye. Why then kep'd man, without a reason Why? Although there was no Sun, their Morning eies Saw by the Twilight, that the Sun would rife. The Law was like a miftle Looking-Glafic, Wherein the shadow of a Saviour was, Treats in a darker straine, by Types and Signes, And what should passe in after-dayes, divines. The Gospell fayes, Thathe is come and dead, And thus the Riddle of the Law is read. Gospell is Law, the Myst'ry being seal'd; And Law is Golpell, being once reveal'd.

Experience talks us, when as birth denyes
To man through Natures overfight) his eyes,
Nature (whole cutious workes are never vaine)
Supplyes them, in the power of his Braine:
So they, whole eyes were barr'd that glorious fight
Of the Meffat's day, teceiv'd more Light, (Inspired

(Inl)

That

Loo

Obj

(Th

Sot

Did

AS

Tha

Tha

As it

L

Tha

0!

Tha

0! 1

For

0!

T

(Inspired by the breath of Heaven)then they, That heard the tydings of that happy day. The man, that with a tharpe contracted eye, Lookes in a cleere Perspettive-Glaffe, doch Spie Objects remote, which to the fenfe appeare (Through helpe of the Perspective) foeming neer. So they that liv'd within the Lawes Dominion, Did heare farre off, a bruit and buzz'd Opinion, A Saviour (one day) should be borne, but he That had a Perspective of Faith, might see That long-expected day of joy as cleere, As if the Triumph had been then kept there. Lord fo direct me in thy perfect Way, That I may looke, and smile upon that Day: O! bath me in his blood, fpunge every ftaine, That I may boldly fue my Counter-paine: O! make me glorious in the doome he gives, For fure I am, that my Redeemer lives.

THE ARREST

Earths happinesse is not Heavens brand: A rash recounsing of Lob's crimes: Lob trusts him to th' Almighties hand: God ties his Judgeneuts, not to Times.

Sea. 13.

Then led replyde: O, let your patience prove,
You came (not to afflict me but) in Love.
O! beare with me, and heare me speake at leisure,
My speech once ended, mock, & scotte your pleasure
Q 3 Myst ries rnes;

de ion.

ives,

daies aics,

es.

Myst'ries I treat, not Toyes; If then I range A thought beyond my felfe, it is not ftrange; Behold my eafe, and frand amaz'd, forbeare me! Bestill, and in your deeper filence heare me. Search you the hearts of men (my Friends) or can You judge the Inward, by the Outward man? How has the wicked then, fo found in health, So ripe la geeres, fo profeerous in wealth? They mulciply, their house is fill'd with Peace, They pals unplagu'd, their fruitfull flocks increase Their children thrive in joyfull melody. Prosperous they live, and peacefully they dye; Renounce us (God) (ay they (if God there be) What need me knowledge of thy Word or Thee? What is th' Almighty, that we (bould adore bim ? What bootes our prayer, or us, to fall before bing?

Tis not by chance, their vaine Profestitie Crownes them with store or Heaven, not knowing But you affirme, That in conclusion they (why: Shall fall. But not fo fudden, as you fay: But can ye limit forth the space, confine, How long, or when their lampes shal cease to shine Will any of you undertake to teach Your Maker, things fo farre above your reach? The bad man lives in plenty, dyes in peace: The good, as doe his houres, his griefes encreafe; Yet both the good and bad alike thall have, Though lives much differing, yet one comon grave I know your mining thoughts; You will demand, Wbere is the wickeds Power? And where fland Then lofty buildings, Aresber to be feene? Enquire of wandring Pilgrims, that have beene Experienc'd in the Roade, and they'I relate The Princely greatnesse of their Tow'rs and State Live

XUM

IIM

Live ar

Dare o

Attend

How v

That of Hath (

Gaine

To his

Feare

Left t

What And t

Thou

Thy I

Thy !

The

Henc

Thou

IsHo

Let

Hath

The Bloy

The leb,a

Thy

Reti

Ret

Be a

His

And

He

Live any more secure, then they? Or who Dare once reprove them, for the deeds they doe? He lives in power, and in peace he dyes, Arrended in his pompeous Obsequies. How vaine are then the comforts of your breath, That centure goodnesse, or by Life or death? Said Eliphaz; What then remaines? Thy tongue Hath quit thy felfe, accus'd thy God of wrong. Gaines he by mans uprightnesse? Can man adde To his perfection, what he never had ? Feares He the ftrength of madeoth he torment him Lest that his untam'd power should prevent him? What need I wast this breath ? Recall thy senses, And take the Inventory of thy offences : Thou tookit the poore mans Pawne, nor haft thou Thy needy brother, with thy prosp rous Bread; Thy hands perverted Iustice, and have spoyl'd The hopeletic widow, with her helplefie child. Hence fpring thy forrowes (Job;) Tis Inflice, then Thou should it be plagu'd, that thus plagu'd other Is Heaven just? Can Heavens just Creator (men; Let passe (unpunisht) Sinnes of so high nature? Hath not experience taught, that for a while, The Wicked may exalt their Crests, and Smile, Blowne up with Infolence : But in conclusion They fall, and good men laugh at their confusion? la,adde not finne to finne, cease to beguile Thy felfe, thinking to quench thy fire with Oyle; Returne thee to thy God, confelle thy crimes, Returne, and he will crowne thy after-times With former Bleffings, and thy Riches shall Be as the Sand; for God is all in all; His face shall welcome thee, and smile upon thee, And cease that mischief, his just had hath done thee ving

hy:

ine

ave

te:

He shall be pleafed with thy holy Fires, And grant the iffue of thy best Defires.

lob answer'd then : Although my soule be faint, And griefes weigh down the feale of my complaint, Yet would I plead my cause (which you defam'd) Before my Maker, and would plead, unsham'd; Could I but find him, I would take upon me, To quite the censures you have passed on me. His luftice hath no limits, is extended Beyond conceit, by man unapprehended; Let Heaven be Vmpire, and make Arbitration, Betwixt my guiltleffe heart, and your taxation. My Embrion thoughts and words are all inroll'd, Pure will he find them, as refined Gold; His Reps I followed, and uprightly flood, His Lawes have been my guide, his words my food; Hath he but once decreed? (alas!) there's none Can barre : for what he wills, must needs be done; His Will's a Law: Ifhe hath doom'd that I Shall ftill be plagu'd, 'tis bootleffe to replie. Hence comes it, that my fore afflicted fpright Trembles, and stands confounded at his fight; His hand hath ftrucke my spirits in amaze, For I can neither end my Griefes nor dayes.

Why should not Times in all things be forbid,
When to the just, their time of forrow's hid?
Some move their Land-marks, rob their neighbour
Others in gage, receive the widowes one, (flocks)
Some grinde the poore, while others feek the prey;
They reape their Harvest, beare their graine away;
Men presse their Oyle, & they distrain their store,
And rend the Gleanings, from the hungry poore.
The City roares, the blood which they have spent,
Cryes (unreveng'd) for equall punishment;

Earely

Early t

They f

Ofrice

No lay

Tout d

That (

Concl

Imuft

Confe

In the

Keen

Retui

(Tho ln all

That

They

As m

Her (

Moti

And

Achi

And

O

sarly they murther, and rob late at night, they trade in Darknesse, for they hate the Light,
they fin (unpunisht) thriving, uncontrold, had what by force they got, by force they hold.
Offiends! repeale your words, your speeches bring,
No lawful issue, prove not any thing:
Your deeper wisedomes argue (in effect)
That God doth, or not know, or else neglect:
Conclude with me, or prove my words untrue,
Imust be found the lyar, or else you.

Meditat, 13.

THe wifeft men, that Nature e're could boaft For fecret knowledge of her power, were loft, Confounded, and in deepe amazement flood, lathe discovery of the Chiefest Good : Keenly they hunted, beat in every bracke, forwards they went, on either hand, and backe Return'd they counter; but their deep-mouth'd are (Thogh often challeng'd fent, yet) ne're could thart hall th'Enclosures of Philosophy, That Game, from fquat, they terme, Felicity : They jangle, and their Maximes difagree, Asmany men, so many mindes there be. One digs to Plate's Throne, thinks there to finde Her Grace, rak't up in Gold: Anothers minde Monts to the Courts of Kings, wth plumes of honor And feather d hopes, hopes there to feize upon her; third, unlockes the painted gates of Pleasure, And ranfacks there, to find this peerleffe Treature.

nt.

d) pod:

ne;

our kt.

cy;

ays

nt,

ely

A fourth, more fage, more wisely melancholy, Perswades himselse, her Deity's too holy For common hands to touch, he rather chuses, To make a long dayes journey to the Muses: To athens (gown'd) he goes, and from that School Returnes unsped, a more instructed soole:

Where Iyes the then? Or Iyes the any where! Honours are bought and fold, the refts not there, Much leffe in Pleasures hath the her abiding, For they are shar'd to Beatts, and ever sliding; Nor yet in Vertue, Vertue's often poore; And (crusht with fortune) begs from doore to door, Nor is the fainted in the Shrine of wealth; That, makes men flaves, is unfecur'd from ftealth; Conclude we then, Felicity confifts Not in exteriour Fortunes, but her lifts Are boundlesse, and her large extension Out-runnes the pase of humane apprehension; Fortunes are seldome measur'd by desert, The fairer face, hath oft the fouler heart; Sacred Felicity doth ne're extend Beyond it felfe : In it, all wishes end: The swelling of an outward Fortune can Create a profp'rous, not a happy man; A peacefull Conscience is the true Content, And Wealth is but her golden Ornament. I care not, so my Kernell rellish well,

How flender be the substance of my shell;
My heart b'ing vertuous, let my face be wan,
I am to God, I onely seeme to man.

THE Appo

JBu

and k

Say th

Can c

The g

And

W

Tobo

Want

Thef

No, I

Töhi

Whire the co

The

Fach

THE ARGUMENT.

Bildad (howes mans impurity; Tob fettetb forth th' Almighties power, Pleads flill bis owne integrity: Gods Wifedome no man can discover.

Sett. 14.

door. Aid Bildad then, With whom doft thou contest, alth; But with thy Maker, that lives ever bleft? His pow'r is infinite, mans light is dimme ; and knowledge, darkneffe not deriv'd from Him? Say then, Who can be just before Him ? No man Can challenge Purity, that's borne of Woman. The greater Torch of heaven in his fight, Shall be asham'd, and lose his purer light; Muth leffe can man, that is but living Duft, And but a fairer Worme, be pure and just. (stand, Whereat lob thus : Doth heav'ns high judgement Tobe supported by thy weaker hand? Wants he thy help? To whom doft thou extend These, these thy lavish lips, and to what end?
No, Hee's Almighty, and his Power doth give Each thing his Being, and by Him they live: To him, is nothing darke, his soveraigne Hands Whirle round the reffless Orbs, his pow'r comands The eaven-pois'd Earth; The water-pots of heaven He empties at his pleasure, and hath given THE Appointed lifts, to keepe the Waters under, he trembling skies he ftrikes amaz'd, with thuder: Thefe,

s, chook

re

ere,

g;

These, these the Trophies of his Power be, Where is there e're a fuch a God as He? My friends, these cares have heard your censure And heavens tharp hand doth waigh to hard upon So languishing in griefe, that no defence Seemes to remaine, to shield my Innocence : Yet while my foule a gaspe of breath affords, I'le not distrust my Maker, nor your words Deserve, which heaven forfend, that ever I Prove true, but I'le plead guiltleffe till I dye, While I have breath, my pangs shall ne're perswal To wander, and revolt from Him that made me. E're fuch thoughts fpring from this confused bret Let death and tortures doe their worft, their beft, What gaines the Hypocrite, although the whole Worlds wealth he purchase, wth the price on's for Will Heaven heare the voice of his disease ? Can he repent, and turne, when e're he please? True, God doth fometime plague with open flas The wicked, often blurres he forth his Name From out the earth, his children shall be slaine, And who furvive, shall beg their bread in vaine; What if his gold be heapt, the good man shall Poffefie it, as true Mafter of it all; Like Moths, their houses shall they build, in doubt And danger, every houre to be caft out; Befieg'd with want, their lips make fruitleffe mon Yet (wanting fuccour) be reliev'd by none, The worme of Conscience shall torment his bres And he shall rore, when others be at rest, Gods hand shall scourge him, that he cannot flye, And men shall laugh, and hille, to heare him cry.

The purest metal's hid within the mould, Without, is gravell, but within is Gold;

XUM

Man di

Helcel

Henev

He min

Nofec

Earths

But the

What

Te mo

Ine ra

Dive t

enou

Her no

Can p

The P

Refine

Ofnot

Earth

Where

Below

Searc

The m

Are ye

Was d

To fee

Tour

Toric

Your v

His fe

Let fh

Toth

Tohir

Mané

Ah

Man digs, and in his toyle he takes a pleasure, descekes, and findes within the turfe, the treasure; enfun Henever refts , unsped, but (underneath) demines, and progs, though in the fangs of death: No secret, (how obscure soever) can Earths bosome smother, that's unfound by man; But the Divine, and high Decrees of Heaven, What minde can fearch into? No power's given in mortall man, whereby he may attaine filterare discovery of so high a straine:

Dive to the depth of darknesse, and the deepes bred tenounce this Wisedome: The wide Ocean keepes bed tenotinclos d; Tis not the purest Gold one Can purchase ic, or heapes of silver, told; the Pearles, and peerleffe Treasures of the East, tenned Gold, and Gemmes, are all, the least Ofnothings, if compar'd with it, as which, farths mafic of treasure, (fumm'd) is not fo rich : Where rests this Wisdome then ? If men inquire below, they finde her not ; or, if they (higher) Seare with the Prince of Fowles, they stil despaire, The more they feeke, the further off they are. Ah friends ! how more than men > how Eagle-eyd out Are you, to fee, what to the world befide Was darke ? To you, alone (in trust) was given To fearth into the high Decrees of Heaven: Yourcade his Oracles, you understand To riddle forth mans fortunes by his hand, Your wifedomes have a priviledge to know His feeret Smiling from his angry Brow: ye, La shame prevent your lips, recant, and give To the Almighey his prerogative, To him, the fearthing of mens hearts belong, lans judgement finkes no deeper than the tongue; He

e,

ne;

Me overlookes the World, and in one space Of time, his Eye is fixt on every place: He waighes the Waters, ballances the Ayre, What e're hath Being, did his Hands prepare; He wills that Mortalls be not over-wise, Nor judge his Secrets with consorious eyes.

Meditat, 14.

'Is Vertue to flyc Vice : there's none more for I Than he that ventures to pick Vertue out Betwixt a brace of Vices: Dangers stand, Threatning his ruine, upon either hand; His Card must guide him, lest his Pinnace run Vpon Charthdu, while it Scylla thun: In moderation all Vertue lyes; Tis greater folly to be over-wife, Than rudely ignorant: The golden means Is but to know enough; fafer to leane To Ignorance, than Curiofity, For lightning blafts the Mountaines that are high The first of men, from hence, deserv'd his fall, He fought for fecrets, and found death, withall a Secrets are unfit objects for our eyes. They blinde us in beholding: He that tryes To handle water, the more hard he straines And gripes his hand, the leffe his hand retaines; The mind that's troubled with that pleasing itch Ofknowing Secrets, having flowne a pitch Beyond it selfe, the higher it ascends, And ftrives to know, the leffe it appprehends :

XUM

That

Whic

The

Than

And r

But (

If it p The b Even But o

She w Her k

Than

It wa

Refor

Anfw

As are

W

Have

A no

Tore

The o

But w

Than

This b

Heav

The '

Must

IfI b

Ica

Th

That feeret Wiseman, is an open Foole, Which takes a Counfell-chamber, for a Schoole. The eye of Man defires no farther light, Than to descry the object of his fight, And refts contented with the Sunnes reflection, But (lab'ring to behold his bright complexion) If it presume t'out-face his glorious Light, The beames bereave him, justly, of his fight :. Even fo the mind should rest in what's reveal'd But over-curious, if in things conceal'd She wades too farre, beyond her depth, unbounded, Herknowledge will be loft, and the confounded. Farre fafer 'tis, of things unfure, to doubt, Than undertake to riddle secrets out. It was demanded once, What God did doe Before the World he framed ? Whereunto Answer was made, He built a Hell for fueb, As are too curious, and would know too much.

Who flyes with Icarus his feathers, shall Have Icarus his fortunes and his fall.
A noble Prince, (whose bountcous hand was bent,
To recompence his servants faith, and vent
The carnest of his favours,) did not profer,
But will'd him boldly, to prevent his offer:
Thankfull, he thus reply'd, Thin grant unto me
This boome, with bold thy princely servers from me.

That holy Man, in whose familiar eare Heaven oft had thundred might not come too near: The Temple must have Curtaines; mortall hearts Must rest content to see his Hinder harts.

I care not (Lord) how far thy Face be off, If I but kiffe thy Hand, I have enough, ů:

THE

ch.

THE ARGUMENT.

Iob wisheth bis past bappinesse, Shewes bus state present, doth confesse That God's the Author of his grisse, Relates the purenesse of inclife.

Seff. 15.

OH! that I were as happy as I was, (face, When Heavens bright favours shone upon my And prosper'd my affaires, inricht my joyes, When all my fonnes could answer to my voice; Then did my store, and thriving flocks encrease, Offended Iuflice fought my hands, for peace; Old men did honour, and the young did feare me, Princes kept filence (when I fpake) to heare me; I heard the poore, reliev'd the widowes cry, Orphans I fuccour'd, was the blind mans eye, The Cripples foot, my helplefic brothers drudge, The poore mans Father, and th'oppressours ludge I then supposed, that my dayes long Leafe Would paffe in plenty, and expire in peace; My Roots were fixed, and my Branches fprung, My Glery blaz'd, my Power grew daily ftrong; I fpeaking, men flood mute, my fpeeches moor All hearts to joy, by all men were approov'd, My kindly words were welcome, as a latter Raine, and were Oracles in a donbtfull matter.

O fudden change | I'm turn'd a laughing-stock To boyes, and those that su'd to tend my slock,

And f

Their

Point

Myh

Wide

When I'm v My fo

Toty

Have But v

Have

Thou

Thet

Inc's

Nor

With

Expo

mot

Asin

My fe

My je

Not t

Expe

Earn

And

Not 1

KIh

Orif

M

And fuch, whose hugry wars have taught their hads To scrape the earth, and digge the barren lands For hidden roots, wherewith they might appeale Their Tyran' fromacks, thefe, (even very thefe) Flout at my forrowes, and difdaining me, Point with their fingers, and cry, This is be s My honour's foil'd, my troubled spirit lyes Wide open to the worst of injuries ; Where e're I turne, my forrow, new, appeares, I'm vext abroad, with flouts, at home, with feares; My foule is faint, and nights that should give cafe Totyred spirits, make my griefes encrease; Hoath my Carkeife, for my ripened fores Have chang'd my garments colour with their cores. But what is worst of worsts, (Lord)often I Have ery'd to thee, a stranger to my cry, Though perfect Clemency thy nature be, Though kinde to all, thou art unkinde to me. Ine're waxt pale, to fee another thrive, Nor e're did let my'afflicted brother ftrive With teares alone : but I (poore I) tormented, Expect for faccour, and am unlamented : I mourne in filence, languish all alone, As in a Defart, am reliev'd by none : My fores have dyed my skin with filth, still turning My joyes to griefe, and all my mirth to mourning. My Heart hath paft Indentures with mine Eye, Not to behold a Maid : for what should I Expect from Heaven, but a defery'd reward, Earn'd by fo foule a finne ? for death's prepar'd And flames of wrath are blowne for fuch : Doth He Not knew my actions, that fo well knowes me? KI have lent my hand to flye deceit,

Or if my Reps have not beene purely frait,

What

ock

c;

me,

me;

What I have fowne, then let a ftranger eat, And root my Plants untimely from their feat. If I with Luft have e're distain'd my life, Or beene defiled with anothers Wife, In equall justice, let my Wife be knowne Of all, and let me reape as I have fowne: For Luft, that burneth in a finfull breft, Till it hath burnt him too, shall never rest. If e're my hafte did treat my Servantill, Without defert, making my Power my Will, Then how should I before Gods Iudgement stand, Since we were both created by one Hand? If e're my power wrong'd the Poore mans cause, Or to the Widow, lengthned out the Lawes: If e're (alone) my lips did tafte my bread, Or shut my churlish doores, the poore unfed, Or bent my hand to doe the Orphane wrong, Or faw him naked, unapparell'd long, In heapes of Gold, if e're I tooke delight, Or gave Heavens worthip to the heavenly Light, Or e're was flattred by my secret Will, Or joyed in my Adversaries Ill; Let God accurse me from his glorious Seat, And make my Plagues (if possible) more great, Oh! That some equal! hearer now were by, To judge my righteous cause : Full sure am I,

To judge my rightcous cause: Full sure am I,
I shall be quitted by th' Almighties hand.
What, therefore, if censorious rongues withstand
The judgement of my sober Conscience?
Compose they Ballads on me, yet from thence,
My simple Ianocence shall gaine renowne,
And on my head, I'le weare them, as my Crowne;
To the Almighties Eare will I reveale

My fecret Wayes, to Him, alone, appeale:

KUM

H(to

T m

Ifhic

Tob

Betu

Stan

And

His b

His V

His b

The

Leffe

And f

Bids !

For h

Who

Ortr

Or w

Wou

Orw.

Prefe

Amil

With

No di

W

ff(to conclude) the Earth could finde a tongue, Timpeach my guiltleffe hands of doing wrong : Schidden Wages (earn'd with sweat) doe lye Rak't in her furrowes, let her Wombe deny To bleffe my Harvest, let her better Seeds Beturn'd to Thiftles, and the reft, to Weeds.

Medicat, 15.

THe man, whose soule is undistain'd with Ill, L Pure from the check of a diftempred Will, Stands onely free from the diffracts of Care, And flyes a pitch above the reach of Feare: His bosome dares the threatning Bow-mans arme, His Wisedome sces, his Courage scares no harme; His breft lyes open to the recking Sword; The darts of Swarthy Maurus can afford Leffe dread, than danger, to his well prepar'd And fetled mind, which (standing on her guard) Bids Mischiefe doe the worst the can, or will, For he that does no ill, deferves no ill. Would any strive with Samfon for renowne,

Whose brawny Arme can strike most pillars down? Ortry a fall with Angells, and prevaile? Or with a Hymne unhinge the ftrongeft Iayle ? Would any from a pris'ner prove a Prince? Or with flow speech best Oratours convince? Preserve he then, unstained in his brest, Amilke-white Conscience; let his soule be bleft With fimple Innocence: This fevenfold shield

No dart shall pierce, no fword shall make it yeeld; R & and. ſc, hr,

t,

and wne:

The finewy Bow, and deadly-headed Launce, Shall breake in fibivers, and the splinters glaunce Aside, returning backe from whence they came, And wound their hearts with an eternall shame. The just and constant minde, that perseveres Vnblemisht with salse pleasures, never seares The bended threatnings of a Tyrants brow, Death neither can disturbe, nor change his Vow; Well guarded with himselfe, he walkes along, When, most alone, his stand's a thousand strong.

Lives he in Weale, and full Prosperity? His wisdome tells him, that he lives, to dye.

Is he afflicted ? Sharpe afflictions give Him hopes of Change, and that he dyes, to live.

Is he revil'd and scorn'd? He sits, and smiles, Knowing him happy, whom the world reviles. If Rich, he gives the Poore; and if he live In poore estate, he sindes rich friends to give: He lives an Angell in a mortall forme; And having past the brunt of many a storme, At last, ariveth at the Haven of Rest, Where that just ludge, that rambles in his brest, Ioining with Angels, with an Angels voice, Chaunts forth sweet Requients of Eternall Loyes.

THE

To

Ha

W

W

Die

An

Th

T'c

The Win The My

You Flo

THE ARGUMENT.

Elihu Iob reprosves, reprosves
His Friends alike; be pleads the cafe
With Iob in Gods behalfe, and mooves
Him to recant, and call for Grace.

Sell. 16.

Thus Job his ill-defended Cause adjournes,
And silence lends free liberty of turnes,
To his unjust Accusers, whose bad cause
Hath lest them grounded in too large a pause:
Whereat Elibu (a young stander-by,
Whose modest eares, upon their long reply
Did wait, his angry silence did awake,
And (crawing pardon for his Youth) bespake.

Young Standers-by doe oftentimes fee more Than elder Gamesters: Y'are to blame all foure:
T'ones cause is bad, but with good proofs befrieded
The others just and good, but ill desended:
Though reason makes the man, Heaven makes him
Wisdome in greatest Clerks not alway lyes: (wife,
Then let your filence give me leave to spend
My judgement, whilst your heedfull eares attend.
I have not heard, alone, but still expected (jected
Toheare, what more your spleenes might have obAgainst your wosfull Friend; but I have found
Your reasons built upon a sandy ground.
Flourish no Flags of Conquest: Vnderstand,
That he's afflicted by th' Almighties hand:

He nce ne,

ne.

w;

e.

3,

2

eft.

es.

THI

He hath not fail'd to crosse your accusations; Yet I (though not with your foule exprobations) Will croffe him too. I'me full, and I must speake, Or, like unvented vessells, I must breake; And with my tongue, my heart will be reliev'd, That swells, with what my patience hath conceiv'd: Be none offended, for my lips shall tread That ground (without respect) as Truth shall lead; God hates a flattring language : then how can I Vnliable to danger, flatter any?

Now, leb, to thee I speake, O, let my Errant Be welcome to thine cares, for trath's my watrant; They are no flender trifles that I treat, But things digested with the facred heat Of an inspired knowledge; 'Tis no rath Discharge of wrath, nor wits conceited flash; I'le speake, and heare thee speake as free, for I Will take no vantage of thy Mifery.

Thy tongue did challenge to maintaine thy case With God, if he would veile his glorious face: Be i the man (though clad with clay and duft, And mortall like thy felfe) that takes the trutt To represent his Person: Thou dost terme Thy selfe most just, and boldly dost affirme, That Heaven afflicts thy foule without a reason. Ah lob! thefe very words (alone) are treason Against th' Almighties will. Thou oughtest rather Submit thy passion to him, as thy Father, Than plead with him, as with thy Pecie. Is he Bound to reveale his fecret Will to thee ? God ipcaketh oft to man, not understood, Sometimes in dreames, at other times thinks good, To thunder Iudgement in his drowzy care; Sometimes, with hard afflictions scourge, doth tears His

XUM

His (Li

But

The

Wi

Ho

Ah,

Hei

His

I w:

Thu

Dot

Cor

Wh

Ifo

And

Vou

Let

For

Yet

And

His

And

OP

He

Far

Wh

Eac

His

Who

Wh

IfG

The

His wounded foule, which may at length give ease (Like sharper Physicke) to his soule Disease:
But if (like pleasing Iulips) he afford
The meeke Expounders of his sacred Word,
With sweet perswasions to recure his griese,
How can his sorrowes wish more faire Reliese?
Ah, then his body shall wax young and bright;
Heavens face that scorcht before, shal now delight,
His tongue with Triumph, shall confesse to men,
I was a Leper, but am cleare agen.
Thus, thus that Spring of Mercy oftentimes Doth speak to man, that man may speak his crimes.
Consider, 100; My words with judgement weigh;
Which done (if thou hast ought) then boldly say;
Ifotherwise, shame not to hold thy peace,

And let thy wisedome with my words encrease. And you, you Wisemen, that are filent here, Vouchsafe to lend my lips your ripened care, Let's call a parly, and the cause decide; For leb pleads guiltleffe, and would faine be try'd : Yet hath his boldnesse term'd himselfe upright, And taxt th' Almighty for not doing right; His Innocence with Heaven doth he plead, And that unjustly he was punished: O Purity by Impudence suborn'd! He fcorn'd his Maker, and is justly fcorn'd: Far be it from the heart of man, that He, Who is all Iustice, yet unjust should be. Each one shall reape the Harvest he hath sowne, His meed shall measure, what his hands have done. Who is't, can claim the Worlds great Soveraigntie? Who rais'd the Rafters of the Heavens, but He? If God should breathe on man, or take away The breath he gave him, what were man, but Clay?

R4

ns)

ake, eiv'd:

lead;

rant;

cafe

her ood,

His

O, let thy heart, th'unbridled tongue, convince ! Say ; Dare thy lips defame an earthly Prince? How darft thou then maligne the King of Kings, To whom, great Princes are but poorest things? He kicks down kingdoms, spurns th'emperial crown And with his blaft, puffes mighty Monarchs down Tis vaine to ftrive with Him; and if he ftrike, Our pare's to beare, not (fondly) to millike, (Misconstruing the nature of his drift) But husband his Corrections to our thrift. If he afflict, our best is to implore His Bleffing with his Rod, and fin no more. What if our torments paffe the bounds of measure? It unbefits our wils, to flint his pleasure. Judge then, and let th'impartiall world advise, How far (poore lob) thy judgement is from wife; Nor are these speeches kindled with the fire Of a diffempred spleene, but with defire T'inrich thy wisedome, lest thy fury tye Prefumption to thy rash infirmity.

Meditat. 16.

For mortalls, to be borne, wax old, and dye,
Lyes not in Will, but bare Necessity,
Common to beasts, which, in the selfe degree,
Hold by the selfe-same Patent, even as we:
But to be Wise, is a diviner action
Of the discursive Soule, a pure abstraction
Of all her powers, united in the Will,
Ayming at Good, rejecting what is Ill:

It

Vapur

Entay

Yet ge

Of the

Indep

Yeere

Youth

Can c

Ofda

Fill'd Can c

His gi

What

The t

Who

Whole Vyon What That That

He di How

In ou Emba

And Imay

Ther

than Influence of inspired breath, Vapurchased by birth, unlost by death, Entayl'd to no man, no, nor free to all, Yet gently answers to the eager call Of those, that with inflam'd affections seeke, Respecting tender youth and age alike; Indepth of dayes, her spirit not alway lyes, Yeeres make man Old, but heaven returnes him Youths Innocence, nor riper ages ftrength (Wife; Can challenge her as due; (Defired) length Ofdayes, produced to decrepit yeers, Fill'd with experience, and grizly haires, Can clame no right; Th'Almighty ne'r engages Hisgifts to times, nor is he bound to Ages; His quickning Spirit, to fucklings oft reveales, What to their doting Grandsires he conceales, The vertue of his breath can unbenumme The frozen lips, and ftrike the speaker dunime: Who put that moving power into his tongue, Whole lips did right the chaft Sufauna's wrong, Vpon her wanton false Accusers death? What secret fire inflam'd that fainting breath That blafted Phare? Or those ruder tongues, That school'd the faithless Prophet, for the wrongs He did to facred Justice? Matters not How flight the meanes be in it felfe, or what In our esteemes, so wisedome be the mestage; Embassadors are worthyed in th' Embassage: God fowes his harvest to his best encrease, And glorifies himselfe, howe're he please. Lord, if thou wilt, (for what is hard to the(?) lmay a Factor for thy glory be, Then grant that (like a faithfull fervant) I

May render backe thy stocke with Vsury.

THE

awo wn

ire }

THE ARGUMENT.

God reapes no gaine by mans best deeds; Mons misery from bimselfe proceecs: Gods Mercy and Instice are unbounded; In workes of Nature man is grounded.

Sell. 17.

Libu, thus his paufing lips againe
Disclos'd, & said, (rash lob) dost thou maintaine
A rightfull cause, which in conclusion, must Avow thee blamelesse, and thy God unjust.
Thy lawlesse words implying, that it can Advantage none, to live an upright man? (would My tongue shall sehoole thee, and thy friends that (Perchance) refell d thy reasons if they could:
Behold thy glorious Makers greatnesse, see
The power of his hand, say then, can He
Be damag'd by thy sinne, or can He raise Advantage, by th' uprightnesse of thy wayes?

True, the afflicted languish oft in griefe,
And roare to heaven (unanswer'd) for reliefe,
Yet is not Heaven unjust, for their fond cry,
Their sinne bewailes not, but their misery.
Cease then, to make him guilty of thy crimes,
And walte his pleasure, that's not bound to times,
Nor heares vaine words. The sorrowes thou art in,
Are sleight, or nothing, ballane'd with thy sin;

Tor Ofal

Thyl Tori Ho

Find I'le r

Beho

Deft Mou Inftr

Crov

His f

Ah fi

Had'

Butt

Look

The

Let v

Know

His V

And Ah!r

(Wie

He p

Who

Who

M

Ofth

thylips accuse thee, and thy foolish tongue, To right thy felfe, hath done th' Almighty wrong. Hold back thine answer; Let my flowing streame Find paffage, to furround my fruitfull Theame; l'ieraise my thoughts, to plead my Makers case, And speake, as shall befit so high a place : Behold th' Almightie's meeke as well as firong, Destroyes the wicked, rights the just mans wrong, Mounts him to honour; If by chance he ftray, Inftructs, and showes him where he loft his way : Ifhe returne, his bleffings shall encrease, Crowning his joyes with plenty and sweet peace; Ifnot, th'intailed fword shall ne'r depart His stained house, but pierce his hardned heart; Ah finfull lob! these plagues had never bin, Had'ft thou been guiltleffe (as thou boafts) of fin : But thy proud lips against their Maker plead, And draw down heapes of vengeance on thy head : Looke to thy felfe, feeke not to understand The secret causes of th' Eternalls hand, Let wisedome make the best of misery, Know, who inflicts it, aske no reason why: His will's beyond thy reach, and his Divine And facred knowledge farre furpaffeth thine, Ah!rather, praise him in his workes, that lye (Wide open to the world) before thine eye; His meaner Acts, our highest thought o'retops, He pricks the clouds, stils down the raine by drops Who comprehends the lightning, or the thunder? Who fees, who heares the unamaz'd with wonder? My troubled heart chils in my quivering breft, To rellish these things, and is dispossest Ofall her powers: who ever heard the voyce Ofth'angry heavens, unfrighted at the noyfe?

The

would

d:

mes,

t in,

The beaft by nature daz'd with sudden dread. Seekes out for covert to fecure his head : If God command, the dusky clouds march forth Into a Tempest; From the freezing North He beckens Frost, and Snow; and from the South He bloweth Whirlewinds with his angry Mouth Presumptuous lot! if thou canst not aspire So high, to comprehend thefe things, admire. Know it thou the progresse of the rambling close From mortall eies, when gloomy darkness three The lamps of heaven, know it thou the reason wh Can'ft thou unriddle heavens Philosophy? Know if thou th'unconstant nature of the weath Or whence so many Winds proceed, and whithe Wer't thou made privy, or a stander-by, When God ftretch't forth his spangled Canopy! Submit thy felfe, and let thefe fecrets teach, How farre his Myst'rics doe surmount thy reach: Thou For Hee's Almighty, and his facred will Is just, nor renders an uncarned ill; His workes are objects for no foaring eyes, But wherefoe're he lookes, he finds none wife.

Meditat. 17.

"He World's an Index to Eternity, And gives a glance of what our cleerer eye, In time, thall fee at large; nothing's fo flight, Which in it nature, fend not forth some light, Or Memorandum of his Makers Glory: No Duft so vile, but pens an ample flory

of the

Which

Cal

Her

Wor

entire the fu fet in

Ori

To vie

Rehol Whirl

Aron

Sall p

Bel

Are li

With

Look

Our c

Their Befide

Shall Tohe Into r

For Temp And,

Left F

Suit W

Moun

Vabe

Too I

Tob Militant. 253 ad, of the Almightics power, nor is there that, which gives not man just cause to wonder at. Cast down thine eies, behold the pregnat earth, Her selfe but one) produceth at one birth, South Aworld of divers natures: From a feed outh Entirely one, things hot and cold proceed, the fuckles with one milke, things moift, and dry, re. Wet in her wombe is no repugnancy. close Or shall thy reason ramble up so high, shrow so view the Court of wilde Astronomy?
on whethold the Planets, round about thine eares, whirling like fire-balls in their restlesse Spheares, eathe At one felfe-instant moving severall wayes, hithe ball measuring out our short, and shorter dayes. Behold the parts whereon the World confifts, opy) Are limited in their appointed lifts, Without rebellion, unapt to vary, cach: Though being many, divers, and contrary : Looke where we lift, above, beneath, or under. Our eyes shall see to learne, and learne to wonder; Their depth shall drowne our judgments, and their Besides his wits, shal drive the prime coceit: (height Shall then our daring minds presume t'aspire To heavens hid Myst'ries? shall our thoughts in-lato the depth of fecrets, unconfounded, When in the shoare of Nature they are drowned? Fond man be wise, ftrive not above thy ftrength, Tempt not thy Barke beyond her Cables length; And like Promethem, filch no facred fire, Left Eagles gripe thee: Let thy proud defire sur with thy fortunes, Curious minds, that shall Mount up with Phaeton, shall have Phaetons fall. Vabend thy bow betimes, left thou repent

Too late, for it will breake, or elfe fland bent. I'le

orth

1, fe.

re,

I'le worke at home, ne'r cross the scorching Line,
In unknowne lands, to sceke a hidden Mine:
Plaine Bullion pleaseth me, I not desire
Deare Ignots from th' Elixars techy fire;
I'le spend my paines (where best I may be bold)
To know my selfe, wherein I shall behold
The world abridg' d, and in that world my Maker,
Beyond which taske, I wish no Vndertaker

Great God, by whom it is, what-e're is mine, Make me thy Viceroy in this World of thine; So cleare mine eyes, that I may comprehend My flight beginning, and my fudden end.

THE ARGUNENT.

God questions Iob, and proves that man Cannot attaine to things so high, As divine secrets, since he can Not reach to Natures; Iobs reply.

Sect. 18.

Corth from the bosome of a murm'ring Cloud, Heavens great lehovah did, at length unthroud His Earths-amazing Ianguage (equally Made terrible with Feare and Majesty) (Challeng'd the Duell)he did undertake His grumbling servant, and him thus bespake,

Who, who are thou, that thus doft pry in vaine, Into my fecrets, hoping to attaine, With murmuring, to things conceal'd from man? Say (poreblinde mortall) who are thou, that can

Thus

thus cle

Make m loe, her thy fou

Say . W

The W

Was Ea

Whole

Where

Andin

Who is

And fv

Did'ft Or kno Did'ft Or ma

Know

Can t

Know

My fie

Whof Or wi

What

Didfi

Canf

Or fa

Will

OrS

Kno

Tho

Who

And

Line Thus cleare thy crimes, and dar'it (with vaine ap-(ake me defendant in thy finfull cause? oe, here I am; Engrosse into thy hands thy foundest weapons; Answer my demands; Say, where wert thou, whe these my hands did lay the Worlds foundation?canft thou tell me?Say, Was Earth not measur'd by this Arme of mine? Whose hand did ayde me? Was I help't by thine? Where wert thou, when the Planets first did blaze, And in their spheares lang forth their Makers praise Who is't that tames the raging of the Seas, And fwathes them up in mifts, when-e're he pleafe? Die'ft thou divide the Darknesse from the Light ? Orknow'it thou whence Aurora takes her flight? Did'ft ere enquire into the Seas Abyffe, Ormark'd the Earth of what a bulk fine is? (fprings Inow'it thou the place whence Light or Darknette Can thy deepe age unfold thefe fecret things? Know'ft thou the cause of Snow, or Haile, which are My fierce Artill'ry, in my time of warre? Who is't that rends the gloomy Clouds in funder, Whose sudden rapture strikes forth fire & thunder? Or who bedowes the earth with gentle showres, Filling her pregnant foyle with fruits and flowres? What father got the raine? from what chill wombe Didfrosts, and hard-congealed Waters come? Canst thou restraine faire Maja's course, or stint her Or fad Orion ushering in the Winter? Will fcorching cancer at thy fummons come? Or Sun-burnt Autumne with her fruitfull wombe ? Knowst thou Heavens course above, or dost thou Those gentle influences here below? (know Who was rinfpir'd thy foule with understanding? And gave thy Spirit, the spirit of apprehending?

(14) ker.

e,

Dost thou command the Cesternes of the Skie

Nay, let thy practice to the earth descend, Prove there, how farre thy power doth extend; From thy full hand will hungry Lions cate? Feed It thou the empty Ravens that cryifor mean Sett'ft thou the season, when the fearfull Hind Brings forth her painfull birth? Haft thou affign The Mountaine Goate her Time? Or is it 1? Canst thou subject unto thy soveraigntie The untam'd Vnicorne? Can thy hard hand Force him to labour on thy fruitfull land? Did'st thou inrich the Peacock with his Plume? Or did that Steele-digefting Bird affume His downy flags from thee Didft thou endow The noble Stallion with his strength? Canst the Quaile his proud courage? See his angry breath Puffes nothing forth, but fears, fumm'd up in dear Marke with what pride his horny hoofes doc tabe The hard refounding Earth; with how great labour How little ground he spends : But at the noyse And herce Alar'm of the hoarfe Trumpets voyet He breaks the ranks, amidft a thousand Speares Pointed with death, undaunted at the feares Of doubtfull warre, he rushes like a Ranger, Through every Troop, & fcornes fo brave a dage Doe lofty Haggards cleave the flitting Ayre, With Plumes of thy deviling? Then how dare Thy ravenous lips thus, thus at randome runne And counter-mand what I the Lord have done? Think'ft thou to learne (fond Mortall) thus, by Into my fecrets, or to gaine by ftriving? Plead then : No doubt but thine will be the Day, Speake(peevish Plaintiffe) if th'aft ought to say.

Lat

My

Sh

1'1

No

Inh

Op

Mo

OE

Gre

Go

All

All

Bor

Or :

And

Yet

And

Div

A po

Bot

Beg

The

Both

Ich then replyde : (Great God, I am but Duft, My heart is finfull, and thy hands are just; lam a Sinner (Lord), my words are wind, My thoughts are vaine, (Ah Father) I have finn'& Shall duft reply? I spake too much before, I'le close these lips, and never answer more.

Medita, 18-

Glorious Light! A light unapprehended By mortall eyes! O Glory ,never ended, Nore're created, whence all Glory fprings Inheavenly bodyes, and in earthly things ! O power Immense, derived from 2 Will Most just and able to doe all, but ill! O Effence pure, and full of Majety! Greatneffe (it felfe) and yet no quantitie; Goodnesse, and without qualitie; producing All things from out of Nothing, and reducing All things to nothing; past all comprehending; Both first and Last, and yet without an ending, Or yet beginning; filling every Creature, And not (it felfe) included; above Nature, Yet not excluded, of it felfe fublifting, And with it felfe, all other things, affifting; Divided, yet without division; A perfect three, yet Three, entirely one; Both One in Three, and Three in One, together; (vin Regetting, and begotten, and yet neither; Dan The Fountaine of all Arts, Confounding Art, Both All in All, and all in every part; Still ie

nd;

mean

me ?

w ft th eath den

e tab abou yfe oyee arcs dige

,

re

nne

ne?

s, by a

Gay.

ıd flign Still feeking Glory, and still wanting none; Though just, yet reaping, where thou ne'r hast fown Great Majestic, fince Thou art every where, O, Why fhould I mildoubt thy Presence here? I long have fought thee, but my ranging heart Ne'r quests, and cannot see thee where thou art: There's no Defect in thee, thy light hath thin'd, Nor can be hid (great God) but I am blind. O, cleare mine eyes, and with thy holy fire Inflame my breft, and edge my dull defire : Wash me with Hysope, clense my stained thoughts, Renew my spirit, blurre forth my fecret faults; Thou tak'ft no pleasure in a Sinners death, For thou art Life, thy Mercy's not beneath Thy facred Justice: Give thy fervant power To seeke aright, and (having sought) discover Thy glorious Presence; Let my blemisht Eye Sec my falvation yet before I dye. O, then my Duft, that's bowell'd in the ground, Shall rife with Triumph at the welcome found Of my Redeemers earth-awaking Trumpe, Vnfrighted at the noyfe; no fullen Dumpe Offelfe-confounding Conscience shall affright me For hee's my Iudge, whose dying blood shall quit

> Con Pour

For

Rou

Ibe

Shall

Wha Put Wit

Bo

Ane Like

C

W

Tho Than

XUM

THE ARGVMENT.

God speaks to lob the second time: lob yeelds his sinne, repents his crime. God checks his friends, resson es h's bealth, Gives him new issue, double wealth.

Sell. 19.

Nee more the mouth of heave rapt forth a voice The troubled Firmament was fill'd with noise, The Rafters of the darkned Sky did shake, For the Eternall thundred thus and fpake : Collect thy scattered senses, and advise, Rouze up (fond man) and answer my replies. Will thou make Comments on my Text, & must I be unrighteous, to conclude thee, just ? Shall my Decrees be licenced by thee? What, canft thou thunder with a voyce like Me? Put on thy Robes of Majestie; Be clad With as bright glory (lob) as can be had; Make fierce thy frownes, and with an angry face Confound the Proud, and his high thoughts abase, Pound him to Dust : Doe this, and I will yeeld, Thou art a God, and need'ft no other fhield. Behold, the Caftle-bearing Elephant, -

That wants no bulke, nor doth his greatnesse want An equal strength. Behold his massic bones, Like barres of Yron; like congealed Rones,

His

2 4

XUM

rt:

d, at mt quitt

(me,

THI

His knottie finewes are; Him have I made,
And given him naturall weapons for his aide;
High mountaines beare his food, the fhady boughes
His Coverts are, Great Rivers are his Troughes, Whose deepe Carouses would, to standers-by,
Seeme at a watring, to draw Iordan dry:
What skilful huntsman can, with strength, out-dare
Or with what engines can a mā ensnare him? (him)
Hast swarthy Tyrant of the Ocean? Can Thy bearded hooke impierce his Gills, or make him
Thy landed Pris'ner? Can thy angles take him?
Will he make suit for favour from thy hands,

Will he make suit for favour from thy hands,
Or be enthralled to thy fierce command?
Will he be handled as a Bird? Or may Thy fingers bind him for thy childrens play?
Let men be wise, for in his lookes, he hath Displayed Banners of untimely death.
If Creatures be so dreadfull, how is he
More bold then wise, that dares encounter Me?

More bold then wife, that dares encounter Me?
What hand of man can hinder my defigue?
Are not the Heavens, and all beneath them mine?
Diffect the greatnesse of so vasta Creature,
By view of severall parts, summe up his feature:

Like Shields, his Scales are plac't, which neither Knowes how to funder, nor yet force can part. (are His belching rucks forth flames, his moving Eye Shinea like the glory of the moraing skie;

Shines like the glory of the morning skie;
His craggie finewes are like wreathes of braffe,
And from his mouth, quicke flames of fier paffe
As from an Oven, the temper of his heart
Is like a Nether-milftone, which no Dart

Can pierce, secured from the threatning Speare; Affraid of none, he firites the world with teares

The

The

The

Stor

In e

Con

And

Vpo

Ik

Thy

lan

Lon

My

And

Lor

Cin

Mir

Buc

My

But

Rep

Ian

An

Beh

On

For

My

My

Hat

Hai

To

And

S

The Bow-mans brawnic atme fends thafts in vaine, They fall like stubble, or bound backe againe: Stones are his Pillow, and the Mud his Downe; Inearth none greater is, nor equall none, Compar'd with him, all things he doth deride, And well may challenge to be King of Pride. So said, th'amazed Job bent downe his eyes Ypon the ground, and (sadly) thus replyes. I know (great God) ther's nothing hard to Thee,

Iknow (great God) ther's nothing hard to Thee,
Thy thoughts are pure, and too too deepe for me:
Iam a Foole, and my diftempered wits,
Longer out-strayed my Tongue, then well befits;
My knowledge Rumbred, while my lips did chat,
And like a Foole, I spake I knew not what.
Lord, teach me Wisdome, lest my proud Desire,
Cinge her bold Feathers in thy facred fire;
Mine eare hath oft been rounded with thy story,
But now these very Eyes have seene thy glory.
My sinfull words I not (alone) lament,
But in the horror of my soule repent;
Repent with Teares in sackcloth, mourne in Dust;
Iam a sinfull raan, and Thou art just.

Thou Etpher, that mak'ft my facred Word, An Engine of Despaire (faid then the Lord)
Behold full vyalls of my wrath attends
On thee, and on thy two too-partiall Friends;
For you have judy'd amisse, and have abus'd
My Word to worke your ends; salfely accus'd
My nighteous Servant: Of you all there's none
Hath spoke uprightly, as my 100 hath done.
Hashe then (before my kindling fire begin
To slame) and each man offer for his sin,
A facrifice, by 100 my servants hand,
And for his sake, your Offrings shall withstand

S

The

The

hes lare

im

him

m? ine?

::

cr

(art

The wages of your finnes; for what ean I, If lob, my fervant, make request, deny? So straight they went, and (after speedy pardon Defir'd and had) the rightcous lob (for guerdon Of his fo tedious Griefe) obtain'd the health Of a found body, and encrease of wealth; So that the fecond Harvest of his store, Was double that, which he enjoy'd before. Ere this was blazed in the worlds wide Eares. (The frozen brefts of his familiars, And cold Allyes, being now diffoly'd in Griefe,) His backward friends came to him with reliefe, To feed his wants, & with fad showring eyes, To moane his (yet supposed) Miscries: Some brought him sheep, to bleffe his empty Fold, Some precious Earerings, others, kings of Gold. God bleft his loines, fro whence there sprang again The number of his children that were flaine, Nor was there any in the Land fo rare In vertue as his Daughters, or so faire. Long after this, he liv'd in peace, to fee His childrens children, to the fourth degree, Till at the length, cut short by Him, that stayes For none, he dyed in Peace, and full of Dayes.

Meditat. 19.

Evill's the defect of Good, and as a shade, That's but the ruines of the light decay'd: It hath no being, nor is understood, But by the opposition of Good. What then is man? whose purest thoughts are press For Satans warre, which from the tender brest,

With !

Such f

What

His L1

What

Inple

His fp

Faire

He br

Depa His li

The r

Bego

For fi

Yet,

Maki

He p

He h

Each

Each

Thu

Tofi

Thu

Fond And Green

Not Wit

OfI

To

An

Ref

rdon

on

c,)

Fold,

.gain

rich

(UM

ld.

With Infant filence, have confented to Such finfull Deeds, as (babes) they could not doc? What then is man, but Nothing, being Evill, His Lunaticke affections doe unlevell, What Heaven created by just Waight and measure; In pleasures fincke, he takes a swinelike Pleasure; His span of life, and beautie's like a Flower, Faire flourithing, and fading in an hower. He breaks into the world with teares, and then Departs with Griefe, nor knowing how, nor when. His life's a Bubble, full of feeming Bliffe, The more it lengthens, the more short it is; Begot in darkneffe, hee's brought forth, and cryes For fuccour, paffes ore the stage, and dyes; Yet, like a Moale, the earth he undermines, Making the World, the Forge of his defignes: He plots, complots, foresces, prevents, directs, He hopes, he feares, he doubts, purf ues, effects; Each hath his plot, each one his course doth bend Each hath his project, and each one his end. Thus restlesse man doth still his soule molest, To finde out (that which hath no being) Reft; Thus travels finfull man in endleffe toyle; Taking a pleasure in his owne turmoyle. Fond man, first seeke to purchase that divine And facred prize, and all the world is thine : Great Salomon made fuit for Wisdome, and he found Not (barely) Wisdome, but that Wisdome crown'd With Diadems of wealth, and faire encrease Of Princely Honour, with long dayes of Peace.

(With fafe respect, and awfull reverence To Myst'ries) Meditation doth commence An earnest doubt: Was lobs dispoyled Flock Restored double? Was his former Stock

4 Renew'd

Renew'd with double vantage? Did heaven adde To all his fortunes, double what he had? Yet those sweet Emblemes of his dearest love. (His sonnes) whom death untimely did remove From off the face of the unthankfull earth. Why likewise sprang nor they in double birth?

Bruit beafts that perifh once, are loft for ever, Their substance, and their All consumes together. Once having given a farewell to the light, They dye, and with them is perpetual night: Abstra But man, (unorgan'd by the hand of Death) Dyes not, is but transplanted from beneath, Imo a fairer foyle, or as a stranger, Brought home, secure, fro the worlds pleasing dan Jobs flocks were loft, and therefore double given, His Iffue's equall fhar'd 'twixt Earth and Heaven, One halfe in heav'n, are glorious in their doome, Ingag'd as Pledges, till the other come. Great Godlmy Time's but thort, and long my way, My Heart hath loft her Path, and gone aftray, My fpirit's faint, and fraile, my foul's imboft, If thou helpe not, I am for ever loft, Though Duft and Ashes, yet am I thy Creature, Howe're my finnes are great, thy Mercy's greater; Of nothing didft thou make me, and my finne Hath turn 4 me back to nothing, once agin : Create me a new heart, (great God) inspire My cold affections with thy facred fire: Instruct my Will, and rectifie my Wayes,

O teach me (Lord) to number out my Dayes.

hy to THE

FHO

Husba

Line

Defi

Hath I

Hath c

Have !

Heear

Tho

Pos

Itt th

March

hou :

Tho c

God

Will Win

NOW !

The Digestion of the whole HISTORIE.

In Profession.

Hou, whose lank fortunes heave hath sweld web Make not thy selfe, by over wishing, poor, (store Bushand that good, which esse, abuse makes bad, histracting, where thy base defire would adde:

Lines flowing from a Sopbo kors quill,
Deserve no Plaudit', being acted ill.

2 In Adversity.

Auth heave withdrawn the talethe hath give thee?
Authenvious Death of all thy fons bereaven thee?
Ave foule Difeafes foil'd thee on the floore?
Accarnes no fweet, that never tafted fowre:
Thou art a Scholler; if thy Tutor doe
Pose thee too hard, he will instruct thee too.

2 In Tentation.

In thou opposed to thine unequall Foe?

Arch bravely on; thy Generall bids thee goe;

hou art heavens Champion, to maintain his right;

ho cals thee forth, wil give thee strength to fight.

God seekes, by conquest, thy renowne, for He Will win enough: Fight thou, or Paint, or Flee.

4 In Slander.

Winter fortunes nip thy Summer Friends, and tip their tongues with Cenfure, that oftends by tender Name, despaire not, but be wife, now Heaven selecteth, whom the world denies:

Thou

lde

r.

ier.

ger;

n, ven,

ne,

way,

re,

ater:

Thou hast a milk-white Thinby, that's within thee, Will take thy part, when all the world's agin thee.

s In Re-advancement,

Art thou advanc'd to thy supreme desir?
Be still the same; Feare Lower, aime no Higher:
Mans Play hath many Sceanes, but in the last,
Heaven knits up all, to sweeten all that's past:
Astliction is a Rod, to scourge us home,
An'a painfull Earnest of a Heaven to come.

The end.

Print

SIONS SONETS

Sung

By SOLOMON the KING,

And

PERIPHRASD

By

FRA: QVARLES.

LONDON,

Printed by MILES FLESHER.
1630.

thee,

er:

fub

Admiedled 17/49

To the Readers.

Readers, now you have them. May the end of my paines be the beginning of your pleasures. Excuse me for baring so high, else give me leave to excuse my selfe; Indeed I flew with eagles feathers; otherwise I had not downe, or falne. It is the Song of Songs, there present you with: The Author, King Solomon, the wisest of Kings; The matter mysticall, the divinest of subjects: The Speakers, Christ, the Bride; The end, to invite you all to the wedding. Farewell.

AN

AN EPITHALME TO THE BRIDE-GROOME.

HOlanna to the Highest. Ioy betide (Bride: The beavenly Bridegroome, and his bely Let Heaven above be fill'd with fongs, Let Earth triumph below; For ever silent be those tongues, That can be silent now. You Rocks, and Stones, I charge you all to breaks Your flinty silence, if men cease to speake. You, that professe that sacred Art, Or now, or never flow it, Plead not, your Muse is out of heart Here's that creates a Poet. Beravisht Earth, to see this contract driven, Twixt sinfull Man, and reconciled Heaven. Dismount you Quire of Angels ; come, Wish Men, your joyes divide; Heaven never show'd so sweet a Groome, Nor Earth, fo faire a Bride.

Nich Y

Than With

Report With Which And a

With

SIONS SONETS.

BRIDE. SONET I.

Ι.

OThat the bounty of those lips divine,
Would seale their favors, on these lips of mine,
That by those welcome * kisses, I might see
The mutual Flove, betwixt my Love and me,
For truer blisse, no worldly joy allowes,
Than facred Kisses, from so sweet a Spouse,
With which, no earthly pleasures may compare,
Rich Wines are not so delicate as they're.

* Sensible graces.

2.

Nor Myrrh, nor Cassia, nor the choice persumes
Of unctions Narde, or Aromaticke sumes
Of hot Arabia, doe enrich the Aire
With more delicious sweetnesse, than the faire
Reports, that crowne the merits of thy Name,
With heavenly Laurels of eternall same;
Which makes the "Virgins six their eyes upon thee
And all that view thee, are enamour'd on thee.
"Pure in beart.

0, eake

ne,

3.

Let the beauty of thy Sun-like face Inflame my foule, and let thy glory chace Disloyall thoughts: Let not the World allure My chaste desires, from a Spouse so pure ; But when as Time thall place me on thy * Throng My feares shall cease, and interrupt by none, I shall transcend the file of Transitory, And full of glory, flill be fill'd with glory. * The Kingdome of Heaven.

Byt you, my curious (and too nice) allyes, Thy That view my fortunes, with too narrow eye fee, You fay my face is * black, and foule; 'tis true; I'me beauteous, to my Love, though black to you; My censure stands not upon your esteeme, He fecs me as I * am ; you, as I feeme ; You fee the Clouds, but he discernes the Skie; Know, 'tis my * mask that lookes fo black, not I. * I brough apparant infirmities. * Glorious in ! * Weakneffe of the fle fb.

Hat if Afflictions doe dif-imbellifh My naturall glory, and deny the rellife Of my adjourned beauty, yet disdaine not Her, by whose necessary losse, you gaine not; Iwas inforc'd to fwelter in * the Sun,

* Afflictions.

XUM

left

The

For

Whe O tc Say

Thy

TLI

ITh

Tho arc Com

Vnth

Said

*Th

of

And * keepea strangers Vine, lest mine alone; Heft mine owne, and kept a strangers Vine; The fault was * mine, but was * not onely mine. Forced to Idolatrous Superfittions. * By reason of my weakaelle. * Being feduced by falfe prophets.

Thou, whose love I prize above my life, More worthy farre t'enjoy a fairer wife, Tell me, to what coole shade dost thou refort? (port Where graze thy Sheepe, where do thy lambs dif-Free from the scortching of this * fowltry weather? O tell thy Love, and let thy Love come thither: Say (gentle Shepheard) fits it thee to cherish Thy private Flocks, and let thy true Love * perith? w cya Perficutions. * By Idolatry.

BRIDEGROOME.

SONET II.

Lluftrious Bride, more radiant and more bright, Then th'eye of Noon, thirce fairer then the light; Thou dearest off-spring of my dying blood, And treasure of my foule, why had thou food Parching for long in thefe ambitious beames ? Come, come & coole thee in shele flyer ttreames Vnihade thy Face, cast backe shofe golden Locks, and I will make thee * Miffpis of my Flocks Through my netrits and the fandification, * The do of the true Prophets. * Teacher of my Compegations. Courshalt be rich, that am thus sich, in t

T.on and to endain and a Q

XUM

ure Throw c,

:5,

ue; you;

ic;

or I.

in h llif

Thou, the Center of my choice defires, In whom I reft, in whom my foule respires; Thou art the flowre of beauty, and I prize thee Above the world, how e're the world dispise thee; The blinde imagines all things black, by kinde; Thou art as beautifull, as they are blinde : And as the fairest troopes of Pharees Steeds Exceed the reft, fo Thou, the rest exceeds.

Thy *cheek(the garden where fresh beauty plat Her choicest flowers) no adorning wants There wants no rellish of * diviner grace, To summe compleatnesse, in so sweet a face; Thy Neck, without a blemish, without blot, Than pearle's more orient, clear from stain or spot fren Thy Gemmes and Iewels, full of curious art, Imply the facred treasures of thy heart. Thy moft vifible parts. * Santlification.

The Sun-bright glory of thy refounding fame, Addes glery, to the glory of thy Name; The more's thy honor (Love) the more thou ftriv's To honour me; thou gaineft, what thou giv'ft : My Father (whom our Contract hath made thine) Will give thee large endowments of divine, And everlasting treasure; Thus by me Thou shalt be rich, that am thus rich, in thee. The riches of his boly Spirit.

BRIDL

low

Each

Heal

Thav

What And l

And)

That

Thas

My al

With

WH

Or po

Or pu

Or fw ofwe

Se fair

and f

N

BRIDE.

SONET HIL

OH, how my foule is ravishe with the joyes That spring like fountains fro my true loves voice ! How cordiall are his lips ! How fweer his conque! 1 Each word, he breathes, is a melodious fone back Heabsent (ah) how is my glory dim la da around so a Thave no beauty, not deriv'd from Him; wir. Us W Whate're I have, from Him alone, I have, And he takes pleasure in those gifts he gavo; wed.

A S fragrant Myrrh, within the bosome hid, A Sents more delicious, than (before) le did, and yet receives no sweetnesse, from that breft, That prooves the fweeter, for fo fweet a gueft; free Fren fo, the favour of my dearest Spoule, Thus priz'd, and placed in my heart, endower My ardent foule, with fweetneffe, and infpires With heavenly ravishment, my rapt defires,

WHo ever finelt the breath of morning flowres, New sweetned with the dash of swilight showres Ariv's Or pounded Amber, or the flowring Thyme, thine Or purple Violets, in their proudest prime, Orfwelling Clusters, from the Cypreffe tree? ofweet's my Loye; I, far more fweet is He: befaire, fo fweet, that heavens bright eye is dim, and flowers have no lent, compar'd with Him. IDL

.

ec:

pliu

e;

Sions Sonets.

BRIDEGROOME.

SONET IIII.

Thos, the joyes of my fuffiled heart, (are The more thou think it me fair, the more thou Looke in the Crystall mirrours of mine eyes, And view thy beauty where thy beauty lyes: See there, th'uhmated glory of thy Face, Well mixt with Spirit; and divinest grace; The eyes of Dovos, are not so faire, as * thine: O, how those eyes, inflame these eyes of mine! * The boly Prophets.

BRIDE.

Most radiant, and refulgent Lampe of light, Whole midday beauty, yet no re found a night, 'Tis thou,' tis onely thou art faire; from Thee Reflect thole 'rayes, that have enlightned mee, And as bright Cyalha's borrow'd beames doe shine From Titan's glorie, so doe I, from thine; So daily flourishes our fresh delight, In daily 'giving, and receiving light.

Thy beb Spirit. 'In giving green and receiving glar,

Or does thy glory fine to me alone;
What place, wherein thy glory hath not flow
But O, how fragrant with rich odour, finells
That lacted House, where thou my true Love
The Congregation of Saints.
(dwelf)

No

My

The

Is n

My

Yet

IfI No

Sot

Liv

And

The

So f

Inp

Nor is it ftrange; How can those places bee But fill'd with sweetnesse, if possess with Thee! My heart's a Heaven, for thou art in that heart, Thy presence makes a Heaven, where e're thou art.

BRIDEGROOME.

Thou foveraigne Lady of my select desires, I,I am He, whom thy chast soule admires; The Rose, for smell, the Lilly to the eye, Is not so sweet, is not so faire as I; My vailed beautie's not the glorious prize of common sight; within, my beauty lies; Yetne rethelesse, my glory were but small, Is should want, to honour thee withall.

*Not in outward glorie. *In invard graces.

2.

Nor doe I boast my Excellence alone, (none But thine (dear spouse) as who, the world hath sotrue to faith, so pure in love, as whom Lives not a Bride, so fits so thaste a Grome; And as the fairest Lilly doth exceede The fruitlesse Bramble, or the soulest weede, so farre (my Love) dost thou exceed the rest, in perfect beauty of a loyall brest.

BRIDE. SONET VII.

Ooke how the fruitful tree (whose lade boughs With swelling pride, crown Autumnes smiling (brows)

T 3

Surpaties

he, night

nee,

thine

Surpafies idle thrubs; even so in worth,
My love transcends the Worthles of the earth;
He was my shore, in shipwracke; and my shelter,
In stormes; my shade, when I began to swelter;
If hungry, he was Food; and if opprest
With wrongs, my Advocate; with toile, my Resp

1

Thirsted; and, full charged to the brinke, He gave me * bowles of Nectar, for my drinke, And in his Sides, he broacht me (for a figne Ofdearest love) a Sacramentall wine; He freely gave, I freely dranke my fill; The more I dranke, the more remained still: Did never Souldier, to his Colours prove More chaste, then I, to so entire a Love.

3

How his beautie fets my soule on fire!

My spirits languish, with extreame defire;
Defires, exceeding limits, are too lavish,
And wanting meanes to be effected, ravish;
Then let thy breath, like flaggons of strong wint,
Releeve and comfort this poore heart of mine;
For I am ficke, till time (that doth delay
Our Mariage) bring our joyfull Mariage day.
Thy sweet Promises

activity of their boughts

Surpalies

entimient of the proper

4. Till

Perf

Blef

In hi Deb

I ch

Tof

* D

Hin Dan You

* 71

Iki

Bel

Ca

Bel

He • I 4.

Till then, O let my dearest Lord, by whom,
These pleasing paines of my sweet forrowes Performe his vowes, and with his due resort, (come Blesse me, to make the sullen time seems short:
In his sweet presence, may I still be bless,
Debarr'd from whom, my soule can find no rest;
O let all times be prosp rous, and all places
Be witnesse to our undefil'd Embraces.

5.

A Ll you, whose seeming savours have profest The true affection of a loyall brest, I charge you all, by the true love you beare To friendship, or what else ye count most deare, Disturbe ye not my Love; O doe not reive Him of his joyes, that is so apt to grieve; Dare not to breake his quiet slumbers, lest You rowze a raging Lion from his rest.

*Vexe not bu Spirit with your sames.

6

Harke, hark, I heare that thrice-celestial voyce
Wherein my spirits, rapt with joyes, rejoyce;
A voice, that tells me, my beloved's nie;
Iknow the Musicke, by the Majestie:
Behold he comes; Tis not my blemisht face,
Can slake the swiftnesse of his winged pace;
Behold he comes; His Trumpet doth proclame,
He comes with speed; A truer love ne're came.

The impersations of my present state.

4 7. Behold

h:

T;

Reft

ike.

Behold the fleetnesse of his nimble sect;
The Roc-Bucke, & the Hart were ne're so seen.
The word I spake, flue not so speedie from me,
As He, the treasure of my soule comes to me;
He stands behind my wall, as if in doubt
Of welcome; Ah, this * Wall debarres him out;
O, how injurious is this Wall of sin,
That barres my Lover out, and bolts me in !
* The weskess of my steff.

The BRIDE in the person of the BRIDEGROOME.

SONET VIII.

Arke, harke, me thinks I heare my true love say
Break down that envious barre, & come away,
Arise (my dearest Spouse) and dispossesses
Thy soule of doubtfull feares, nor over-press
Thy tender spirits, with the dull despaire
Of thy demerits: (Love) thou art as faire,
As earth will suffer; Time will make thee clearer,
Come forth (my love) the who, my life's not dearer

2

Ome forth (my joy;) what bold affront of feare Can fright thy foule, and I, thy champio, here? 'Tis I that calls,' tis I, thy Bridegroome, calls thee, Betide it me, what ever evill befalls thee: The winter of thy sharpe Affliction's gone; Why sear'st thou cold, and art so nere the Sunne? Com

Their Most The Warb

The

THE hafque Difer The come

M Offor Refer lam thy Sunne; if thou be cold, draw nearer; (rem Come forth (my Love) then who my life's notides Ome forth (my dear) the spring of joies invite The "flowers contend for beauty to delight their fweet ambition's only, which might be (thee Noft fweet, most faire, because most like to thee; The Birds (fweet Heralds of fo fweet a Spring) Warble high notes, and Hymeneans fing; All fing, with joy, t'injoy fo fwect a Hearer; And Come forth (my love) the who my life's not dearer. ' The Elect. * Angels.

e fay THe prosp'rous * Vine, which this deare had did Tenders due service to so swect a Saint: (plant Her hidden Clusters swell with facred pride, To * kiffe the lips of fo, fo faire a Bride; Mafqu'd in their leafes, they lurke, fearing to be Diferyde by any, till first feene by Thee; The clouds are past; the heavens cannot be clearer Come forth dear love the who my life's not dearer the Congregation of the faithfull. * To offer up the firt fruits of obedience.

MY Dove, who daily dangers teach new thifts, That like a Dove, do'ft haunt the fecret clifts Offolitary Rocks; How e're thou be lefery'd from others, be not ftrange to me, Perfecutions.

Call

fleet;

ways arer;

arer

care

ere? hee,

ie?

Call me to refcue, and this brawnic Arme
Shall quel thy Foe, and fence thy foule, fro ham Speak(Love,) Thy voice is sweet; what if thy for
Be drencht with tears? Each teare's a several grae

A Llyou, that wish prosperity, and peace,
To crowne our Contract, with a long encre
Of future joyes, O shield my simple Love
From those that seeke her ruine; and remove
The base Opposers of her best designes;
Destroy those Foxes, that destroy her Vines;
Her Vines are fruitfull, but her tender grapes
Are spoil'd by Foxes, clad in humane shapes.

The BRIDE in her owne person.

Hat greater joy can blefs my foul, the the That my Beloved's mine, and I am His! Our foules are knit; the world cannot untwine The joyfull union of His heart, and Mine; In Him, I live; in Him, my foule's possest with heavenly solace, and eternall rest: Heaven onely knowes the bliffe, my soule enjoyer Fond earth's too dull, to apprehend such joyes.

Thou sweet perfection of my full delights, Till that bright Day, devoted to the rites Of our solemniz d Nuptialls, shall come, Come live with me, & make this heart, thy Home. The day of judgement.

Difdaine

The By

Wi

1 tho

His g

For (

But h

MP

Of

Sogi

No fe

I ask

Lask

Ann

billaine me not : Although my face appeare Deform'd and clowdie, yet my heart is * cleare; Make hafte : Let not the fwift-foot Roe-bucke flee I grace The following Hounds fo faft, as thou to mee. By landlification.

Thought my Love had taken up his reft, Within the * fecret Cabin of my breft : thought the closed curtaines did immure His gentle flumbers, but was too fecure; For (driven with leve) to the falle bed I * ftept, To view his flumbring beauty, as he flept, But he was gone; yet plainly there was feene The curious dint, where he had lately beene. In my foule. * By firid examination.

Mpatient of his absence, thus bereaven Ofhim, then whom, I had no other heaven, Irav'd a while; not able to digeft Sogreat a loffe, to lofe fo faire a Gueft : Heft no path untrac'd; no * place unfought; No secret Cell unsearcht; no way unthought; lask'd the shade, but shadowes could not hide him; lask'd the World, but all the World denyde him. Amongst the wifest worldlings.

Y jealous Love, distemp'red with diffraction, Made fierce with feare, unapt for fatisfaction, Applyes freih fuell, to my flaming fires, lpplyes frein ruen, to my With Eagles wings supplyes my quicke destres, Vp han ncre

Ċ

es

.

hedi

His!

joya

cs.

lome (dai

e hy fac

Vp to the walls I rambled, where I spyde?
The * City watch, to whom with teares, I cryde,
Ah gentle Watchmen, you aloft descry
What's darke to us, Did not my Love passe by ?
*The Ministers of the word.

8

AT légth, whe dull despaire had gain'd the groud Of tyred hopes, my Faith fell in a swound; But He, whose sympathizing heart did fin d The tyrant passion, of my troubled mind, Forthwith appear'd; What Angels tongue canler The world conceive our pleasures, when we met? And till the joyes of our espoused hearts Be made 'copleat, the world ne re more shall part, "At the Resurredien.

BRIDEGROOME.

SONET X.

Nowrests my Love: Till now, her render brest Wanting her joy, could finde no peace, no rest: I charge you all, by the true love, you beare To friendship, or what else you count most deare, Disturbe her not, but lether sleepe her fill; I charge you all, upon your lifes, be still: O, may that labring soule, that lives opprest For me; in me, receive eternall rest.

2

Hat curious face is this? what mortal birth Can show a beauty, thus "unstayn'd with Tirongh fantlification by my merits. (earth

tis m

How o

Adde

Set, b

Sothi

OFF

But h

Who Vani A gre what glorious Angell wanders thus alone, from earths fould Dungeon, to my Fathers thronel tis my Love; my fove that both denyde
The world, for one; It is my faired Bride;
How fragrant is her breath! How heavenly faire
Her Angell face! Each glorifying the Aire, and BRIDE.

SONET XI.

How I'm." ravious with evernall bliffe!

Who e'te thought heave a joy copar'd to this?

How doe the pleasures of his glotious Face

Adde glarie to the glory of this place!

See, how Kings Courts surmont poore Shepheards

So this, the pride of Solomon excells;

Rich wreathes of glory crowne his toyall Hoad,

Add troopes of Angels waite upon his Bed.

'a) be, von green pation.

to novical friend as off is Mariage day

The Court of Princely Solumon was guarded
With able ment at armes; their faith rewarded
With fading honours, subject to the fate
Of Fortune, and the jealous frownes of State;
But here the hatmonious quite of heaven attend,
Whose prize is glory, glory without end,
Vanitat with doubtings, or degenerous feare;
A greater Prince; then Solumon is fiere.

A greater Prince; then Solumon is fiere.

then Salasson is here

THe Bridall bed of Princely Solomon, (Whole beauty amaz'd the greedy lookers on, While

inlet net breft

reft:

Which all the world admired to behold)
Was but of Cedar, and her Sted of gold;
Her Pillars filver, and her Canopie
Of filkes, but richly Rayn'd with purple die;
Her Curtaines wrought in works, works rarely le
By th'neodl's art; fuch was the bridall bed.

S'Vch was the bridall bed, which Time, or Age
Durft never warrant from th' opprobrious rage
Of envious fate; Earths measure's but a minit;
Earth fades; all fades upon it; all within it;
O,but the glorie' of this diviner place;
No Age can injure, not yet Time defage;
Too bright an object, for weake eyes to bide,
Or tongues t'expresse: Who ever saw't, but dyder

Ho e're beheld the royall Crowne, fer of The nupriall browes of Princely Selement
His glorious pompe, whose honour did display
The aoysed Triumphs of his Mariage day?
A greater Prince, then Selement, is here,
The beauty of whose Nuprials, shall appeare
More glorious farre, transcending his, as farre
As heavens bright tamp out-saines, th'obscurest sha

BRIDEGROOME.

oriz bring or

How darke's the glorie of the earth, to thine!
The vailed "eyes out-thine heavens greater light,
Vnconquer'd by the shadie Cloud of night;
"Through the rifts of my Spirit. "The modelite and a rift of the judgment.

Vhose

L'ha

Pholo

oc A

The n

Alha

Dad Sain hy curious. Treffes dangle, all unbound inh unaffected order, to the ground: hworient is thy beautie! How divine! hw darke's the glory of the earth, to thine I braments of necessary ceremonies.

2.

Thy Ivorie "Teeth in whitenesse doe out-goe The downe of Swans, or Winters driven snowe whose even proportions lively represent h'harmonious Musicke of unite consent, whose perfect whitenesse, Time could never blot, for Age (the Canker of destruction) rot: ow orient is thy beautie! How divine! ow darke's the glory of the earth, to thine!

The rubie Portalls of thy ballanc'd * words,
Send forth a welcome relift, which affords beaven of bliffe, and makes the earth rejoyee, to heare the Accent of thy heavenly voyce;
the maiden blufhes of thy * Cheekes, proclame hame of guilt, but not a guilt of finame:
How orient is thy beauty! How divine!
fow darke's the glorie of the earth, to thine!
Detrine of thy boly Prophets, * Modefit graces of the Spirit.

•

Thy * necke (unbeautify de with borrow'd grace) is whiter then the Lillies of thy face, whiter may; for beauty, and for powre, The like the glorie of David princely Towre; Marifrates.

Wha

TB

Age

t;

rage

What vallall spirit could despaire, or faint, 100 (Nost How orient is thy beauty ! How divine ! Thou How darke's the glorie of the earth, to Thine for Much

The deare-bought fruit of that forbidden Tree Was not fo dainty, as thy Apples bee, Thefe curious Apples of thy fnowy * brefts, Wherein a Paradife of pleafure refts; They breath fuch life into the ravisht " Eye, Whe That the inflam'd beholder, cannot dye: and No for How orient is thy beautie! How divine! And North How darke's the glory of the earth, to Thine! * The old and new Testaments. * The fandified and " I'le : lous reader. * Ibe fecond death.

MY dearest Spouse, I'le " hye me to my home, And till that long-expected " Day shal come The light wherof, that chace the night, that through Thy vailed beauty, in these envious * clouds; Till then, I goe, and in my Throne, provide A glorious welcome, for my faireft Bride; Chapplets of conquiring Palme, & Lawrel bon Shall crown thy Temples, and adorne thy brown I will withdraw my bodily prefence. * The day of jud " Infirmities of the fleft. with borrow d grace)

Tould bequey fain be flatter'd with a gra She never had May the behold thy face Envie would burft, had she no other taske, Then to behold this face without a maske;

No

T'le c

Th

TLlu

Ma

Have

Tran

The

Hath

The

Meo

Th

No spot, no venial blemish could she finde,
To feed the famine of her rane'rous minde;
Thou art the flowre of beauties Crowne, & they're Much worse then soule, that thinke thee less then (fayre.

8.

Eare not (my Love) for when those facred bands, I'le come, and quit thee from this tedious * pace, where thou art fore d to so journe for a space; No forrein Angle of the utmost Lands, Nor seas Abyste shall hide thee from my bands; No night shall shade thee from my curious eye, I'le rouze the graves, although grim death stand by This bale of misery.

9.

[Llustrious beames shot from thy flaming * eye, Made sterce with zeale, and soveraigne Majestie Have scorcht my soule, and like a stery dare Transfixe the Center of my wounded heart; The Virgin sweetnesse of thy heavenly grace Hath made mine eyes glad priseners to thy sace; The beautic of thine eye-balls hath bereft here my heart; O sweet, O sacred thest I think eye of Taith.

10.

Thou, the deare Inflamer of mine eyes, Life of my foule, and hearts eternall prize, V

Tree

How delectable is thy love! How pure! How apt to ravish, able to allure A frozen foule, and with thy fecret fire, T'affect dull spirits with extreame defire! How do thy joyes (though in their greatest dearth) Transcend the proudest pleasures of the earth!

II.

T'Hy lips (my dearest spouse) are the ful treasure Of facred * Poefie, whose heavenly measures Ravish with joy the willing heart, that heares, But ftrike a deafnesse in rebellious eares : Thy words, like Milke and Honic, doe requite The feafon'd foule, with profit and delight : Heavens higher Palace, and those lower places Of dungeon-earth are sweetned with thy graces, * Divine barmenie.

12.

Y Love is like a Garden, full of flowres, Whose sunny banks, & choice of shady bowre Give change of pleafures, pleafures wall'd about With armed Angels, to keepe Ruinc out; And from her * brefts * (enclosed from the ill Of loofer eyes) pure * Cryftall drops diftill, The fruitfull sweetnesse of whose gentle showres Inrich her flowres with beautie', & baks we's flown * The two Testaments. * Riddles to prophane Readen. * Celefliall comforts.

ned a clamaner of mine cycs,

Witte of my for le, and hears eremail prise

Th Th My

Da

Spi

Ho Th

Ho Wi

Ot

Inf

Rec Fre

Thy

13.

My Love is like a Paradife befet
With rateft grifts, whose fruits (but teder yet)
The world nere tasted, dainties farre more rare
Then Edeas tempting Apple, and more faire:
Myrrhe, Alloes, Incense, and the Cypresse tree
Can boast no sweetnesse, but is breath'd from thee;
Dainties, for tast and slowers, for the smell (cell.
Spring all from Thee, whose sweets, all sweets ex-

BRIDE.

SOMET XIII.

O Thou (my deare) whose sweets, all sweets ex-From whom my fruits receive their tast, their How can my thriving "plants results to grow (smel Thus quickned with to sweet a "Sun as thou? How can my flowers, which thy Ewers nourish With showers of living waters, choose but flourish? O thou, the Spring, as whence these waters but, Did ever any taste thy streames, and thurs?? "The fanly all." I be Sanne of ris wannels.

A M I a Garden? May my flowers be A So highly honour d to be finelt by Thee;
Infpire them with thy lacred breath, and then Receive from them, thy borrowed breath agen;
Frequent thy Garden, whole rare fruit invites Thy welcome prefence, to his choise Delights;

V 2

Tafte

rth

fures ires

art

TC3

OWIT

aden.

90%

Taste where thou list, and take thy full repaste, Here's that will please thy smel, thine eye, thy taste

BRIDEGROOME.

Thou facred Center of my foule, in whome I reft, behold thy witht-for Love is come; Refresht with thy delights, I have repasted Vpon thy * pleasures; my full foule hath tasted Thy * rip ned dainties, and hath freely beene Pleas'd with those fruits, that are(as yet) but * green All you that love the honour of my Bride, Come taste her Vyands, and be diefide.

* Obedience. * Strong works of Faith. * The new fruits of the Spirit.

BRIDE.

IT was a "night, a night as darke, as foule,
As that blacke Errour, that entrane'd my Soule,
When as my best beloved came and knockt
At my "dull gates, too too fecurely lockt;
Vnbolt (faid he) these churlish doores (my Dove,)
Let not faile "slumbers bribe thee from thy love;
Heare him, that for thy gentle sake came hither,
Long injur'd by this "nights ungentle weather.
"Too much securitie. "My bears. "The pteasures of the Flesh. "Thy bard bearted unfinduration."

cleems pretence, to his challe Deligh

3.I lo

To

An

Per

To

Hig My No

He

To So

Ha

Th

Bu

My

W

2.

Heard the voice; but the perfidious pleasure
Of my sweet sumbers, could not find the leasure
To ope my drowsie doores; My spirit could speake
Words faire enough; but ah, my flesh was weake,
And fond excuses taught me to betray
My sacred vowes to a secure delay;
Perfidious slumbers, how have you the might
To blind true Pleasures, with a false delight!

3.

Hen as my Love, with oft repeated knocks
Could not availe, shaking his dewy locks,
Highly displeas'd, he could no longer bide
My sleight negled, but went away denyde;
No sooner gone, but my dull sould discern'd
Her drow zie error; my griv'd spirit "yearn'd
To find him out; these seiled eyes that slept
So soundly fast, awak'd, nuch safter wept."
* Repeated.

4

Thus rays'd, and rowz'd from my deceitfull reft, I op'd my doores, where my departed Guest Had beene; I thrust the churlish Portals from me That so denyde my dearest Bridegroome to me; But when I smelt of my returned hand, My soulc was rapt, my powers all did stand Amazed at the "sweetnesse they did sinde, Which my neglected Love had lese behind." The sweetnesse of his graces.

V 3

taffe

cen

ule,

;,) e;

s of

.I

5.

Op'd my doore, my Myrrhe-diffilling doore, But ah, my Gueft was gone, had given me o're: What curious Pen, what Artift can define A mateleffe fortow, Such, ah, fuch was mine; Doubts, and despaire had of my life depriv'd me, Had not fireing hope of his returne reviv'd me, I sought, burne refused to appeare; I call'd, but he would not be heard, nor heare.

6

Thus, with the Tyrannie of griefe distraught,
I ranged around, no place I left unfought,
No eare unasted, The ! Warehmen of the Citie
Wounded my foule, without remorfe or pitie
To Virgin teares; They taught my feet to stray, Whose steps were apt enough to lose their way;
With raunts & seomes they checkt me, and derided
And call'd me Whoore, because I walkt, unguided.
False teachers. With their faise dostrines.

7

You hallowed Virgins, you, whose tender hears

Ere selt th'impression of "loves secret darts,
I charge you all, by the deare faith you owe
To Virgin purenesse, and your Vestall vow,
Commend are to my Love, if ere you meet him,
O tell him that his love-sick spouse doth greet him
O let him know, I languish with desire
T'enjoy that heart, that sets this heart on fire.
Divine love.

VIRGINS.

XUM

Ango

Say,

The

At the

Vnp

His

The The Vpc

Ti

Wh

His

AN

VIRGINS. SONET XVI.

Of Thou the fairest flowre of mortall birth,
If such a beautie may be borne of earth,
Angell or Virgin, which? or both in one,
Angell by beautie, Virgin by thy mone,
Say, who is He that may deserve these teares,
These precious drops? Who is t can stop his eares
At these faire lips? Speake Lady, speake at large,
Who is t? For whom giv'st thou so strict a Charge?

BRIDE. SONET XVII.

MY Love is the perfection of delight,
Rofes, and Doves are not fored, fo white;
Vnpatternd beauty fummon'd every grace
To the composure of fo sweet a face;
His body is a Heaven, for in his breft,
The perfect Effence of a God doth reft;
The brighter eye of heaven did never thine
Vpon another glorie, fo divinc.

Tis * Head is farre more glorious, to behold,
Then fruitfull Ophyres oft refined gold,
'Tis the rich Magazen of secret treasure,
Whence Graces spring in unconfined measure;
His curl'd and dangling * Tresses doe proclame
A Nazante, on whom ne're Rasor came,
"His Dietie. * Hus Humanitie.

V 4

Whofe

S.

led rits

Whose Raven-blacke colour gives a curious rellia which To that, which beauty did so much imbellish.

Whof Full o Ike to the eyes of Doves are his faire * eyes. Wherein sterne Iustice, mixt with Mercy, lyes His f His eyes are simple, yet Majesticall, In motion nimble, and yet chaste withall, Flaming like fier, and yet burne they not, Vnblemifit, undiftayned with a spot, Blazing with precious beames, and, to behold, Like two rich Diamonds in a frame of gold. * His judgements and care of his Church.

I-Is * cheeks are like two fruitful beds o're-grown With Aromatick flowers newly blowne, Whose odours, beauty, please the smell, the fight, And doubling pleasures, double the delight : His * lips are like a Crystall spring, from whence Flow sweetned streames of facred Eloquence, Whose drops into the eare distill'd, doe give Life to * the dead, true joyes to * them that live.

The discovery of bim in butword. * His promises. Those that die to finne. * That live to righteonfneffe.

HIs "hads are deckt with rings of * gold, the rings With coffly Icwels, fitting none but Kings. * His actions. * With pureneffe.

Which

More : lis * P With '

Like

0, W Vpon

Has

From Apo rellif which (of themselves though glorious, yet) receive fore glorie from those fingers, then they gave, "Breaft's like Ivorie, circled round about With * veines, like Saphyres, winding in and out, Whose beautie is (though darkned from the eye) all of divine, and secret Majestie. His fecret counfells, * Imparally glorious,

Ils " Legs like pureft Marble, trong and white, Of curious shape, (though quicke) unapt for His Feet (as gold that's oft refined) are Like his upright proceedings, pure and faire; His * Port is Princely, and his Stature tall, and, like the Cedar, flout, yet sweet withall: 0, who would not repose his life, his bliffe, Vpon a Base so faire, so firme as this? His wayes con flant, firme, and pure. * His whole carriage.

Is Mouth!but stay; what need my lips be lavish In choice of words, when one alone wil ravish? But shall, in briefe, my ruder tongue discover The speaking Image of my absent Lover? Then let the curious hand of Art refine The race of Vertues morall, and divine, From whence, by heaven let there extracted be Aperfect Quinteffence; Even fuch is He.

BRIDE.

ycs.

,lyes;

IWO

ht, ce

5.

ngs

ich

VIRGINS. SONET XVIII.

Thrice fairer than the fairest, whose sad teares, And fmiling words, have charm'd our eyes, Say, whither is this prize of beauty gone, (care, More faire than kinde, to let thee weepe alone? Thy tempting lips have whet our dull defire, And till we fee Him, we are all on fire : Wee'll finde him out, if thou wilt be our guide: The next way to the Bridegroome, is the " Brue. " The Church is the may to christ.

BRIDE.

SONET XIX.

IF errour lead not my dull thoughts amiffe, My Genius tells me, where my true Love is; He's busie lab'ring on his flowry * banks, * Inspiring sweetnesse, and * receiving thanks, Watring those plants, whose tender roots are "dry And pruning fuch, whose Crefts aspire * too high Transplanting, grafting, reaping fruits from some And covering others, that are * newly come.

* Congregation of the faithfull. * Giving graces. cerving glory. * Despairing soules. * Not yet there bumbled. * Strengtbning the weake in fpirit.

WHat if the frailty of my feebler part, Lockt up the Portalls of my drowsie heart?

Hy

Có

Vhose

aleve

The for he fir

TO W ow da

XUM

tisowes the weaknesse of the slesh incumbers hamvilling spirit, with sense-bereaving slumbers, ybopes assure me, in despight of this, sumy Beloved's mine, and I am his: ybopes are firme (which time shall ne're remove) in Hee is mine, by Faith; I, His, by loue.

BRIDEGROOME.

res.

es,

(can de:

XUM

Thy timely griefe, (my teares-baptized Love)
Copels mine ears to heare; thy teares, to move;
by blubber'd beauty, to mine eye appeares bet bright then 'twas: Such is the firength of cautie, and Terror, meeting in thine eye, (teares:
twe made thy face the Throne of Majestie, fole awfull beames, the proudest heart will move alove for feare, untill it feare for love.
In face of Repentance.

2.

Epresse those flames, that furnace from thine They ravish with too bright a Tyranny; (eye, by fires are too too fierce: O turne them from me hey pierce my soule, & with their rayes o recome fit curious. Tresses dangle, all unbound (me. in unaffected order, to the ground; in writer is thy beautie! How divine!

3. Thy

THy Ivory * Teeth in whitenesse doe out-goe The downe of Swans, or Winters driven fnowe Whose even proportions lively represent Th'harmonious Musicke of unite consent, Whose perfect whitenesse, Time could never blot, Nor Age (the envious Worme of Ruine) rot: How orient is thy beauty! How divine! How darke's the glorie of the earth, to thine! * Sincere Ministers.

Thy * Temples, are the Temples of chast love, Where beauty facrific'd her milke-white Dove, Vpon whose Azure pathes, are alwayes found The heaven-borne Graces dauncing in a round: Thy maiden * Blushes gently doe proclame Whofe A shame of guilt, but not a guilt of thame: thar ! How orient is thy beauty! How divine! How darke's the glory of the earth, to thine! the fr Thy visible parts. * Modestie, and zeale.

Ou, you brave spirits, whose emperial hand I Enforces, what your lookes cannot command, Bring forth your pamper'd Queenes, the luftfull And curious wrecks of your imperious eyes; (print Surround the Circle of the earth, and levie The fairest Virgins in loves fairest bevic, Then take from each, to make one perfect Grace, Yet would my Love out-shine that borrow'd face

I thou

Thou

Thou

hene hall hevi

and ft

lave f heir 1

*The Vbo,1 idera

pon '

CAi

W

Phic

Vy lo ad b

To Sim

to fee

Orife

6

Thou art she, corrivalld with no other,
Thou glorious Daughter of thy glorious Mother hency trusfile, whose virgin-birth hall deishe the 'Virgins of the earth:
he virgins of the earth have seene thy beautie, mod stood amaz'd, and in a prostrate dutie he such to kille thy hand, making thine eyes heir Lamps to light them, til the Bridegroom rife.
'The pure in hears.

7

Arke, how the virgins hallow'd with thy fire, And wonder-smirten with thy beames, admire. Tho, who is this (say they) whose checkes resemble there's blush, whose eye heavens lights dissemble a hose face is brighter then the filent Lampe far lights the earth, to breathe her nightly damp; you whose brow sits dreadfull Majestie, he frowne whereof commands a victoric,

8

Aire Bride, why was thy troubled fould dejected When I was abfent? was my faith suspected, which I so firmly plighted? Couldst thou thinke by love could shake, or such a Vow could shrinke? I lid but walke among my tender Plants, so smell their Odours, and supply their wants, so see my Stockes, so lately grifted, sprout, of smy vines began to burgen out.

9. Though fnow

rblot,

: !

ve,

d

Dove

nd:

nd

ind ull

prize

ce,

CE

thou

Hough gone was I, * my heart was in thy be Although to thee (perchace) an unknown go Twas that, that gave fuch wings to thy defire, T'enjoy thy love, and fer thy foule on fire; But my returne was quicke, and with a mind More nimble (yet more conftant) then the wind I came; and as the winged thaft doth flie With undiscerned speed; Even so did I. * My Spirit.

IO.

Eturne, (O then returne) thou child of Per wher To thy first joyes, O let thy reares surceals Returne thee to thy Love; let not the * night With flatt'ring * flumbers, tempt thy true delig Returne thee to my bosome, let my breft Bee still thy Tent; Take there eternall reft; Returne, O Thou, in whose enchaunted eye, Are Darts enough, to make an army flye. * Securitie, * Worldly pleasures.

II.

Aire Daughter of the highest King, how sweet Their Are th'unaffected graces of thy * Feet! From every Rep, true Majeftie doth fpring, Fitting the Daughter of fo high a King : Thy Wast is circled with a " Virgin Zone, Imbellisht round with many a precious " Stone," Thy " Thy mages. "The girdle of Trath. "The procious of the Spirit.

Where

he ut

THY

Re

like oflivi

Ofpur Vieh I Whole

H)

the ne

The he

And m

The (

In Mag herein the curious Workman did fulfill beutmost glory of his Diviner skill.

11.

THy * Navell, where thy holy Embrion dorh Receive fweet nourishment, and heavenly wind, like a Crystal spring, whose fresh supply (growth offiving waters, Sunne, nor Drought can dry:

hy *fruitfull Wombe is like a winnow'd heape
Of pureft graine, which heaves blest hand did reap, With Lillies fenc'd: True Embleme of rare treasure Whose graine denotes increase; whose Lillies, pleaof Pet whereby there is a receipt of firstual Conceptions. * Increase of the faithfull;

13.

THy dainty * Brefts, are like faire Twins, both In equall Majestie; in hue excelling (swelling The new-falne fnow upon th'untrodde mountains, from whence there flowes, as from exub'rous foun-Rivers of heavenly Nedlar, to allay The holy thirst of Soules: Thrice happy they, And more then thrice, whose bleft affections bring fived Their thirftie palats to fo fweet a Spring. The Old and New Testament.

14.

ne, Thy " Necke doth represent an Ivory Tower, In perfect purenelle, and munited power, Magiftrases.

Thine

here

re, nd is ceale:

he clie Thine * Eyes (like pooles at a frequented gate For every commer, to draw water at) Are common treasures, and like christall glasses, Showes each his lively vifage, as he passes. Thy * Nose, the curious Organ of thy Sent, Wants nothing more, for use, for ornament. * Teachers, * Giorious in all parts.

15.

THy Tyres of gold (inricht with glorious gemt So fu Rare Diamonds, and princely Diadems) Adorne thy browes, and with their native worth Advance thy glory', and fet thy beauty forth: So perfect are thy Graces, fo divine, And full of heaven, are those faire lookes of thine, That I'm inflamed with the double fire Of thy full beauty, and my fierce defire. * The Ceremonies of the Church.

Sacred Simetrie! O rare connexion Ofmany Perfects, to make one Perfection! O heavenly Musicke, where all parts do meet In one fweet straine, to make one perfect Sweet O glorious Members, whose each severall feature Divine, compose so, so divine a Creature! Faire soule, as all thy parts united be Entire, fo fumm'd are all my joyes in thec. configntant Ivory Tower,

. roweg Lasinon ber.

17. Thurfiri

In fp

Whe Thy

My Are !

Art t

Thy

Thy

Pre And : Tota Def

Thy b

ncen and p enidT

17.

T'Hy curious Fabricke, and erected flature I Is like the generous Palme, whose lofty nature In fpight of envious violence, will aspire, When most supprest, the more it mouts the higher: Thy lovely Brefts, (whose beauty reinvites My oft remembrance to her oft delights) Are like the swelling Clusters of the vine; geme So full of fweetnesse are those brests of thine.

ARt thou my Palme > My busie hand shall nourish Thy fruitful roots, & make thy braches flourish: Art thou my Vine? my skilfull arme fhall dreffe Thy * dying Plants my living springs shall bleffe Thy * infant Buds; my blafting breath shall quell Prefumptuous weeds, & make thy Clufters swell: And all that love thee, shall attaine the favour To tafte thy fweetnefic, and to finell thy favour. Defairing foutes. * Your Converts. * Oppofers of the Truth.

19.

THose Oracles that from thy lippes proceed, With sweet Evangels, shall delight and feed Th'attentive eare, and like the Trumpers voyce Imaze faint hearts, but make brave spirits rejoyce: Thy breath, whose Dialect is most Divine, (shine; acends quicke flames, where ember'd fparkes but Therfirikes the Pleaders Rhet'ricke with derifion, and makes the dullest Soule a Rhetorician.

> X BRIDE.

te fes,

orth 1;

hine,

on!

ect !

ture

BRIDE.

SONET XXI.

MY faith, not merits, flath and the deme, think DBe AY faith, not merits, hath affur'd thee, mine; DE Vnworthy I, whose drowse soule rejected Thy precious favours, and (secure) neglected Thy glorious presence, how am I become A Bride befitting so divine a Groome ! It is no merit, no defert of mine, Etern: Thy love, thy love alone, hath made me thine. That t

CInce then the bountie of thy deare election Hath ftyl'd me thine, ô let the fweet reflection Of thy illustrious beames, my foule inspire, And with thy Spirit, inflame my hot defire; Vnite our foules; O let thy Spirit reft And make perpetuall home within my breft; Instruct me fo, that I may gaine the skill, To fuite my fervice to thy facred will.

Ome, come (my foules preferver) thou thates Th'united joyes of my united heart, Come, let us vifit, with the morning light, Our prosp'rous * Vines ; with mutuall delight Let's view those Grapes, whose clusters being 'pr Our fr Shall make rich wines, to serve our Mariage feat With 1 That by the thriving plants it may appeare, Their Our joyes-perfecting Marriage draweth noere. * Congregation of the faithfull. * By affliction. 4. Beho

XUM

tefer

Aderr

My .

Laden

ul go

dear

Ohov How y

THe

To

luoul

*Tb

ne: DEhold, my * new disclosed Flowres present Defore thy gates, their tributary fent ; eferve themselves for Garlands, that they may Iderne the Bridegroome, on his Mariage day : My . Garden's full of . Trees, and every Tree Tiden with ' Fruit, which I devote to thee; ternall joyes betide that happy gueft, that taftes the dainties of the Bridegroomes feaft. Young Converts. * Affemblies. * Faithfull. * Faith d good workes.

Would to God mine eyes (these fainting eyes, Whose eager appetite could ne're devise Adearer object) might but once behold My Love (as I am) clad in fleshly mold, That each may corporally converse with other. Asfriend with friend; as fifter with her brother, O how mine eyes could welcome fuch a fight ! How would my foule dissolve with o're-delight !

THen should this hand conduct my fairest Spoule, To tafte a banquet at my mothers * house; g pro our fruitfull Garden should present thine eyes least, With sweet delights; her trees should sacrifice With fweet delights; her trees thould facrific their early fruits to thee , our tender Vine hould cheare thy palate with her unprest wine; * The univerfall Church.

X 3

Thy

chine

d

n hater

ht

TC.

Beho

Thy hand should teach my living Plants to thrive And fuch, as are a dying, to revive.

THen should my Soule enjoy within this brest. A holy Sabbath of eternall Reft; Then should my cause that suffers through despige Of Errour, and rude Ignorance, have right; Then should these * streames, whose tides so often Be ebb'd away, from my fuffused eyes; Then should my spirits, fill'd with heavenly mire Triumph o're Hell, and finde a Heaven on Earth * Teares and forrowes.

A LL you, that wish the bountifull encrease Of dearest pleasures, and divinest peace, I charge you all (if ought my charge may move Your tender hearts) * not to disturbe my Love; Vexe not his gentle Spirit, nor bereave Him of his joyes, that is so apt to grieve; Dare not to breake his quiet slumbers, lest You rouze a raging Lyon from his reft. * Not to vexe and erieve bu bely Spirit.

7. Ho ever lov'd, that ever lov'd as I. That for his fake renounce my selfe, deny he is The worlds best joyes, and have the world forgont y mo Who ever lov'd fo deare, as I have done?

XUM

or, C hat l

Tire

ut th ow P

Hav

TŁ

Wi thrive

breft,

cfpigl

ofte ife !

e, TC

ve;

fought my Love, and found him * lowly laid teneath the tree of Love, in whose sweet shade rested; there his eye fent forth the fire, that first enflam'd my amorous defire. * In bumility.

IO.

MY dearest Spouse, O seale me on thy heart So sure, that envious Earth may never part mird bur joyned foules; let not the world remove arth or,O,my love's not fleight, her flames are ferious Vas never Death fo powerfull, fo imperious. ly jealous zeale is a confuming fire, hat burns my foule, through feare & fierce defire.

(great, [Ires may be quencht; and flames, though ne'r fo With many drops shal faint, and lose their heat: ut these quick fires of love, the more supprest, he more they flame in my inflamed breft; low darke is Honour! how obscure and dim searths bright glory, but compar'd with Him ! low foule is Beauty! what a toyle is Pleafure! low poore is Wealth!how base a thing is Treasure!

12.

Have a * Sifter, which by thy divine (thine) And bounteous Grace, our Marriage shall make deny be is mine owne, mine onely fifter, whom regone (y mother bare, the youngest of her wombe: * The Church of the Gentiles then uncalled.

She's

Shee's yet a * childe, her beauty may improve, Her brefts are small, and yet too greene for love; When time and yeares shall adde perfection to her Say (dearest Love) what honour wilt thou do her " Vncall'd to the truth.

BRIDEGROOME.

SONET XXII.

If the befaire, and with her beauty, prove As chafte, as loyall to her virgin-Love, As thou haft beene, then in that high degree Ile honour her, as I have honour'd thee : Be she as constant to her Vestall vow, And true to her devoted faith, as thou, He crowne her head, and fill her hand with power, And give a Kingdome to her for a dower.

BRIDE. SONET XXIII.

WHen time shall ripen these her greene desires, And holy Love shall breathe her heavenly fire Into her virgin-breft, her heart shall be As true to love, as I am true to thee : O, when thy boundlesse bountie shall conjoyne Her equall-glorious Majesty, with mine, My joyes are perfect; then, in facred bands Wedlocke shall couple our espoused hands.

> Divul BRIDE

Who

The V His G

His V Of his

Corru And a

Byth

My fel My pr

snot

Are fa

Olet

* lu

BRIDEGROOME. SONET XXIIII.

Am thy Gard'ner, Thou my fruitfull Vine, Whose rip'ned clusters swell with richest Wine; The Vines of Solomon were not fo faire, His Grapes were not so pretious, as thine are; His Vines were subject to the vulgar will Of hired hands, and mercinary skill; Corrupted Carles were merrie with his Vines, And at a price, returnd their barter'd wines.

D Vt mine's a Vineyard, which no ruder hand wer, Dshall touch, subjected to my fole command; My felfe, with this laborious arme, will dreffe it, My presence with a busic eye shall blesse it; O Princely Solomon, thy thriving Vine a not fo faire, fo bountifull as mine; Thy greedy sharers clame an earned hire, but mine's refery'd, and to my felfe entire. y fires

3.

Thou, that dwelleft where th'eternall fame Of my renowne so glorifies my name, Illustrious Bride, in whose celestiall tongue, are facred Spels t'enchant the ruder throng; O let thy lips, like a perpetuall story Divulge my graces, and declare my glory; 1 Inthe great Congregation.

Dire&

res,

10

c, ve: to her o her

Direct those hearts, that Errour leads aftray, Diffolve the "Waxe, but make obdure the " Clay.

" The penitent. " The profumpt none.

BRIDE.

SONET XXV.

Moft glorious Love, and honourable Lord, My heart's the vowed fervant of thy Word, But I am weake, and as a tender Vine, Shall fall, unpropt by that deare hand of thine: Affift me therefore that I may fulfill What thou commandst, and then command thy wo O leave thy facred Spirit in my brest, As carnest of an everlasting Rest.

The end.

В

SIONS ELEGIES.

VVept BY FEREMIE

THE PROPHET.

And

PERIPHRASD

By

FRA: QVARLES.

Printed by MILES FLESHER.
1630.

XUM

ord, Vord

thy w

THE latio

peer mon buc Bab Icre the ded cari

wer Lan

To the READER.

McaF the ruines of Troy, Rome, Thebes, or Carthage have beene thought a subject, worthy the imployment of more /crious Pennes, to entaile the remembrance thereof

w Posteritie, how much more worthy the paines falivelyer pen then mine, is this ancient, most true, and never enough to bee lamented desolation, and Captivitie of lerufalem; Ierufalem, the boly City of GOD; Ierusalem, the type of the Catholike Church?

After eighteene moneths siege, in the eleventh nere of Zedekiah, the ninth day of the fourth moneth, (which was the eighteenth yeere of Nebucadonozor over Babylon) the Princes of Babylon surprized and cooke this brave Citie of liquialem: prefently after which, Nabuzaradan the Generall of the Babylonian Armie commanded by Nebucadonozor) spoyled the Temple, caried away the Vessells of Gold and Silver, that were consecrated to Gods service, and the great Lavar given by King Salomon, and burned the Temple, the first day of the next moneth, which was one and twentie daies after the surprizall: 470. yeeres fixe moneths, and ten dayes after the foundation thereof; 1062. yeeres, fixe moneths, ten daies after the departure of the people out of Egypt: 1950. yeeres, fixe moneths, ten dain after the Deluge: and 3513. yeeres, fixe moneths, tenne daies after the Creation of Adam. Thus, and then, was this Citie of Ierulalem 14. ken, and for seventie yeeres, remained the level in this Captivitie: And this, in Briefe, is the ge. nerall occasion why, and the time when these La. mentations were composed. Reader, I tender w thy consideration, two things : First, the Penman : Secondly, the Art and Methode of this Threnodia. As for the first . It was penned by Ieremie the Prophet, the some of Hilkiah, Priest: and undoubtedly endighted by the Spirit of God; some thinke it was written, when the Prophet was in prison: others, when he was with Godoliah at Malpath : but whether at the one place or at the other, it is not much materiall to discourse.

Secondly, as touching the Art and Methode, it is short and concise, as being most naturall to so lamentable a subject. Cicero sayes, Lamentationes debent esse concise, & breves, quia cito lachryma exarescit, & difficile est, auditors

XUM

tore mil

eleg

wila rem

met ejul.

ture

cern

Thi

leat kept prek

lib.

dun grat arte

7 ofsb

Ori

Ch

bres

M #

L phi que liter

pres aut le ctores, in illo affectu fumma comizall: milerarionis, diutenere. The Methodis truly ter the elegious, not bound to any ordinary fet forme, but meths, wildly depending upon the Sudden Subject, that out of new griefes present; and indeed the deepest fordain rowes can not be, but distracted from all rules of ce momethod, the neglect of which, is veniall in such dam, ejulations as these, as which, in all the Scripm 14 tures, there is none so copious, none so ardent; con-Lewes urning which Gregorie Nazianzene confesses, be ge. Threnos Ieremiæ nunquam a fe siccis oculis e La ketos effe. Tet some thinke there is a Methode der to kept, but too fine and intricate, for our groffe ap-Penwebensions : touching this point, Saint Ambroso ftbis lib. 8. Epift, ad luft. faies, Demus, eas fecuned by dum artem non scripfiffe, at cerre fecundum ah,4 gratiam scripfille fatendum eft, quæ omnem Spirit artem longe Superar, and with this, I reft.

You shall observe, that the foure first Chapters with of these Lamentations cary a strict order, in the e one Originall, for every Verse throughout every all to Chapter begins with a severall letter of the Hebrew Alphabet, except the third Chapter, wherebode, in the first and every third Verse onely is tyed to Letter, and continues the Alphabet through, which forme the Prophet used, partly for Eloquence, partly for Memory Sake, meaning either literally thus, that it ongbt to be perfect as the n the 100 nen-quia udi-

ora

Alphabet, in Memories or Hieroglyphically thui, that as the Alphabet is the Radix of all words, so the miseries of the Iewes, were the combination of all miseries.

For the same Canses, I likewise here in my Periphrase, have observed the same forms, and continue the Alphabet in English, as the Prophet did in the Hebrew, destrous to bee his shadow, a much as I can.

It appeares by the stricture see of the order, that these Lamentations were Originally wrist in versity and as some thinks in Sapphicks, but many of out learned Neotericks deny, that any writings of the sewes carie, now, any direct or certaine Lawes of Poeke, though (they consesse) some ruinous Accents, here and there discovered, makes them imagine, they wrist some things in verse; but now, it seemes that Goa, in dispersing them, hath likewish dissolved, and strucke dumb their musicke. Farewell.

TO

TO

THE TRVE

THEANTHROPOS,

Iesus Christ,

THE SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD:

His Servant implores his favourable assistance.

Hou Alpha and Onega, before whom,
Things past & present, & things, yet to come,
Are all alike; O, prosper my designes,
And let thy spirit inrich my feeble lines;
Revive my passion; let mine eye behold
Those sorrowes present, which were wept of old:
Strike

y thui

rds, fo

d con.

ropbe ver/es of our simano, il

ewill Fare Strike fad my Soule, and give my pen, the art To move, and Me, an understanding heart. O, let the Accent of each word, make knowne, I mixe the Teares of Sion, with mine owne: Preserve all such, as beare true hearts to Sion; We are thy Lambes, O, be thou still our Lion.

SIONS ELEGIES

Threnodia I.

ELEG. 1.

A H griefe of Times! Ah, fable times of Griefe,
Whose torments find a voice, but no reliefe!
Are these the buildings? These the sowers & sare,
That all th'amazed Earth stood wondring at?
Is this that Citie, whose eternals Glorie,
Could find no period, for her endlesse storie?
And is she come to this? Her Buildings raz'd?
Her Towers burnt? Her Glory thus defac'd?
O sudden Change! O world of Alterations!
Shee, she that was the Prince, the Queen of Natios
See, how she lyes, of strength, of all, bereiv'd,
Now paying Tribute, which she once receiv'd.

E LE G. 2.

BEhold! her eyes, those glorious eyes, that were Like two faire Suns, in one celestiali Sphare, Whose radiant beames did, once; reflect to bright, Are now eclipsed, and have lost those light, And seeme like Ilands, about which appeares
A troubled Ocean, with a Tide of Teares;
Her servant Cities (that were once at hand,
And bow'd their servile necks to her command,)
Stand all aloofe, as strangers to her mone,
And give her leave, to spend her teares alone;
Her neighbours flatter, with a false reliefe,
And with a kisse, betray her to her griefe.

E LE G. 3.

Ompast around with Seas of briny teares,
Indab laments, distraught with double seares;
Even as the searfull Partridge, to excuse her
From the serce Gos-hawke, that too close pursues.
Falls in a Covert, and her selfe doth cover (her,
From her unequal Foe, that sits above her:
Meane while, the treason of her quicke Retrivers, Discovers novell dangers, and delivers
Her to a second seare, whose double fright
Finds safety, nor in staying, nor in slight;
Even so is sudab vext, with change of woes,
Betwixt her home-bred, and her forreine Foes.

ELEG. 4.

Did not these facred Cawsies, that are leading To Sim, late seeme pav'd, with often treading? New secret Dens, for lurking Theeves to meet, Vnprest, unlesse with facrilegious seet; Sim the Temple of the highest God, Stands desolate, her hely steps untrod;

He

A

Col

Th

Ar

Hi

To

St

W

T'

By

Th

Die

Pur

So t

Till

How

Tho

And

The

Her Altars are defac'd, her Virgin fires
Surcease, and with a stink, her snusse expires; (cries,
Her Priests have chang'd their Hymnes to sighs and Her Virgins weepe forth Rivers from their eyes;
O Sion, thou that wert the childe of mirth,
Art now the scorne, and By-word of the Earth.

ELEG. 5.

Noteas'd in power, and high Chevisance
Ofarmes, thy Tyrant foemen doe advance
Their crafty crests, He, he that was thy father, (ther
And trownd thee once with blessings, now doth gaHis troops to work thy end; him, who advanc't thee
To be Earths queen, thy fins have bent against thee
Strange spectacle of Griefe! Thy tender frie,
Whom childhood taught no language, but their cry T'expresse their infant griefe, these, wretched these
By force of childish teares, could not appease
The ruthlesse sword, which dease to all their cries,
Did drive them Captives from their mothers eles.

ELEG. 6.

Aire Virgin Sian, where (ah) where are those Pure cheekes, wherein the Lilly, and the Rose
So much contended lately for the place,
Till both compounded in thy glorious face?
How hast thou blear'd those fun-bright cies of thine
Those beames, the royall Magazens of divine
And sacred Majestic, from whose pure light,
The purblind worldlings did receive their fight,
Y 2

He

ng?

ct,

fues

(her,

ers,

Thy fearfull Princes, leave their fenceleffe towers, And flie like Harrs, before their fwift purfuers; Like light-foot Harts they flie, not knowing where, Prickt on with Famine, and distracted Feare.

ELEG. 7.

GAll'd with her griefe, lerusalem recalls
To minde her lost delights, her Festivalls, Her peacefull freedome, and full joyes, in vaine Wishing, what Earth cannot restore againe; Succour the fought, and begg'd, but none was there To give the Almes of one poore trickling teare; The scornfull lips ofher amazed Foes, Deride the griefe, of her difaftrous woes; They laugh, and lay more ample torments on her, Disdaine to looke, and yet they gaze upon her, Abuse her Altars, hate her Offerings, Prophane her Sabbaths, and her holy Things.

ELEG. 8.

HAdit thou (Ierusalem) O, had thy heart Beene loyall to his love, whose once thou wert, O, had the beames of thy unvailed eye Continu'd pure; had'ft thou beene nice, to try New pleasures, thus thy Glory ne're had wasted, Thy Walls, till now, like thy Reproach, had lafted. Thy Lovers, whose falle beauties did entice thee, Mave feene thee naked, and doe now despise thee; Drunke with thy wanton pleasures, they are fled, And forms the bouncie of thy loathed bed; Left

XUM

T

1

1

T

H

H

A

H

T

T

W

Is

Left to thy guilt (the fetvant of thy fin)
Thou sham'st to show, what once, thou glorieds in.

ELEG. 9.

Evusalem is all infected over
With Leprosie, whose filth, no shade can cover,
Puft up with pride, unmindfull of her end,
See, how she lyes, devoid of helpe, or friend.
Great Lord of Lords (whose Mercy farre transceds Thy facred Justice) whose full Hand attends
The cryes of empty Ravens, bow down thine eares,
To wretched Sion, Sion drown d in teares;
Thy Hand did plant her (Lord) she is thy Vine,
Confound her Foes; they are her foes, and thine:
Shew wonted favour to thy holy Hill,
Rebuild her walls, and love thy Sion still.

ELEG. 10.

Necs, fally bent to Dagon, now defile
Her wasted Temple, rudely they dispoile
Th'abused Altars, and so hand releeves;
Her house of prayre is turn'd a Den of theeves;
Her costly Robes, her facred treasure stands,
A willing prey to facrilegious hands,
Her Priests are slaine, and in a lukewarme slood,
Through every Channell runs the Levits blood;
The hallowed Temple of the highest GOD,
Whose purer foot-steps, were not to be trod
With unprepared seet, before her eye,
Is turn'd a Grove, for base Idolatrie.

Y 3

ELIG.

Left

rers,

ere,

acre

er,

ELEG. II.

Ingring with Death and Famine, Indeb groancs,
And to the ayre, breathes forth her ayrie moanes,
Her fainting eyes waxe dim, her cheeks grow pale,
Her wandring steps despaire to speed, and faile,
She faints, and through her trembling lips, halfe
She whilpers oft the holy name of bread: (dead,
Great G O D, let thy offended wrath surcease,
Behold thy servants, send thy servants peace,
Behold thy vasials, groveling on the dust;
Be mercifull (deare GOD) as well as just;
'Tis thou, 'tis thou alone, that send reliefe.'
Tis thou, 'tis thou alone, can send reliefe.

ELEG. 12.

My tongu's in labour with her painfull birth,
That finds no passage; Lord, how strange a dearth
Of words, concomitates a world of woes!
I neither can conceale, nor yet disclose:
You weary Pilgrimes, you, whom change of Climes
Have taught you change of Fortunes, and of Times
Stay, stay your seeble steps, and cast your Eyes
On me, the Abstract of all miseries.
Say (Pilgrims) say, if e're your eyes beheld Moretruer Iliades; more unparalleld,
And matelesse Evills, which my offended GOD
Reuserates, with his caraged Rod.

ELEG.

I

ELEG. 13.

O humane power could, no envious Art
Of mortall man, could thus subject my heart,
My glowing heart, to these imperious fires:
No earthly forrow, but at length expires;
But these my Tyrant-torments doe extend
To Infinites, nor having esse, nor end;
Loo, I the Pris'ner of the highest G O D,
Inthralled to the vengeance of his Rod,
Lie bound in setters, that I cannot slie,
Nor yet endure his deadly strokes, nor die:
My joyes are turn'd to sorrowes, backt with seares,
And I (poore I) lie pickled up in teares.

ELE G. 14.

! How unfufferable is the waight
Of finne! How miferable is their state,
The silence of whose secret sinne conceales
The smart, till sustice to Revenge appeales!
How ponderous are my crimes, whose ample scroul
Weighs downe the pillars of my broken Soule!
Their sower, masqu'd with sweetnes, overswai'd me
And with their smiling kisses, they betrai'd me,
Betrai'd me to my Foes, and what is worse,
Betrai'd me to my fulfe, and heavens curse,
Betrai'd my soule to an eternall griese,
Devoid of hope, for e're to finde reliefe,

Y 4

ELEG.

G.

cs,

mes,

pale,

lfe ead, irth

mes

ELEG. 15.

DErplext with change of woes, where e're I turne My fainting eyes, they finde fresh cause to mourne; My griefes move like the Planets, which appeare Chang'd from their places, constat to their sphare Behold, the Earth-consounding arme of heaven, Hath cow'd my valiant Captaines, and hath driven Their scattered forces up and downe the street, Like worried sheepe, afraid of all they meet; My yonger men, the seed of propagation, Exile hath driven from my divided Nation; My tender Virgins have not seaved their rage, Which neither had respect to youth, nor age.

ELEG. 16.

Vick change of torments! equall to those crimes, Which past unthought-of, in my prosp'rous times From hence proceed my griefes, (ah me) fro hence, My Spring-tyde forrowes have their influence; For these, my foule dissolves, my eyes lament, Spending those teares, whose store will nere be spet; For these, my fainting spirits droope, and melt In anguish, such as never Mortall felt; Within the selfe-same shames, I freeze, and frie, I roare for helpe, and yet no helpe is nigh; My sons are lost, whose fortunes would relieve me, And onely such triumph, that housely grieve me.

ELEG.

W

Ne

Ele

He

He

Ar

Na

Wi

Th

OW He:

Th

My

Of

An

All

To

Th

Or

Bu

W

ELEG. 17.

Entfrom the glory of her lost renowne,
Sion laments; Her lips (her lips o'reflowne
With floods of teares) the prompteth how to break
New languages, instructs her tongue to speake
Elegious Dialects; She lowly bends
Her dusty knees upon the earth, extends
Her brawaleste armes to them, whose ruthless eyes
Are red, with laughing at her miseries;
Naked she lyes, deform'd, and circumvented
With troopes of feares, unpitied, unlamented,
A loathsome draine for fisth, despis'd, forsorne;
The scorne of Nations, and the Childe of scorne.

ELEG. 18. .

Owre wages issue from the sweets of sin,
Heavens hand is just, this trecherous heart hath bin
The author of my woes: 'Tis I alone;
My forrowes reap, what my soule sins have sowne;
Often they cry'd to Heaven, e're Heaven reply'd,
And vengeance ne'r had come, had they ne'r cry'd;
All you that passe, vouchsase your gracious cares,
To heare these cries; your eyes, to view these tears;
They are no heat-drops of an angry heart,
Or childish passions of an idle swart,
But they are Rivers, springing from an eye,
Whose streams, no joy can stop, no griese draw dry.

ELEG.

ne

arne;

are nære

iven

nes,

mes

nce,

pět;

me,

ic.

G.

n,

ELEG. 19.

Tyrne where I lift, new cause of woe presents
My poore distracted soule with new laments;
Where shall I turne? shall I implore my friends?
Ah! summer sriendship, with the Summer ends;
In vaine to them my grones, in vaine my teares,
For harvest friends can finde no winter cares;
Or shall I call my sacred Priests for aid?
Alas! my pined Priests are all betraid
To Death, and Famine; in the streets they cryed
For bread, & whilst they sought for bread, they died
Vengeance could never strike so hard a blow,
As when she sends an unlamented woe.

. ELEG. 20.

Ouchfase (great God) to turne thy tender eyes
On me poore wretch: Oh, let my midnight cryes
(That never cease, if never stopt with teares)
Procuer audience from thy gracious eares;
Behold thy creature, made by change of griese,
The barest wretch, that ever beg'd reliese;
See, see, my soule is tortur'd on thy rack,
My bowels tremble, and my heart-strings crack;
Abroad, the sword with open ruine frights me;
At home, the secret hand of Famine smites me;
Strange sires of griese! How is my soule oppress,
That sindes abroad, no peace, at home, no rest!

ELIG.

Im

My

Sco

To Ta

Th

An

Bu

Sh:

70v

Iwi

Th

To

In

Th

Lo

Th

Vn

Bu

ELEG. 21.

Here, where art thou, 6 facted Lamb of peace,
That promis'd to the heavie laden, ease?
Thee, thee alone, my often bended knee
Invokes, that have no other helpe, but Thee;
My foes (amazed at my hoarse complaining)
Scoffe at my oft repeated cryes, distaining
To lend their prosp'rous hand, they hisse and smile,
Taking a pleasure to behold my spoile:
Their hands delight to bruize my broken reeds,
And still persist, to prick that heart that bleeds;
But there's a Day (if Prophets can divine)
Shal scourge their sins, as they have scourged mine.

ELEG. 22.

Ou neyfome weeds, that lift your crefts so high,
When better plants, for want of moifture, dye?
Thinke you to flourish ever? and (unspide)
To shoot the flowers of your finites feeled?
Is plants be cropt, because their fruits are small,
Thinke you to thrive, that beare no fruit at all?
Look down (great God) and from their places teare
These weeds, that suck the juice, shold make us bear
Vindew'd with showers, let them see no Sun,
But seel those frosts, that thy poor plats have done.
O, clense thy Garden, that the world may know
We are the Seeds, that thy right Hand did sow.

Threnodia

.

51

25,

d died

res

k;

crycs

Threnodia II.

ELEGI.

A Las! my torments, my diftracted feares
Have no commerce with reasonable teares:
How hath Heavens absence darkned the renowne of Sions glory! with one angry frowne,
How hath th' Almighty clouded those bright beam
And chang'd her beauties streamers, into streamer
Sion, the glory of whose resulgent Fame
Gave Earnest of an everlasting name,
Is now become an indigested Masse,
And ruine is, where that brave glory was:
How hath heaven struck her earth-admired name
From th' height of honour, to the depth of shame!

E LE G. 2.

Beauty, nor strength of building could entice, Or force Revenge from her just enterprise;
Mercy hath stopt her eares, and Iustice hath Powr'd out full vialls of her kindled wrath;
Impatient of delay, she hath struck downe
The pride of Sion, kickt off Iuda's Crowne;
Her streets unpeopled, and dispers her powres,
And with the ground hath levell'd her high towres,
Her Priests are slaine, her captiv'd Princes are Vnransom'd pris'ners; Slaves, her men of war;
Nothing remaines of all her wonted glory,
But sad memorials of her tragicke story.

TOV

ELEG. 3.

Onfused horror, and confounding shame,
Have blurr'd the beauty, and renowned name
Of righteous Israel; Israels fruitfull land,
Entail'd by Heaven, with the usurping hand
Of uncontrolled Gentiles, is laid waste,
And with the spoile of ruine is defac't;
The angry mouth of lustice blowes the fires
Of hasty Vengeance, whose quick slame aspires,
With sury, to that place, which heaven did sever,
For Iacob, and his holy Seed, for ever;
No part, no secret angle of the Land,
Which beares no marke of Heavens enraged hand.

ELEG. 4.

Arts, thrild from heave, transfix my bleeding hart
And fill my foule with everlasting fmart,
Whose festing wound, no fortune can recure;
Th'Almighty strikes but seldome, but strikes sure;
His sinowy arme hath drawne his steely bow,
And sent his forked shafts to overthrow
My pined Princes, and to ruinate
The weakned Pillars, of my wounded State;
His hand hath scourg'd my deare delights, acquited
My soule, of all, wherein my soule delighted;
I am the mirrour of unmasked sin,
To see her (dearly purchas'd) pleasures in.

ELEG.

LEG.

res,

re;

Spino

OWNE

t bcam

came:

ame!

XUM

ELEG. f.

Even as the Pilot, whose sharpe Keele divides
Th'encountring waves of the Cisium Tides,
Tost on the lists of Death, striving to scape
The danger of deepe mouth'd Charpbus rape,
Rebuts on Seplas, with a forc'd careere,
And wrecks upon a lesse suspense withstand
My Foemans, fall into th'Almighties hand;
So I, the Childe of ruine, to avoid Lesse dangers, by a greater am destroy'd:
How necessary, Ah! How sharp's his end,
That neither hath his God, nor Man, to friend!

ELEG. 6.

Porgotten Sion hangs her drooping head,
Vpon her fainting breft; Her foule is fed
With endleffe griefe, whose torments had depriv'd
Long since, of life, had not new paines reviv'd her;
Sion is like a Garden, whose defence
Being broke, is left to the rude violence
Of wastefull Swine, sull of neglected waste,
Nor having flowre for smell, nor herbe for taste;
Heaven takes no pleasure in her holy Feasts,
Her idle Sabbaths, or burnt fat of beasts;
Both State and Temple are despoil'd, and fleec't
Of all their beauty; without Prince, or Priest.

ELEG.

JIs 1

Sec

Abt

Th

So

Th

Of

Ist

Fo

Of

Fo

Hi

O

H

Si

C

H

H

H

H

E LEG. 7.

CLory, that once did Heavens bright Temple fill, Jis now departed from that facred Hill; see, how the empty Altar stands disguis d, Abus'd by Gentiles, and by Heaven despis'd; That place, wherein the holy One hath taken So sweet delight, lyes loathed, and forsaken; That sacred place, wherein the pretious Name Of great Jehovah was preserv'd, the same Is turn'd a Den for Theeves; an open stage For vice to act on; a desiled Cage Ofuncleane birds; a house of priviledge For sin, and uncontrolled sacriledge.

ELEG. 8.

His fime's expired, and he's arm'd to spoile;
His fecret Will adjourn'd the righteous doome
Of threatned Sion, and her time is come;
His hand is arm'd with thunder, from his eyes
A flame, more quicke than sulphrous Ætma, flyes;
Sion must fall: That hand which hath begun,
Can never rest, till the full worke be done;
Her walls are sunke, her Towres are overthrowne,
Heaven will not leave a stone upon a stone;
Hence, hence the floods of roting Indab rise,
Hence Sion fills the Cisternes of her eyes.

ELEG.

G.

her er:

ELEG. 9.

Of deare lerufalem, and peace retraits
From wasted Sion; her high walls, that were An armed proofe against the brunt of seare,
Are shrunk, for shame, if not withdrawne, for pit,
To see the ruines of so brave a City;
Her Kings, and out-law'd Princes live constrain'd
Hourely to heare the name of Heaven profan'd;
Manners and Lawes, the life of government
Are sent into eternall banishment;
Her Prophets cease to dreame; they vow, unhead
They howle to heaven, but heaven gives no regard

ELEG. 10.

Ing, Priest, and People, all alike are clad
In weeds of Sack-cloth, taken from the sad
Wardrobe of sorrow; prostrate on the earth,
They close their sips, their sips estrang'd to mirth;
Silent they sit, for dearth of speech affords
A sharper Accent, for true griese, than words:
The Father wants a Son; the Son, a Mother;
The bride, her groom; the brother wats his brother;
Some, Famine; Exile, some; and some, the sword
Hath slaine; All want, when sien wants her Lord:
How art thou all in all! There's nothing scant (Great God) with thee; without thee, all thing want.

ELEG.

ELEG. II.

Aunch forth, my foule, into a sea of teares,
Whose ballac'd bulke, no other Pilot steares,
Then raging sorrow, whose uncertaine hand,
Wanting her Compasse, strikes on every sand;
Driven with a storme of sighes, she seeks the Haven
Of rest, but like to Noabs wandring Raven,
She scowres the Maine; and, as a Sea-lost Rover,
She roames, but can no land of peace discover;
Mine eyes are faint with teares; tears have no end;
The more are spent, the more remaine to spend:
What Marble (ah) what Adamantine eye,
Can looke on Sints ruine, and not cry?

ELEG. 12.

Y tongue ? the tongue of Angels, are too faint
T'expresse the causes of my just complaint;
See, how the pale-sac'd fucklings route for food,
And from their milkles mothers bress, draw bloods
Children succease their serious toyes, and plead
With trickling teares, Ah mothers, give us bread;
Such goodly Barnes, and not one graine of corne,
Why did the sword escape's ? why were we borne
To be devour'd and pin'd with samine? fave us
With quicke reliefe or take the lives, wan gave us:
They cryde for bread, that scarce had breach to cry,
And wanting meanes to live, found meanes to dye.

z

ELEG.

or pity

n'd:

heard mirth

rother; word ord;

things L E G

ELEG. 13.

NEver, ah! never yet, did vengeance brand A State, with deeper ruine, than thy Land; Deare Sion; how could mischiefe been more keene, Or fruck thy glory with a sharper spleene? Whereto (lerufalem) to what shall I Compare this thy unequall'd misery? Turne backe to ages past ; Search deepe Records; Theirs are, thine cannot be exprest in words : Would, would to God, my lives cheape price might Esteem'd of value, but to ransome thee; Would I could cure thy griefe; but who is able To heale that wound, that is immedicable?

ELEG. 14.

Sien, had thy prosperous soule endur'd Thy Prophets scourge, thy joyes had bin secur'd; But thou (ah thou) haft lent thine itching eare To fuch as claw'd, and onely fuch, wouldft heare; Thy Prophets, 'nointed with unhallow'd oyle, Rubd, where they should have launcht, and did be-Thy abused faith, their fawning lips did cry (guile Peace, peace, alas, when there was no peace nigh They quilted filken curtaines for thy crimes. Belyde thy God, and onely pleas'd the times : Deare Sien, oh ; hadft thou but had the skill To ftop thine cares, thou hadft beene Sion fill.

ELEG.

ELEG. 15.

Deople, that travell through thy wasted Land,
Gaze on thy ruines, and amazed stand,
They shake their spleenfull heads, disdaine, deride
The sudden downfall of so faire a pride;
They clap their joyfull hands, & fill their tongues
With hises, ballads, and with Lyrick songs;
Her torments give their empty lips new matter,
And, with their scornfull singers, point they at her;
Is this (say they) that place, whose wonted same
Made troubled Earth to tremble at her name?
Is this that State? are these those goodly Stations?
Is this that Mistris, and that Queene of Nations?

ELEG. 16.

Venchr are the dying Embers of Compassion,
For empty sorrow findes no lamentation;
When as thy Harvest flourisht with sult eares,
Thy sleightest griefe brought in a Tide of teares;
But now, alas! thy Crop consum'd, and gon,
Thou art but sood, for beasts to trample on;
Thy servants glory in thy ruine, these
That were thy private friends, are publike foes;
Thus, thus (say they) we spit our rankrous spleene,
And gnash our reeth upon the worlds saire Queen;
Thrice welcome this (this long expected) day,
That crownes our conquest, with so sweet a prey.

Zi

ELEG.

ne,

s:

e;

beuile

gh

EG.

ELEG. 17.

Rebellious Indab! Could thy flattring Crimes
Secure thee from the danger of the times?
Or did thy fummer Prophets ere forefay
These evils, or warnd thee of a winters day?
Did not those sweet-lipt Oracles beguile
Thy wanton cares, with newes of Wine, and Oile?
But Heaven is just; what his deepe Counsell wild,
His Prophets told, and Iustice hath fulfill'd;
He hath destroyd; no secret place so voyd,
No Fort so sure, that Heaven hath not destroyd:
Thou Land of Indab! How's thy facred Throne Become a Stage, for Heath'n, to trample on!

ELEG. 18.

SEe, see, th'accurred Gentiles doe inherit
The Land of promise; where heavens facred Spirit
Built Temples for his everlasting Name,
There, there, th'usurping Pagans doe proclame
Their idle idolfs amto whom they gave
That stoln honor which heavens Lord should have;
Winke Sion, O let not those eyes be stain'd.
With heavens dishonour, see not heaven profan'd;
Close, close thine eyes, or if they needs must be Open, like shoul-gates, to let water shee,
Yet let the violence of their slowing streames
Obsaure thine upen eyes, and mask their beames.

ELE G.

ELEG. 19.

TRust not thine eye-lids, lest a flattering sleepe
Bribe them to rest, and they forget to weepe;
Poure out thy heart, thy heart dissolv'd in teates,
Weepe forth thy plaints, in the Almighties eares;
Oh, let thy cryes, thy cryes, to heaven addrest,
Dissurbe the filence of thy midnight rest;
Prefer the sad petitions of thy soule
To heaven, nere close thy lips till heaven condole
Confounded sion, and her wounded weale;
That God that smit, oh, move that God to heale;
Oh, let thy tongue nere cease to call, thine eye,
To weepe; thy pensive heart nere cease to cry.

E LE G. 10.

Ouchfafe, oh thou eternall Lord of pity,
To looke on $108, and thy dearest Citie,
Confus'd lerufalem, for thy DAVIDS sake,
And for that Promise, which thy selfe did make
To halting is fiel, lo, thy hand hath forc'd Mothers (whom lawlesse Famine hath divorc'd
From deare affection) to devoure the bloomes,
And buds, that burgeond sto their painful wombs;
Thy sacred Priests, and Prophets that while-ere Did hourely whisper in thy neighbouring eare,
Are falne before the sacrilegious sword,
Iven where, even whilst they did unfold thy word.

Z3

ELEG.

le ?

ild,

it

re:

d;

G.

ELEG. 21.

Ounded, and wafted, by th'eternall Hand
Of heaven, I grovell on the ground; my Land
Is turn da Golgoth, before minc eye,
Vnsepulchred my murthred people lye;
My dead lye rudely scattred on the stones,
My Cawfies all are pav'd with dead mens bones;
The sierce Destroyer doth alike forbeare
The Maidens trembling, and the Matrons teare, Th'imperiall sword spares neither Foole, nor Wise,
The Old mans pleading, nor the Infants cryes;
Vengeance is deafe, and blinde; and she respects
Nor Young, nor Old, nor Wise, nor Foole, nor Sex.

ELEG. 22.

Months, gone their date of numbred dayes, expire;
The Dayes, full houred, to their period tend;
And Howers, chae'd with light-foot Minutes, end;
Yet my undated Ev'lls, no time will minifh,
Though years, and months, though daies & howers
Feares flock about me, as invited guefts, (finish:
Before the Portalls, at proclamed feafts; (fall, where heave hath breath'd, that ma, that state must Heaven wants no thunder-bolts to strike withall:
I am the subject, of that angry Breath,
My Sonnes are slaine, and I am mark'd for death.

Threnodia

Threnodia III.

ELEG. I.

LL you, whose unprepared lips did tast
The tedious Cup of sharpe affliction, cast
Your wondring eyes on me, that have drunke up
Those dregs, whereof you onely kift the Cup:
I am the man, 'gainst whom th' Eternall hath Discharg'd the lowder volley of his wrath;
I am the man, on whom the brow of night
Hath scowl'd, unworthy to behold the light;
I am the Man, in whom th' Almighty showes
The dire example of unpattern'd woes;
I am that Pris'ner, ransome cannot free;
I am that Man; and I am onely he.

ELEG. 1.

Ondage hath forc'd my fervile necke to faile
Beneath her load; Afflictions nimble flayle
Hath thrasht my soule upon a floore of stones,
And quasht the marrow of my broken bones;
Th'assembled powres of heaven enrag'd, are eager
To root me our. Heavens souldiers doe beleager
My worried soule, my soule unapt for sleeing,
That yeelds, o'reburthen'd with her tedious being;
Th'Almighties hand hath clouded all my light,
And clad my soule with a perpetuall aight,
A night of torments, and eternall forrow,
Like that of Death, that never findes a morrow.

(UM

and

.

ife,

cx.

ré;

id;

ers

th:

all,

wft I:

dia

ELEG. 3.

Hain'd to the brazen pillars of my woes,
I strive in vaine; No mortall hand can loose
What heaven hath bound; my soule is walld about,
That Hope can nor get in, nor Feare get out;
When ere my wavering hopes to heaven addresse
The feeble voice of my extreame distresse.
He stops his tyred cares; without regard
Of Suit, or Suitor, leaves my prayers unheard.
Before my faint and stumbling seet he layes
Blocks, to disturb my best advised wayes;
I seeke my peace, but seeke my peace in vaine;
For every way's a Trap; each path's a Traine.

ELEG. 4.

Diffurbed Lions are appeas'd with blood,
And ravenous Beares are mild, not wanting food,
But heaven (ah heaven!) will not implored be:
Lions, and Beares are not so fierce as Hee:
His direfull vengeance (which no meane confines)
Hath crost the thriving of my best designer;
His hand thath spoild me, that erewhile advanc't me
Brought in my toes, possess my Friends against me;
His Bow is bent, his forked Rovers stye,
Like darted halle-stones from the darkned sky,
Shot from a hand that cannot erre, they be Transfixed in no other matke, but me.

ELEG.

CXil

CAn

An

Wi

My

Pri

Th

Th

Ex

Of

0

Wi

COL

For

Th

My

Te

Th

M

Of

Th

W

To

Sh

ELEG. S.

Xil'd from Heaven, I wander to and fro,
And feeke for steames as Stags new stricken doe,
And like a wandring Hart I stee the Hounds,
With Arrowes deeply fixed in my wounds;
My deadly, Hunters with a winged pace,
Pricke forwards, and pursue their weary chace,
They whoope, they hallow me, deride, & flout me,
That stee from death, yet carie death about me;
Excesse of torments hath my soule deceiv'd
Of all her joyes, of all her powres bereiv'd.
O curious griese, that hast my soule brim-fill'd
With thousand deaths, and yet my soule not kill'd!

ELEG. 6.

Ollow'd with troopes of feares, I flie in vaine,
For change of places breeds new change of paine;
The base condition of my low estate,
My 'exalted Foes disdaine, and wonder at:
Turne where I list (these) these my wretched eyes,
They find no objects, but new miseries;
My soule, accustom'd to so long encrease
Of paines, suggests that she had ever peace;
Thus, thus perplext, thus with my grieses distracted
What shall I doe > Heavens powers are compacted
To worke my 'eternall ruine; To what friend
Shall I make mone, when heaven conspires my end?

ELEG.

out.

n'e

od,

(3)

me

ne;

G.

ELEG. 7.

Reat GOD! what helpe (ah me) what hope is left With To him, that of thy presence is bereft? Absenced from thy favour, what remaines, But sense, and sad remembrance of my paines? Yet hath affliction op ned my dull eare, And raught me, what in weale I ne're could heare; Her scourge hath tutord me with sharpe correction And swag'd the swelling of my proud affections; Till now I flumbred in a prosp'rous dreame, From whece awak'd, my griefes are more extreme; Hopes, newly quickned, have my foule affur'd, That griefes discover'd, are one halfe recur'd.

ELFG. 8.

I Ad not the milder Hand of mercy broke The furious violence of that farall stroke Offended lustice struck, we had beene quite Loft in the shadowes of eternall night; Thy mercy Lord, is like the morning Sun. Whose beames vndoe, what sable night hath done; Or like a streame, the current of whose course, Restrain'd a while, runs with a swifter force; Oh, let me swelter in those facred beames, And after bathe me in these filver streames; To thee alone, my forrowes shall appeale; Hath earth a wound, too hard for heaven to heale?

ELEG.

Thou Th

Th

Th

Th

Ex Th

Re

An

Re

T

Vn

TI

Su

De

W

In

Vr

H

In

ELEG. 9.

withce (deare Lord) my pensive soule respires, Thou are the sulnesse of my choice desires; Thou are that sacred Spring, whose waters burst In streames to him, that seekes with holy thurst; Thrice happy man, thrice happy thirst to bring The fainting soule to so, so sweet a Spring; Thrice happy he, whose well resolved brest Expects no other aide, no other rest; Thrice happy he, whose downie age hath bin Reclaim'd by scourges, from the prime of sin, And earcly season'd with the taste of Truth, Remembers his Creator in his youth.

E L E G. 10.

Nowledge concomitates Heavens painfull rod, Teaches the foule to know her felfe, her GOD, Vnfeiles the eye of Faith, prefents a morrow Of joy, within the fableft night of forrow, Th' afflicted foule abounds in bareftneed, Sucks pureft honie from the fouleft weed, Detefts that good, which pamper'd reason likes, Welcomes the stroke, kiffes the hand that strikes; In roughest Tides his well-prepared brest, Vntoucht with danger, finds a Haven of rest; Hath all in all, when most of all bereaven; In Earth, a Hell, in Hell he finds a Heaven.

ELEG.

is left are;

diós

eme;

one;

neale?

E G.

15;

ELEG. 11.

About perfected, with the evening ends, The lampe of heaven (his course fulfill'd) descen Canworkes of Nature feeke, and finde a reft, And shall the torments of a troubled breft. Impos'd by Natures all-commanding GOD, Ne re know an end, ne're finde a period? Deare foule, despaire not, whet thy dull beliefe With hope; heavens mercy wil o'recome thy grief From thee, not him, proceeds thy punishment, Hee's flow to wrath, and speedy to relent; Thou burnt like gold, confumeft not like fuell; O, wrong not Heaven, to thinke that Heaven is (cruell

E L E G. 11.

Mountaines shall move, the Sun his circling course Www.

Shall stop; Tridented Neptune shall divorce

And Th'embracing floods from their beloved Iles, Erc Heaven forgets his fervant, and recoyles From his eternall vow: Those, those that bruife His broken reedes, or fecretly abuse The doubtfull Title of a rightfull Cause, Or with false bribes adulterate the Lawes, That should be chaste; these, these th' Almightie Branded for subjects of a future wrath; Oh, may the just man know, th'Eternall haftens His plagues for trialls; loves the Child he chaftens

ELEG.

NNO

No

Car

Mai

Wh

Vpc

And

Sin

Vpe

Vpc

Cor

Wc

Oh,

Th

Be

Thy

My Wil

Thi

(If I

escend

ft,

),

iefe

y grie

ent,

ell; en is uife

ntie

(hath ens

fens

XUM

E . E G. 13.

O mortall power, nor supernall might,
Not Lucifer, nor no infernall spright,
Nor all together, joyn'd in one commission,
Can thinke or act, without divine permission;
Man wils, Heaven breathes successe, or not, upon it;
What good, what evill befals, but heave hath done
Vpon his right hand, Health and Honors stand, (it?
And slaming Scourges on the other hand:
Since then the states of good or evill depend Vpon his Will, (fond mortall) thou attend
Vpon his Wiledome; Why should living Dust Complaine on Heaven, because that Heaven is just?

ELEG. 14.

Let the ballance of our even-pois'd hearts
Weigh our afflictions with our just defarts,
And ease our heavie scale; Double the graines
We take from sune, Heaven taketh from our paines
Oh, let thy lowly bended eyes not seare
Th'Almighties frownes, nor husband one poore
Be prodigall in sighes, and let thy tongue, (teare;
Thy tongue, estrang'd to heaven, cry all night long
My soule, thou leav'st, what thy Creator did
Will thee to doe, hast done what he forbid;
This, this, hath made so great a strangenesse bee
(If not divorce) betwirt thy GOD, and thee.

ELEG.

ELEG.

E LEG. 15.

PRepar'd to vengeance, and refolv'd to spoile,
Thy hand (just GOD) hath taken in thy toile
Our wounded soules; That arme which hath forgot
His wonted Mercy, kills and spareth not;
Our Crimes have set a Barre betwixt thy Grace
And Vs; thou hast eclipst thy glorious Face,
Hast stopt thy gracious Eare, lest prayers enforce Thy tender Heart to pity and remorfe: (done;
See see, great GOD, what thy deare Hand hast
We lye like drosse, when all the gold is gone,
Contemn'd, despis'd, and like to Atomes, shye
Before the Sun, the scorne of every eye.

E L E G. 16.

Votidian fevers of reproach, and shame,
Have chill'dour Honor, and renowned Name,
We are become the by-word, and the storne
Of Hoaven and Earth; of heaven & earth forlone
Our captiv'd soules are compast round about,
Within, with troopes of Feares; of Foes, without,
Without, within, distrest; and in conclusion,
We are the hapleste children of Consuson;
Oh, how mine eyes, the rivers of mine eyes
O'restow these barren lips, that can devise
No Dialect, that can expresse or borrow Sufficient Metaphors, to show my forrow!

ELEG

2 Iver

My

Soft

Who

Wes

Spe

Cea

Till

Wh

Car

Wh

Car

SBC

Th

EV

So

In

W

T

T

11

T

ELEG. 17.

Ivers of marish teares have over-flowne 'My blubber'd cheeks; my tongue can find no Tone So sharpe as silence, to bewaile that woe, Whose flowing Tides, an Ebbe could never know: Weepe on (mine Eyes) mine eyes shall never cease; Speake on (my Tongue) forget to hold thy peace; Cease not thy teares; close not thy lips so long, Till heave shall wipe thine cies, & hear thy tongue: What heart of brasse, what Adamantine brest Can know the torments of my foule, and rest? What stupid braine, (ah me!) what marble eye Can see these, these my Ruines, and not cry?

ELEG. 18.

O hath the Fowler, with his flye deceits,
Beguil'd the harmeleffe bird, fo, with false baits,
The treach'rous Angler, strikes his nibbling prey;
Even fo my Foes, my guiltlesse soule betray,
So have my fierce pursuers, with close wiles
Inthralled me, and glorled in my spoiles;
Where undermining plots could not prevaile,
There mischiese did with strength of arme assalle;
Thus in afflictions troubled billowes tost,
I live; but 'tis a life worse had, then lost:
Thus, thus o'rewhelm'd, my secret soule doch cry,
I am destroy'd, and there's no helper nigh.

ELEG.

orgot

ace orce done:

nach orne

out;

E LEG. 19.

Thou great Creator, whose diviner breath
Preserves thy Creature, joyst not in his death, Looke downe from thy eternall Throne, that an,
The onely Rocke of a despairing heart; (an Looke downe from heaven (b thou) whose tende
Once heard the trickling of one single teare;
How are thou now estranged from his cry,
That sends forth Rivers from his fruitfull eye?
How often hast thou, with a gentle arme,
Rais'd me from death, and bid me seare no harme;
What strange disaster caus'd this sudden change,
How wert thou once so neare, and now so strange!

E LE G. 30.

Anquisht by such, as thirsted for my life,
And brought my soule into a legall strife, (cask
How oft hast thou (just GOD) maintain'd my
And crest the sentence of their bloody lawes?
Be still my GOD, be still that GOD thou wert,
Looke on thy Mercy, not on my Desert;
Be thou the Judge betwixt my foes and me;
The Advocate, betwixt my soule & Thec; (vane'd
'Gainst thee (great Lord) their arme they have al
And dealt that blow to thee, that thus hath gland'
Vpon my soule; smite those that have smit thee,
And for thy sake, discharge their spleens at me.

BLEG

Ha

To

W

Ha

Of

Day

My

Fil

Loc

Bel

Dif

And

Of

And

Bre

To Let

The

0,1

Ofe

ELEG. 21. (mouth'd scoffe

Hat squint-ey'd scorne, what stout, what wryThat sullen pride e're tooke acquaintance of,
Hath scap'd the surie of my Foemans tongue,
To doe my simple Innocencie wrong?
What day, what houre, nay, what shorter season,
Hath kept my soule secure, from the treason
Of their corrupted counsels, which dispend
Dayes, nights and houres, to conspire my end?
My sorrowes are their songs, and as slight sables,
Fill up the silence of their wanton tables;
Looke downe (just GOD) & with thy powre divine Behold my Foes; They be thy Foes, and mine.

E L E G. 22.

Et sleepes thy Vengeance? Can thy Iustice be
So slowe to them, and yet so sharpe to me?
Dismount (just Iudge) from thy Tribunal Throne,
And pay thy Foemen, the deserved sone.
Of their unjust designes, Make sierce thy hand,
And sourge thou the, as they have scourged my lad Breake thou their Adamantine hearts, & pound the
To dust, and with thy finall curse consound them,
Let horror scize their soules; O may they bee
The scorne of Nations, that have scorned Thee;
O, may they live distrest, and die bereaven.
Of carths delights, and of the joyes of Heaven.

Ra ELEG.

EG

Threnodia IIII.

ELEG. I.

A Las! what alterations! Ah, how strange Amazement flowes from such an uncouth change!
Ambitious Ruine! Could thy razing hand
Finde ne're a subject, but the Holy Land?
Thou sacrilegious Ruine, to attempt
The House of GOD! was not heaves house exempt
From thy accursed Rape? Ah me! Behold, Sien, whose pavement of refulgent gold,
So lately did reflect, so bright, so pure,
How dimme, how drossie now, (ah!) how obscure!
Her facred stones lie scatter'd in the street,
For stumbling blocks before the Levites seet.

ELBG. 3.

Ehold her Princes, whose victorious browes
Fame oft had crowned, with her Laurell bowes,
See, how they hide their shame-confounded crests,
And hang their heads upon their fainting brests,
Behold her Captaines, and brave men at armes,
Whose spicits fired at warres loud alarmes,
Like warried sheepe, how slee they from the noise
Of Drummes, and startle at the Trumpets voice!
They saint, and like amazed Lions, show
Their fearfull heeles, if Chaunticleere but crow;
How are the pillars (Sim) of thy state
Transferm'd to clay, and burnisht gold, so late!
ELEG.

Ha

Th

Ha

To

An

An Dr

Ca

Di

Th

Th

Th

Th

Hi

Ab

ELEG. 3.

An furious Dragons heare their helpleffe Broode
Cry out, and fill their hungrie lips with food?
Hath Nature taught fictee Tygers to apply
The breft unto their yonglings empty cry?
Have favage beafts time, place, and natures helpes,
To feed and foster up their idle whelps?
And thall the tender Babes of Sion cry,
And pine for food, and yet their mothers by?
Dragons, and Tygers, and all favage beafts
Can feed their yong, but Sion hath no brefts:
Diftreffed Sion, more unhappy farre,
Then Dragons, favage Beafts, or Tygers are!

ELEG. 4.

DEath thou purfuelt, if from death thou flee,
Or if thou turn it thy flight, death followes thee:
Thy staffe of life is proke; for want of bread,
Thy City pines, and halfe thy I and is dead,
The fon t'his father weepes, makes fruitlesse moane
The father weepes upon his weeping sonne;
The brother calls upon his pined brother;
And both come crying to their hungry mother:
The empty Babe, in stead of milke, drawes downe
His Nurses teares, well mingled with his owne;
Nor chage of place, nor time, with help supplies thee
Abroad the Sword, Famine at home destroyes thee.

A 2 3

BLEC.

agel mpt

1

Ŕs,

ELEG. J.

Excesse, and Surfet now have left thy Coast,
The lavish Guest, now wants his greedie Host;
No wanton Gooke prepares his poynant meate,
To teach a saciate palate how to eate;
Now Bacchus pines, and shakes his steeble knees,
And pamp'red Essue lookes as plump, as Hee's;
Discolour'd teres, that was once so faire,
Hath lost her beauty, finds dher golden haire;
Thy Princes mourne in rags, asham'd t'infold
Their leaden spirits, in a case of gold;
From place to place thy Statesmen wandring are;
On every dung-hill lyes a man of warre.

ELEG. 6.

Oule Sadome, and incessuous Gomorow,
Had my destruction, but no're my sorrow;
Vengeance had mercy there; Her hand did send
A sharpe beginning, but a sudden end;
Instice was mide, and with her hastic flashes
They fell, and sweetly slept in peacefull A shes;
They felt no rage of an insulting Foe,
Nor Famins pinching suric, as I doe;
They had no sacred Temple to defile;
Or if they had, they would have helpt to spoile;
They dyde but once, but I, poore wretched I,
Die many deaths, and yet have more to die-

ELEG

JWa

Asw

The

Ofr

The

The

The

The

Nor

Obf

Afto

The

Off

Sec.

And

Blac

The

The

Like

ELEG. 7.

Old from the Mint; Milke, from the uberous Cow, Was no're so pure in substance, nor in show, As were my Nazarites, whose inward graces Adorn'd the outward lustre of their faces; Their faces robb'd the Lilly, and the Rose, Of red and white; more faire, more sweet then those Their bodies were the Magazens of persection, Their skins unblemisht, were of pure complexion, Through which, their Saphire-colour'd yeines de-The Azure beauty of their naked pride; (scride The slaming Carbuncle was not so bright, Nor yet the rare discolour'd Chrisolite.

ELEG. 8.

The blazing Planets of my glorious Sphære)
Obscur'd, and darkned in Afflictions cloud?
Aftonisht at their owne disguize, they shrowd
Their foule transformed shapes, in the dull shade
Of sullen darknesse; of themselves afraide;
See, how the brother gazes on the brother,
And both affrighted, start, and slie each other;
Blacke as their Fates, they crosse the streets unked
The Sire, his Son; The striend disclames his friend;
They, they that were the flowers of my Land,
Like withered Weedes, and blasted Hemlock stand.

A 2 3

ELEG.

ELEG. 9.

Impetuous Famine, fifter to the Sword,
Left hand of Death, Childe of th' infernall Lord,
Thou Tort'rer of Mankind, that with one Broake,
Subjects the world to thy imperious yoake:
What pleafure tak if thou in the tedious broath
Of pined mortalls? or their lingring death?
The Sword, thy generous brother's not foctuell,
He kills but once, fights in a noble Duell,
But thou (malicious Furie) doft extend
Thy spleene to all, whose death can finde no end,
Alas! my haplesse weale can want no woe,
That seeles the rage of Sword, and Famine too.

ELEGI 10.

Inde is that Death, whose weapons do but kill,
But we are often slaine, yet dying still;
Our torments are too gentle, yet too rough,
They gripe too hard, because not hard enough;
My people teare their trembling sleet, for food,
And fro their ragged wounds, they suck forth blood
The father dies, and leaves his pined Coarse,
T'inrich his Heire, with meat; The hungry Nurse
Broiles her stary'd suckling on the hastic coales,
Devours one halfe, and hides the rest in holes:
O Tyrant Famine! that compell'st the Mother,
To kill one hungry Childe, to seed another!

ELEG.

We

Vn

Fo

To

N

Ke

Th

Th

Fa

Th

TH

C

T

A

0

E

TW

ELEG. 11.

Ament, O sad Ierusalem, lament;
O weepe, if all thy reares be yet unspent,
Weepe (wasted Iudab) let no drop be kept Vnshed, let not one teare be left, unwept;
For angry Heaven hath authing left undone,
To bring thy ruines to perfection:
No curse, no plague the fierce Almightie hath Kept back, to summe the totall of his wrath;
Thy Citie burnes; thy Sion is despoil'd;
Thy Wives are ravisht, and thy Maides defil'd;
Famine at home; the Sword abroad destroyes thee;
Thou cry'st to heaven, & heave his care denies thee

E LEG. 11.

May thy dull fenses (O unhappy Nation, Possest with nothing now, but desolation)
Collect their scatter'd forces, and behold
Thy novell fortunes, ballanc'd with the old;
Couldst thou, o could thy prosp'rous hart coceive,
That mortall powre, or art of State could reive
Thy illustrious Empire of her sacred glory,
And make her ruines, the Threadist story
Of these sad times, and ages yet to be?
Envic could pine, but never hope to see
Thy buildings crushe, and all that glory ended,
Which Man so fortify de, and Heaven desended.

A 2 4

ELEG.

H, id;

E.LEG. 13.

He're had the splendor of thy bright renowne Been thus extinguisht (Judab). Thy fast crowne, Had ne're beene spura' a from thy Imperiall brow, Plentie had nurs'd thy soule, thy peacefull plough Had fill'd thy fruitfull Quarters with encrease, Hadst thou but knowne thy selfe, and loved peace, But thou hast broke that sacred Truce, concluded Betwixt thy God, and thee; vainly deluded Thy selfe with thincown strength, with deadly seud Thy surious Priests, and Prophets have pursude The mourning Saints of Sion, and did slay All such as were more just, more pure, then they.

ELEG. 14.

How the Priests of Sien, whose pure light
Should thine to such, as grope in Errots night,
And blaze like Lampes, before the darkned eye
Of Ignorance, to raise up those that lye
In dull despaire, and guide those feet that strey, Aye mel How blinde, how darke, how dull are they!
Fierce rage, & sury drives them through the street,
And, like to mad men, stabbe at all they enect;
They weare the purple Liverie of Death,
And live themselves, by drawing others breath;
Say! (wasted Sien) could Revenge behold
So soule an acted Scene as this, and hold?

ELEG.

Roj

Die

Dif

Twi

Are

Of

Acc

Wh

Th

Fea

Th

An

Po

Ex

Lik

Sh

He

Of

Of

Sn

0

No

E LEG. 15.

Rophets, and facred Priests, whose tongues whileDid often whisper in th'Eternalls eare, (cre
Disclos'd his Oracles, found ready passage
Twixt God, and Man, to cary heavens Embassage,
Are now the subjects of deserved scorne,
Of God forsaken, and of Man forlorne;
Accursed Gentiles are assam d to know,
What Sioms Priests are not assam'd to doe;
They see, and blush, and blushing see away,
Fearing to touch things so defil'd as they;
They hate the filth of their abomination, (nation.
And chace them forth, from their new conquer'd

ELEG. 16.

Vite banisht from the joyes of earth, and smiles Of heaven, and deeply buried in her spoiles, poore Indah lyes; unpitied, disrespected; Exil'd the World; of God, of Man rejected; Like blasted eares among the fruitfull wheat, She roames dispers, and hath no certaine seat; Her servile necke's subjected to the yoake Of bondage, open to th' impartiall stroake Of conquering Gentiles, whose afflicting hand Smites every nooke of her disguised Land; Of Youth respecties, nor regarding Yeeres, Nor Sex, nor Tribe; like scourging Prince, & Peers.

ELEG.

agh ice;

d cud

ELEG. 17.

Rent, and depoted from Imperiall state,
By heavens high hand, on heaven we must awais,
To him that struck, our forrowes must appeale;
Where heaven hath smit, no hand of man can heale,
In vaine, our wounds expected mans reliefe,
For disappointed hopes renew a griefe;
Expr opprest us in our fathers loynes,
What hope's in Expr? Nay, if Expr joynes
Her force with sudate, our united powres
Could nere prevaile gainst such a soe as our's; Expr, that once did seele heavens scourge, for grieHis slock, would now refinde it, for relieving. (ving

ELEG. 18.

SO, the quick-sented Beagles, in a view,
O're hill, and dale, the sleeing Chase pursue,
As swift-foot Death, and Ruine follow me,
That slees, a fraid, yet knowes not where to slee:
Flee to the sields? There, with the sword I meet,
And, like a Watch, Death stands in every street;
No covert hides from Death, no Shade, no Cells
So darke, wherein not Death and Horror dwells:
Our dayes are numbred, and our number's done,
The empty Houre-glasse of our glory's run:
Our sins are summ'd, and so extreame's the score,
That heaven could not doe lesse, nor hell do more

E LEG.

SI W

M

0

À

W

T

F

T

ELEG. 19.

O what a downfall are our fortunes come,
Subjected to the suffrance of a doome,
Whose lingring torments, Hell could not conspire
More sharp I than which, hell needs no other fire:
How nimble are our Formen to betray Our soules? Eagles are not so swift as they:
Where shall we slee? Or where shall forrow finde
A place for harbour? Ah, what prosp'rous winde,
Will lend a gale, whose bounty ne're shall cease,
Till we be landed on the lie of peace?
My foes more fierce than empty Lions are;
For hungry Lions, wood with teares, will spare.

ELEG. 10.

Surping Gentiles rudely have engroit
Into their hands, those fortunes we have lost,
Devoure the fruits that purer hands did plant,
Are plump and pampred with that bread we want,
And (what is worse than death) a Tyrant treads Vpon our Throne; Pagans adorne their heads with our lost crowns; their powers have dis-jointed
The Members of our State, and Heavens Anointed
Their hands have crush, and ravisht fro his throne,
And made a Slave, for Slaves to tread upon;
Needs must that flock be scattred and accurst, where wolves have dar'd to seize the Shepherd first.

ELEG.

c,

G. ale;

ing

E LEG. 21.

Axe fat with laughing (*dom;) with glad cies
Behold the fulneffe of our miferies;
Triumph (thou Type of Antichrift) and feed
Thy foule with joy, to fee thy brothers feed
Ruin'd, and rent, and rooted from the earth;
Make hafte, and folace thee with early mirth;
But there's a time shall teach thee how to weepe
As many teares as I; thy lips, as deepe
Shall drinke in forrowes Cup, as mine have don,
Till then, cheere up thy spirits, and laugh on:
Offended Iustice often strikes by turnes;
Edon, beware, for thy next neighbour burnes.

ELEG. 22.

YE drooping fonnes of sion, O, arife,
And thut the flood-gates of your flowing eyes,
Surcease your forrowes, and your joyes attend,
For heaven hath spoke it, and your girefes that end,
Beleeve it sion; seeke no curious signe,
And wait heavens pleasure, as heaven waited thine;
And thou triumphing Edom; that dost lye
In beds of Roses; thou, whose prosp'rous eye
Did smile, to see the Gates of Stonfall,
Shalt be subjected to the selfe-some thrall;
Sion, that weepes, shall smile; and Edoms eye,
That smiles so fast, as fast shall shortly cry.

The

Aso

Offe

Beho

Oft

Bind

The

Sec,

Into Thoi That

Our

Who Our Thei

Our !

Aref

But f

Oppi We n

Fami To A

Tock Thy i

In pe

The Prophet Ieremie his Prayer for the distressed people of Ierusalem, and Sion.

Reat God, before whose all-discerning eye, The fecret corners of mans heart doe lye As open as his actions, which no Clowd Offecrefie can shade; no shade can shrowd; Behold the Teares, O, harken to the Cryes Of thy poore Sion; Wipe her weeping eyes, Binde up her bleeding wounds, & thou that art The best Chirurgeon for a broken heart; See how the barb'rous Gentiles have intruded Into the Land of Promise, and excluded Those rightfull Owners, from their just possessions, That wander now full laden with oppressions; Our Fathers (ah) their favage hands have flaine, Whose deaths, our widow-mothers weepe in vaine; Our Springs, whose Chrystall plenty once disburst Their bounteous favours, to quench every thurst; Our liberall Woods, whose palfie-haken tops, To every ftranger, bow'd their yeelding lops, Are fold to us, that have no price to pay, But Iweat and toile, the forrowes of the day : male and Oppressors trample on our servile necks, We never cease to groane, nor they to vex; Famine and Dearth, have taught our hands t'extend To Affour, and our feeble knees to bend Tochurlish Pharae : Want of bread compells Thy fervants to begge Almes of Infidells; Our wrotehed Fathers finn'd, and yet they fleepe In peace, and have left us, their fonnes, to weepe; Wc, ac;

ics

We, we extracted from their finfull loynes, Are guilty of their finnes ; Their Offa joynes To our high Pelien: Ah ! their crimes doe stand More firmly entayled to us, than our Land : We are the flaves of fervants, and the fcorne Of flaves; of all forfaken, and forlorne; Hunger hath forc'd us to acquire our food, With deepest danger, of our dearest blood; Our skins are wrinkled, and the fruitlesse ploughs Of want, have fallow'd up our barren browes : Within that Sion which thy hands did build, Our Wives were raviflit, and our Maids defil'd : Our favage Fee extends his barb'rous rage To all, nor fparing Sexe, nor Youth, nor Age : They hang our Princes on the shamfull trees Of death; respect no Persons, no Degrees : Our Elders are despised, whose gray haires Are but the Index of their doting yeares; Our flowring youth are forced to fulfill Their painfull taskes in the laborious Mill; Our children faint beneath their loads, and cry, Opprest with burdens, under which they lye : Sages are banisht from Iudiciall Courts, And youth takes no delight in youthfull sports : Our joyes are gone, and promise no returning, Our pleasure's turn'd to paine, our mirth to mourning; Our hand hath loft her fword; our Head his Crowne, Our Church her glory; our Weale, her high renowne, Lord, we have finn'd, and thefe our fins have brought This world of griefe; (O purchase dearly bought!) From hence our forrowes, and from hence our feares Proceed; for this, our eyes are blinde with teares; But that (aye that) which my poore heart doth count Her fharpest torture, is thy facred Mount, Sacred bered entof aden v Ind Fo at tho perm Vnapt f Though Why do Thy glo Thy M Atton' Restore Dur wo Our wa Thy fca Canft t

Hath ch

0 thou

Nocafe

urred Mount Sion; Sion, that divine at of thy glory's raz'd; her tender Vine, laden with swelling Clusters, is destroy'd, and Foxes now, what once thy Lambs enjoy'd. at thou (O thou eternall God) whose Throne permanent, whose glory's ever one, mapt for Change, abiding still the same, though Earth confume, & Heaven diffolve her frame, Why dost thou (ah!) why dost thou thus absent Thy glorious face ? Oh, wherefore hast thou rent Thy Mercy from us ? O! when wilt thou be atton'd to them, that have no trust but Thee. Reftore us (Lord) and let our foules possesse Our wonted peace; O, let thy Hand redreffe Our wasted fortunes ; Let thine Eye behold Thy scattred Flock, and drive them to their Fold : Canst thou reject that People, which thy Hand Hith chose, and planted in the promis'd Land ? Othou (the Spring of mercy) wilt thou fend No case to our Afflictions, no end ?

The end.

bt

red

A

Ties there present

h

g

1 'ni

ALPHABET OF ELEGIES,

PPON

The much and truly lamented death of that famous for Learning, Pietie, and true Friendship, Doctor

A great favourer, and fast friend to the Muses, and late Archdeacon of

LONDON:

Imprinted in bis Heart, that ever loves his Memory.

Written by Fra. Quarles.

Cum privilegio \{ \int_{Dol}^{Am} \} oris.

Dignum laude virum Musa vetat mori.

R

mem hours who Scory fuffer faithf happ Elegi a Lan had b beam his m mem undif ning.

of the state of the state of

Irr. Onarles,

· in

.... City a retat theri.

Readers :

Ive me leave to performe a necessary duty, I which my affection owes to the bleffed memory of that reverend Prelate, my much hohoured Friend, Doctor Aylmer : Hee was one, whose life and death made as full and perfect a Story of worth and goodnesse, as carth would fuffer, and whose pregnant vertues deserve as faithfull a Register, as earth can keepe : In whose happy remembrance, I have here trusted these Elegies to Time and your favours: Had he bin a Lampe to light me alone, my private griefes had beene sufficient ; but being a Sunne, whose beames reflected on all ; all have an interest in his memory: To which end, I recommend thefe memorialls to the publike, in testimony of my undiffembled affection, and true piety that I owe to fo great an example of Vertue and Learning.

F.Q.

Bb2

F

P.

B ad a

.0.4

.31 5.

FUNERALL ELEGIES.

ELEG.I.

All you whose cies would learn to weep, draw neer,
And heare, what none, without still tears, can hear;
Come marble eyes, as marble as your hearts,
I'le teach you how to weepe a teare in parts;
And you false eyes, that never yet, let fall
A teare in earnest, come, and now ye shall Send forth salt fountaines of the truest griese,
That ever sought to Language, for reliese:
But you, you tender eyes, that cannot beare
An Elegy, wept forth, without a teare,
I warne you hence; or, at the most, passe by,
Lest while you stay, you soone dissolve, and dye,

ELEG. 1.

Byt flay: (fad Genius) How doe griefes transport Thy exil'd senses? Is there no refort
To forkt Parnassian facred Mount? No word,
No thought of Helicon? No Muse implor'd?
Idid invoke, but there was none reply'd,
The nine were filent, fince Mecanus dy'd:
They have forsiken their old Spring: Tis said, they haunt a new one, which their tears have made:
Should I molest them with my lose? Tis knowne,
They finde enough to re-lament their owne:
I crave no ayd, no Deity to insuse
New matter: Ah: True forrow needs no Muse.

Bb3 ELEG.

ELEG. 3.

All back (bright Phabus) your sky-wandring steeds
Your day is tedious, and our forrow needs
No Sun: When our fad foules have lost their light,
Why should our eyes not finde perpetuall night?
Goe to the nether world, and let your rayes
Shine there: Bestow on them our share of dayes:
But say not, Why: lest when report shall show
Such cause of griefe, they fall a-grieving too,
And pray the absence of your restlesse wayne,
Which then must be return'd on us againe;
Deare Phabus grant my suit; If thou deny't,
My teares shall blinde me, and so make a night.

ELEG. 4.

DEath, art thou growne so nice? can nothing please Thy curious palate, but such Cates as these?
Or hath thy ravenous stomach beene o'represt
With common diet at thy last great seast?
Or hast thou sed so neere that there is none
Now lest but delicates to seed upon?
Or was this dish so tempting, that no power
Was lest in thee, to stay another hower?
Or didst thou seed by chance, and not observ'd
What sood it was, but tooke as Fortune carv'd?
'Tis done. Be it or Fortunes act or thine,
It sed thee one, whose want made Millions pinc.

ELEG.

ELEG. 5.

Envy now burst with joy, and let thine eyes
Strut forth with satnesse: let thy collops rise
Pampred and plump: Feed full for many yeares
Vpon our losse: Be drunken with our teares:
For he is dead, whose soule did never cease
To crosse and violate your malicious peace:
He's dead; but in his death hath overthrowne
More vices, than his happy life haddone:
In life, he taught to dye; and he did give
In death, a great example how to live:
Though he be gone, his same is lest behinde:
Now leave thy laughing, Envie, and be pin'd.

ELEG. 6.

Arewell those eyes, whose gentle miles for sooke
No misery, taught Charity how to looke:
Farewell those cheerfull eyes, that did e'rewhile,
Teach succour'd misery how to blette a smile:
Farewell those eyes, whose mixt aspect, of late,
Did reconcile humility and state:
Farewell those eyes, that to their joyfull guest,
Proclam'd their ordinary fare, a feast:
Farewell those eyes, the load-stars, late, whereby
The Graces sail'd secure, from eye to eye:
Farewell deare eyes, bright Lamps; & who can tell
Your glorious welcome, or our sad farewell!

Bb4

ELIG.

ds

it,

afe

25

G.

ELEG. 7.

Oe glorious Saint! I knew 'twas not a shrine
Of flesh, could lodge so pure a soule as thine;
I saw it labour (in a holy scorne
Of living dust and ashes) to be sworne
A heavenly Quirister: I trigh'd and groan'd
To be distoly dirom mortall, and enthron'd
Among his fellow Angells, there to sing
Perpetuall Anthems to his heavenly king:
He was a stranger to his house of Clay;
Scarce own'd it, but that necessary stay Miscall'd it his: And onely zeale did make Him love the building for the builders sake.

ELEG. 8.

Ad Virtue, Learning, the Diviner Arts,
Wit, Judgement, Wiledome, (or what other parts
That make perfection, and returne the minde
As great as Earth can fuffer) beene confin'd
To earth, had they the Patent to abide Secure from change, our Ailmer ne're had dy'de:
Fond earth, forbeare, and let thy childish eyes
Ne're weep for him, thou ne're knewst how to prize
Shed not a teare, blind earth; for it appeares
Thou never lov'dst out Ailmer by thy teares:
Or if thy sloods must needs o'reslow their brim,
Lament, lament thy blindnesse, and not him.

ELEG.

Wor

Wi

W

An

To

Na

Hi

It

Th

Gr

Ma

An

H

Ha

An

Fu W

Fr

Fr

Th

ELEG. 9.

Wondred not to heare so brave an end,
Because I knew, who made it, could contend
With death, and conquer, and in open chace
Would spit desiance in his conquerd face;
And did: Dauntlesse he trod him underneath,
To shew the weaknesse of unarmed death:
Nay, had report, or niggard Fame denyde
His name, it had bin knowne 'twas nibber dyde.
It was no wonder, to heare rumor tell,
That he which dyde so oft, once dyde so well:
Great Lord of life, how hath thy dying breath
Made man, who death had conquerd, coquer death!

E LEG. 10.

Nowledge (the depth of whose unbounded maine Hath bin the wreck of many a curious braine, And from her (yet unreconciled) schooles Hath fill'dus with so many learned scoles) Hath tutor'd thee with rules that cannot erre, And taught thee how to know thy selfe, and her; Furnisht thy nimble soule, in height of measure, With humane riches and divinest treasure, From whence, as from a sacred spring, did flow Fresh Oracles, to let the hearer know A way to glory; and to let him see, The way to glory, is to studie thee.

ELEG.

ze

ELEG. 11.

Ooke how the body of heavens greater light
Inriches each beholder with his bright
And glorious rayes, untill the envious West
Too greedy to enjoy so faire a guest,
Calls him to bed, where ravisht from our sight,
Re leaves us to the solemn frowness of night;
E ven so our Son in his harmonious spheare
Enlightned every eye, rapt every eare
Till in the early sunfet of his yeares
He dyde, and left us that survive, in teares;
And (like the Sun) in spight of death and sate,
He seemed greatest in his lowest state.

ELEG. 12.

Molest me not, full sighes and flowing teares,
You stormes & showres of nature: stop your eares,
Fond flesh and blood, against the strong Téptatio
Of sullen griese, and sense bereaving passion:
Cease to lament; Let not thy slow pac'd numbers
Disturbe his rest, that so, so sweetly slumbers:
The child of vertue is assespent dead;
He dyes, alone, whom death hath conquered:
Why should we shed a teare for him? or why
Lament we, whom we rather should envic?
He lives; he lives a life, shall never tast
A change, so long as Crownes of glory last.

ELEG.

ELEG. 13.

No, no, he is not dead; The mouth of fame,
Honors shrill Herald, would preserve his name,
And make it live, in spight of death and dust,
Were there no other heaven, no other trust:
He is not dead: The sacred Nine deny,
The soule that merits same, should ever dye:
He lives; and when the latest breath of same,
Shall want her Trumpe, to glorifie a name,
He shall survive and these self-closed eyes,
That now lie sumbring in the dust, shall rise,
And fill d with endlesse glory, shall enjoy
The perfect vision of eternall joy.

E LEG. 14.

But the dregs of flesh and blood! How close They grapple with my soule, and interpose Her higher thoughts; which, yet, but yong of wing, They cause to stoope and strike at every thing; Passion presents before their weakned eye, Iudgement and better Reason standing by: I must lament. Nature commands it so: The more! Strive with teares, the more they flow; These eyes have just, nay double cause of mone, They weepe the comon losse, they weepe their own Hee sleepes indeed; Then give me leave to weepe Teares fully answerable to his sleepe.

ELEG.

tió

ers

ELEG. 15.

Pardon my teares, if they be too too free,
And if thou canst not weepe, lie pardon thee,
Dull Stoick: If thou laugh to heare his death,
I'le weep, that thou wert borne, to speed that breath
Thou dry-brayn'd Portick, whose ahenian brest, (Transcending passion) never was oppress
With griefe; O had your flinty Sect but lost
So rare a prize, as we lament and bost,
Your hearts had crost your Tenet, and disburst
As many drops as we have done, or burst;
No marvell, that your marble braines could cross
Her lawes, that never gave you such a losse.

ELEG. 16.

Vicke-fould Pythagoras. O thou that wert
So many men, and didft fo oft revert
From shades of death, (if we may trust to Fame)
With losse of nothing but thy buried name;
Hadst thou but liv'd in this our Ailmen time,
Thou wouldst have dyde once more, to live in him,
Or had our Ailmen in those daies of thine,
But dyde, and left so glorious so divine
A soule as his, how would thy hasty brest
Have gasp'd to entertaine so faire a guest!
Which, if obtained, had (no doubt) supplyed thee
With that immortall state thy Sire denyde thee.

ELEG.

Pa

Re

Par

WI

To

Co

Per

Th

OI

For

So

My

As

Ou

Ma

Th

Or

Or

0,1

Ag

E LE G. 17.

Are foule, that now fits crowned in that Quire Of endlesse joy, fill'd with coelestials fire; Pardon my teares, that in their passion would Recall thee from thy Kingdome, if they could; Pardon, ô pardon my distracted zeale; Which, if condemn'd by reason, must appeale To thee, whose now lamented death, whose end Consirm'd the deare affection of a triend; Permit me then to offer at thy herse These fruitless tears, which if they prove too sierce O pardon, you, that know the price of friends; For teares are just, that nature recommends.

reath

offe

G.

ELEG. 13.

CO may the faire aspect of pleased heaven
Conforme my noone of daies, & crowns their even,
So may the gladder smiles of carthyresent
My fortunes with the height of joyes, content;
As I lament, with unaffected breath,
Our losse (deare Ailmer) in thy happy death:
May the false teare, that's forc'd, or slides by Art,
That hath no warrant from the soule, the heart,
Or that exceeds not natures faint commission,
Or dares (unvented) come to composition;
O, may that teare in stricter judgement rise
Against those false, those faint, those flattring eyes.

ELEG.

ELEG. 19.

Thus to the world, and to the spacious eares
Offame, I blazon my unbosted teares;
Thus to thy sacred dust, thy Vrne, shy Herse
I consecrate my sighes, my teares, my verse;
Thus to thy soule, thy name, thy just desert
I offer up my joy; my love, my heart;
That earth may know, and every care that heares,
True worth and griese were parents to my teares:
That earth may know thy dust, thy urne, thy herse
Brought forth & bred my sighes, my teares, my verse
And that thy soule, thy name, thy just desert,
Invites, incites my joy, my love, my heart.

ELE G. 20.

Nconstant earth why doe not mortalls cease
To build their hopes upon so short a lease?
Vncertaine lease, whose tearme, but once begun,
Tells never when it ends, till it be done:
We dote upon thy smiles, not knowing why:
And whiles we but prepare to live, we dye:
We spring like slowers, for a dayes delight,
At noone, we flourish, and we sade at night:
We toile for kingdomes, conquer crowns, and then
We that were Gods but now, now less then men:
If wisedome, learning, knowledge cannot dwell
Secure from change, vaine bubble carth, farewell.

ELE G.

Co

Dy

We

Th

Th

Di

Bu

Kin

Th

Di

TI

Me

Br

Da

An

AI

Te

Ye

TH

Ye

TI

ELEG. 21. (flory, Vouldft thou, when death had done, deferve a Should staine the memory of great Pomptes Conquer thy selfe; Example be thy guide; (glory? Dye just as our selfe-conquering Asia. er dyde. Woldst thou subdue more kingdoms, gain mo crowns Then that brave Hero Cafar conquer'd townes? Then conquer death; Example be thy guide: Die just as our death-conquering Asianer dyde: But woldst thou win more worlds, then he had done Kingdomes, that all the earth hath over-run? Then conquer heaven; Example be thy guide; Die just as our heaven-conquering Asianer dyde.

ELEG. 11.

Eares, fully laden with their months, attend Th'expired times acquittance, and so end: Monthes, gone their dates of mubred daies, require Bright Cymipya's full discharge, and so expire: Dayes, deeply ag'd with houres, lose their light, And having run their stage, conclude with night: And howers chac'd with light-soot minutes, stye, Tending their labour to a new supply; Yet slimers glory never shall diminish, (faish: Though yeares & monthes, though daies & howers Yet slimers joyes for ever shall extend, Though yeares, & months, though daies & howers (end.)

FINIS.

Doloris unlius.

es,

s: fe ric

12

G.

His Epitaphe.

Ske you, why fo many a teare urfts forth; I'le telf you in your eare ; ompell me not to fpeake aloud, eath would then be too too proud; yes that cannot vye a teare, orbeare to aske, you may not heare: entle hearts that overflow, ave onely priviledge to know: n thefe facred afhes, then, now(Reader)that a man of men yes covered: Fame and lasting glory M ake deare mention of his ftory : N ature, when she gave him birth, O p'd her treasure to the earth, ut forth the modell of true merit, Q uickned with a higher spirit: R are was his life; His lateft breath, aw, and fcorn'd, and conquer'd death: T hankleffe Reader, never more V rge a Why, when teares run ore: W hen you faw so high a Tyde, Y ou might have knowne, twas Ailmer dyde.

Obyt, lan. vj. MDCXXV.

Vivet poft funera virtus.

